
A MIDWINTER MEMORY

All these burning summers round.
There, the search was done!

Now the dark is at the door;
Now the snow is on the sill;
And for all I may deplore,
Time must have his ancient will —
Mar one lover more.