IN TERROR

Czolgosz Screamed and Yelled For Fear on Arrival at Auburn.

Moaned and Groaned and Wept and Officials Had to Drag him to the Keeper's Office and Dress him.

Special to The Planet.

Auburn, N. Y., Sept. 27.—Czolgosz, McKinley's murderer, in the custody of Sheriff Caldwell, of Erie county, and 21 deputies, arrived in Auburn at 3.15 a. m.

The prison is only about 50 yards from the depot.
Awaiting the arrival of the train there was a crowd of about 200 people. Either for fear of the crowd, which was very demonstrative, or from sight of the prison, Czolgosz's legs gave out and two deputy sheriffs were compelled to practically carry the man into the prison.

Inside the gate his condition became worse and he was dragged up the stairs and into the main hall. He was placed in a sitting posture on the bench while the handcuffs were being removed, but he fell over and moaned and groaned, evincing the most abject terror.

The collar of the handcuffs were unlocked the man was dragged into the principal keeper's office. As in the case of all prisoners the officers immediately proceeded to strip him and put on a new suit of clothes.

CRIED AND YELLED.

During this operation Czolgosz cried and yelled, making the prison corridors echo with evidence of his terror. The prison physician, Dr. John Gerin, examined the man and ordered his removal to the cell in the condemned row, which he believed until he is taken to the electric chair.

The doctor declared that the man was suffering from fright and terror, but said that he was shamming to some extent.
The collapse of the murderer was a surprise to everyone. En route from Buffalo he showed no indication of breaking down. He ate heartily of sandwiches and smoked cigars when not eating and smoking.

"I am especially sorry for Mrs. McKinley," he reiterated his former statement that he had had no accomplices and declared that he never had heard of the man under arrest in St. Louis, who claimed to have tied the handkerchief over his hand, concealing the pistol with which the president was shot. He went behind the Temple of Music, arranged the handkerchief so as to hide the weapon and then took his place in the crowd. By John M. Kelly he sent this message to his father: "Tell him I'm sorry I left such a bad name for him."

ANOTHER VERSION.

New York, Sept. 27.—The Evening World has the following from its staff correspondent in Auburn, N. Y.: "Czolgosz was dragged from the train which brought them from Buffalo through a crowd of 300 persons. During his progress from the train to the prison gate between two deputies to whom he was handcuffed, Czolgosz was mauled by the crowd. One burly fist reached his head and brought instant collapse."

In the prison Czolgosz tumbled to his knees in a state of terror, frothing at the mouth and uttering the most terrifying cries, while the crowd hung to the iron gates and yelled: "Give him to us!"
"So unexpected was the onslaught of the crowd that police and deputies had scarcely time to draw their revolvers and clubs. The advance guard made a dash for the crowd. A dozen prison keepers threw the gates ajar. Then came a short, sharp conflict and the assassin was safely lodged behind the frothing walls."

"We were very much pleased with the design you sent. It was beautiful and appropriate." The Victoria Ave. Greenhouses receive such words of commendation every day. Telephone No. 181.

The trial of the remaining directors of the Ville Marie Bank and the brokers charged with conspiracy will take place in Quebec in October.
