The Red Eagle Gold Mining Co.'s Properties

CONSIST OF THE

Red Eagle and Red Pole Mineral Claims,

Composed of about 75 acres.

The Red Eagle.

The Red Eagle mineral claim is situated on the east slope of Deer Park mountain, between the Mayflower and Curlew claims. There are three known ledges crossing this property. These veins are known as the South vein, the Curlew vein and the Mayflower vein. The South vein, which has produced some of the richest surface ore ever discovered in the district, is six to eight feet wide with a 24 inch pay streak, assays from which gave returns of $18 to $285. This vein was but recently discovered by workmen grading for a tramway across the claim for the sawmill company, and is generally regarded as the most important of recent discoveries in the south belt. This vein is traceable across the entire width of the claim a distance of over 1400 feet. On the Curlew ledge an open cut has been made exposing a vein of ore four feet wide, from which assays of from $14 to $161 per ton have been secured. This vein has been exposed by a number of shallow pits and crosscuts for several hundred feet. The Mayflower ledge, from which this well known mine is now shipping such high grade ore, crosses the Red Eagle claim for a distance of 300 feet.

The Red Pole.

The Red Pole is situated one-half mile south of the Red Eagle and east of the Silver Bell mine. The Silver Bell ledge crosses the Red Pole mineral claim. Assays from this vein have shown over $100 per ton of gold and silver. They have secured the survey and are applying for the Crown grant, and will continue developing the property all winter, and fully expect to be able to find pay ore to cover the development almost from the surface. But to prepare for all mining emergencies and to fully equip the property with machinery we have placed 500,000 shares in the treasury, a limited amount of which we offer to the public at the rate of 7 1/2 cents, and when the paid limit is reached the company will close their books and reopen in the course of ten days at an advanced rate for further stock.

Description of Property.

The Snowdrop is 3 1/4 miles from Rossland in the South Belt. It is distant from the Crown Point about three-quarters of a mile. Adjoining it on the east is the Summit. A shaft on this claim shows a large ore body assaying $12 per ton in gold. This vein runs through the Snowdrop. A site has been selected for a tunnel and work on the Snowdrop will be continued all winter.

Description of the Property.

The company owns the Annie Fraction and the Comet No. 2 mineral claims. The Annie Fraction is situated between the California, San Francisco and Black Bear, the latter of which is the property of the great Le Roi Mining & Smelting company and is the first western extension of the Le Roi mine. The vein of the Le Roi can be traced through the Annie Fraction and men at work on this property have tapped an ore chute at a depth of 40 feet from which assays gave returns of from $14 to $20.

The Comet No. 2 is a full claim, 1500 feet square, and lies about three miles north of Rossland. It has two strong well-defined ledges running through it. A prospecting shaft now down 10 feet shows nothing but vein matter the whole mass being well diffused with copper and iron pyrites. Assays averaging $6 to $8 have been obtained from this showing.

Shares.

The entire capital stock of the company excepting treasury shares has been pooled. The company now offers 50,000 shares of treasury stock at the low price of Twelve and One-Half Cents a Share.

The proceeds will be used in purchasing machinery for the Annie Fraction.

RESULT OF A SP

John Dwyer Is Dead and Knows Who Killed Him

OCCURRED EARLY SUN

Dwyer Seems to Have Had Three Scraps—James Manson Under Arrest—Evidence at quest Has Proved Nothing.

Last Saturday evening John Dwyer, who has been employed in the Red Eagle mine, and James Manson, a mine, the Red Eagle mine, quarrelled and fought at the Club restaurant. It was the unsuccessful contestant in the battle of fists but no extra result was expected at the time. Dwyer was badly bruised and was cared for by his friends until about 2 o'clock in the morning when Constable Forrester was investigating the affair, learned Dwyer was in a dying condition and caused his removal to the Sister's hospital, where every effort was made to save the unfortunate man's life. At 10 o'clock in the morning Dwyer died. In the meantime Constable Forrester was searching the city for the assassin who, upon hearing of Dwyer's condition, gave himself up and was sent to jail. Little was known of the serious turn of affairs until Monday when the story of Dwyer's death generally circulated. Then accounts of the trouble were revived. Dwyer, it appears, had trouble earlier in the morning on Reserve street, where he was roughly handled by an unknown assailant. The fall he sustained at that time is supposed to have something to do with the cause of his death.

The stories current about town that Dwyer was out on a protest and for several days had been in for trouble and that on several occasions he had no difficulty in finding quiet when sober but of a quarrelsome disposition when under the influence of liquor. Only a short time before the fatal affair in the Club restaurant Dwyer struck a butcher boy, who was in Burns' meat market, in the ear and the evidence of the blow was plainly apparent now.

Manson is described as a man who drinks little, talks less than he and avoids trouble. It is said that he was aggravated beyond endurance by Dwyer during the afternoon and evening of the 7th, and that the result of the fight in the restaurant.

An autopsy was held Sunday morning by Coroner Bowes, assisted by McKenzie to ascertain the extent of the injuries sustained by the dead man. The result of the examination was the finding of multiple internal injuries and bruises in the lower part of the spine. There were nearly four quarts of blood in the abdominal cavity. The opinion of the physicians is that the cause of death was caused by injuries of the spleen and not from blows on the deceased's head. The substance of the testimony of the doctors, who performed the autopsy, is as follows:

At 2 o'clock Monday afternoon an inquest was held. Several witnesses were examined, but the testimony of the inquest was not reached and it was continued today at 2 p. m. Dr. Couillard was the first witness called. He was standing with Manson in front of the Club restaurant when he approached Manson and cursed him in the foulest language. Manson struck him by the shoulders and threw him down. Lafferty separated them and Manson went into the restaurant for dinner. The witness said that Dwyer was drunk, that Manson was apparently sober, and that the fall of Dwyer was not hard enough to hurt him, as he fell in the soft snow.

Dr. Couillard's testimony was to the effect: He was called to attend Dwyer at 1:30 Sunday morning, and found Dwyer in the Club restaurant in a state of collapse due to alcoholic excess. There were cuts and bruises on his face. He said there were two bruises on Dwyer's body over the spleen, evidently inflicted several days previously. His opinion was that a man receiving an injury in the spleen would have died great agony, and could hardly have kept on his feet more than an hour.

James Sullivan, proprietor of the restaurant, testified that his attention was first called to Dwyer, who was sitting at a table by the stairway with his elbows on his knees and his face in his hands. He had known Dwyer for some time and said that when intoxicated Dwyer was quarrelsome. He asked Dwyer what he wanted. Dwyer replied: "What do you suppose I'm here for? Give me some liver and bacon." At this time Manson was sitting at a table at the other end of the room. The witness took the order and went to the kitchen. He then went to the postoffice where he remained 15 minutes. Upon his return he saw a crowd gathered in front of the restaurant. He pushed his way through the crowd and saw that a pane of glass had been broken from the window. He went to the side and saw Dwyer sitting in the place. He asked him what the trouble was and Dwyer said he had a "bit of scuffle outside." There were blood on the floor. He then took Dwyer to the kitchen and washed the blood from his wounds. Dwyer took a pint of whisky from his pocket and said: "Let's have a drink, and Dwyer to drink. Dwyer then remarked that he did not want to go out the front. He said he was sorry for what had happened and that the trouble was of his own fault. Witness took him to the back door a few steps. Dwyer slipped on the ice and fell pretty hard. Sullivan picked him up and as he stumbled his way through the snow, Sullivan pointed to him the way out.

He said he would go up to the
