insofar as money can meet it, will be gladly and proudly paid."

I wish now to speak of Canada's relations, and indeed of the relations of the whole British Commonwealth, with the United States, in the period under review. Before discussing these relations, I should like to say a word about how much our own Canadian war effort owes to the co-operation of the United States. Aircraft and tanks for training purposes, and destroyers for active service, are outstanding among the many essentials of warfare which the United States has so generously made available to Canada. The President's announcement on Friday last of the priorities being given to Britain and ourselves is only the most recent example of United States assistance magnanimously given to the United Kingdom and to Canada. Every member of the House will, I am sure, join with me in an expression of our appreciation and gratitude.
