

Canada looks for the solution of world problems through international co-operation. The Prime Minister, in his statement to the House of Commons concerning the Washington Declaration on Atomic Energy, expressed the belief that the ultimate solution would seem to lie in "some surrender of national sovereignty". He went on to say:

"We must work with all our might for a world order under the rule of law. This seems to be our only hope. Humanity is one. We must act in the belief that no nation and no individual liveth to himself alone, and that all are members one of another."
