Hardships of the Educated.

Expatiating upon the hardships of the educated youth, a contemporary intimates that this is a bad time for the college man who goes out into the world to find something to do. Taking into consideration the fact that this is what is popularly known as the "silly season," it is not surprising to find intimations of this nature in occasionally sane quarters. Viewed, however, as a proposition worthy of serious consideration, it is not difficult to substantiate a claim to the contrary effect, and to say positively that for the man who is really educated there has never been a time richer in opportunities than this. Of course, if a man spends four years in college storing his mind with useless knowledge it is not at all likely that his B.A. will help him much in getting himself established in life, and the chances are that without material assistance from his parents he would stand an excellent chance to be reckoned among the idlers. But the other man, the one who knows what he wants to do and fits himself for it, and is persistent and conscientious in his work, need have no fear that the world will be lacking in rewards for him when the harvest time comes. The melancholy fact that our colleges are turning out scoundrels by the dozens, men who half know a lot of things that have no practical value in the pursuit of fame and fortune, does not alter the other fact that the well-trained student who has gone at his work seriously, and with a particular object in view, finds always a ready market for his energies. The whine that we get from the so-called "educated" man is not from education, but from those who confound the possession of a degree with education; who think that because they have fulfilled the academic requirements of the college they are therefore educated. These men may possess a vast amount of information, but they are no more educated necessarily than a man who possesses a complete tool-chest is by virtue of that possession a good carpenter. To have the finest set of tools in the world is a hollow mockery to the man who does not know how to use them; and these wretched gasters who plunge into the whirl of life with a store of information that they do not know how to avail themselves of are in an equally sad case. But the man who is not with his times; it is with himself—those who have failed at the time to observe their bent, and to direct their energies in the channels most fit for their fullest development.

An Athletic Fallacy.

Commenting on the recent defeat of Walter J. Travis, the golf champion, by Louis Napoleon James, the New York "Evening Post" says: "With all friendly feeling Post" says: "Mr. Travis will rejoice in his defeat. It is only human nature to wish to see a tradition of invincibility broken, and for three years past Mr. Travis has been invincible. He was and is the finest player of what is called the golf game. His errors—that is, those who have reached full maturity before handling the driver or the iron. It was felt, and justly, that the younger players, who had learned their full swings during the flexible period of boyhood, must very soon assert their superiority. This has been done by Mr. James, a Western player. But Mr. Travis has not fallen before demonstrating the hollowness of several athletic fallacies. It is often said that, athletically, it is all up with a man beyond thirty—that is, that he is past his prime. It is said, for example, that a man may ride beyond thirty, but never acquire a seat," and in general the man of thirty as a beginner in sports has about the consideration that Dr. Johnson gave to the preaching of the Rev. Mr. Travis, by learning a very difficult game, beyond the fatal year, and by carrying off for three years running the championship honors against all comers, has done much to commend himself to his contemporaries to those who by no means covet distinction on the links. It is a comfort to have those wretched proverbs about the thirtieth year disproved."

Irish Politics.

The tragic times in Ireland, when peasant was at open war with landlord and all were at war with English rule, are relieved by many good stories. As Mr. Michael MacDonagh says in his book, "Irish Life and Character," the anecdotal Celt is whimsical even in time of trouble.

When Mr. A. J. Balfour, the present Premier, was Chief Secretary for Ireland, he met Father Healy at a dinner in Dublin.

"Tell me, Father Healy," said Mr. Balfour, "is it true the people of Ireland hate me?"

"Hate you?" replied the priest. "If they hated you as they hate you, Mr. Balfour, my occupation would be gone."

Yet it was Mr. Balfour who a few years ago had accomplished much toward the peace of Ireland. His name became amusingly prominent in Irish families. A gentleman driving into the town of Westport, County Mayo, was stopped by a pig which ran in front of his horse. An old peasant shouted across the ditch to the boy who was watching the pig stupidly:

"Arrah, Mick, will ye stir yourself! Don't ye see Arthur James runnin' away?"

Struck by the name, the gentleman asked the old man about it, and found that in gratitude to Mr. Balfour, who had been the means of getting them the pig, the peasant had given the animal his name.

It was not long since the young women in the cataloguing department of the Astor Library were laughing at a beginner there who catalogued Greek roots under "holary." But some of the mistakes made by beginners elsewhere are just as amusing. Many years ago a young woman who had not yet learned all the intricacies of her work was cataloguing a set of works under "mill." So she wrote:

"Ditto on the Floss."

That is one of the historic mistakes that librarians quote, and a newer one is just as amusing. This was the result of a young librarian's inexperience, and read:

"Lead—See Metallurgy."

"Lead—Kindly Light."

"Lead—Poisoning."

Jim Dumps' physician once fell ill. Said he: "I'll have no draught or pill." Said Jim: "Ho, ho, you're on the shelf; You, who cure others, cure yourself." Then Jim sent up some "Force" to him— "That's what he needs," quoth "Sunny Jim."

THE KITCHEN CORN POP.

Oh, those cherished recollections of the days of long ago. How they seem to fill a feller full of seem to pervade his brain with a jingle of delight.

Till the songs jes' come a-bubblin' from Oh, the frolics and the revels of that rural life so gay.

When you had your gal beside you snugled in the dyin' sleigh.

When the wimmen done the quilting an' the young folks shucked the corn.

While the laughter shuck the cobwebs from the rafters of the barn.

Then jes' think of the delight On a snappy winter night— Never saw such jolly time since you was born—

In your go-to-meetin' dressed, With the gal you loved the best, Bettin' in the ole farm kitchen poppin' corn.

There was pleasure in the parties when the boys and gals 'd meet with husky feet.

Fur to play the kessin' games an' later on with husky feet.

Dance upon the ole oak puncheons, feelin' like they was on wings.

While the fiddler's bow was dancin' on the agitated strings.

There was fun in trampin' homeward from the school at night.

On your arm a somethin' hangin' that jes' thrilled you with delight—

Somethin' that you valued higher than the wealth of earth, by jings!

Purty little rustic jewel hid in salico an' things.

But you've never seen a joy, Nor you never will, ole boy, Till the angel Gab'r'l toots the final horn.

To your little country dancin' love While a-settin' in the kitchen poppin' corn.

Miss Alice M. Smith, of So. Minneapolis, Minn., tells how woman's monthly suffering is permanently relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I have never before given my endorsement for any medicine, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has added so much to my life and happiness that I feel like making an exception in this case. For two years every month I would have two days of severe pain and could find no relief, but one day while visiting a friend I ran across Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I advised me to try it. I found that it worked wonders with me; I now experience no pain, and only had to use a few bottles to bring about this wonderful change."

—Miss ALICE M. SMITH, 804 Third Ave., South Minneapolis, Minn. (Send for original of above letter proving genuineness; cannot be produced.)

Many women suffer silently and see their best gifts fade away. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes the entire female organism healthy.

"Take care of the pennies and the pounds will take care of themselves." Large things are but an aggregation of small things. If we take care of the small things we are in effect taking care of the large things which the small things combine to make.

Take care of what you eat, when you eat, and how you eat, and your stomach will take care of itself. But we take care of such trivial things! That is why, someday, the majority of people have to take care of the stomach. When that day comes, there is no aid so effective in undoing the results of past carelessness as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It strengthens the stomach, and restores the organs of digestion and nutrition to a condition of healthy activity. It cures biliousness, heartburn, flatulence, indigestion, palpitation, dizziness, cold extremities and a score of other ailments which are but the symptoms of disorder in the stomach and its allied organs.
