THE SITUATION

The work of the French and British forces on the Somme continues to be of a most reassuring and heartening nature. The Hun's boasted that their defenses were practically impregnable, but their elaborate preparations continue to be set at naught. Not only are the allied troops holding what they have gained, but in addition by their hammer strokes they continue to force back the enemy upon a wide front. Chaulnes, an important railroad centre, Comblès, Peronne, and other points, are now well within their encircling grip, and important railroads are also getting into their grasp. The fighting is raging along a front of thirty miles and the energy and courageous fortitude of Joffre's and Haig's men alike are maintained at a high pitch. In the last three days of recorded fighting no fewer than 7,500 prisoners have been taken.

The Roumanians have occupied three more Austrian cities in Transylvania, and Russian troops are landing in large numbers to help withstand the German-Bulgarian forces.

The German papers are commencing to abandon their cocksure attitude, and the Berlin Vorwaerts is quoted as saying:

"A truce with England must be arranged even at the sacrifice of some of Germany's chief ambitions."

These and other signs serve to demonstrate that the Huns are commencing to realize that Great Britain aroused, is an adversary whom it is utterly impossible for them to stay or circumvent.

THE MANITOBA CASE

The jury in the Manitoba case, involving charges against former Ministers of the Province, have disagreed and so probably would most of those who have followed the evidence.

The time of the court was quite largely used up by personal wrangles between the many counsel engaged and in this respect the various lawyers were allowed a latitude very strange to the people of Ontario.

The main witness for the Crown was a man who had admittedly perjured himself on a previous occasion and much of the entire evidence was very contradictory.

It was not charged that Roblin and the rest had personally received any moneys, but that extras were allowed in order to secure funds for party campaign purposes. It is a fact that such funds exist in connection with both the great parties and the late Sir Richard Cartwright.

Formerly Minister of Trade and Commerce in the Laurier Government, in his published memoirs stated that a party could not be run without some such central source any more than any other Dominion wide enterprise. In fact it is known that Sir Richard depleted a large personal fortune by his contributions in this respect. The Manitoba charge, however, was that such moneys had been obtained by corrupt means at the expense of the public treasury, and the public believed it so far that the Ministry was put down and out.

It may be safely affirmed that the party levy system and the patronage system are both evils to which Liberals and Conservatives alike have been subjected, and when they reach the point of malfeasance, the public are not slow to act as in the case of the Ross Government in Manitoba and more lately that of the Prairie Province.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

Japan is evidently bent on making another smash in China.

Dew is on the flowers these mornings while the Bremen is over due.

The United States Senate purposes to get back at the British black list by refusing clearance to ships refusing American goods. On the other hand if John Bull refused to carry American goods in British bottoms, where would your Uncle Sam land up?

GETTING AFTER THEM

Quebec has not only been exceedingly derelict in the matter of recruiting, but in addition, a certain element there, led by Bourassa, has been openly disloyal in speech and action. The thing has even extended to the breaking up of recruiting meetings, and in this regard the Minister of Justice, during a recent speech in Montreal, made the statement that such things would not be tolerated, and that heavy fines and imprisonment would be the future fate of disturbers. This is also to apply to those interfering with recruiting on the streets. There is apparently only one way to get at the Quebec slackers and others of the same ilk elsewhere in the Dominion, and that is by some form of conscription.

The present plan of the Dominion Government, under the newly appointed "Director of National Services," is to have every eligible man classified with a view to securing such for the front, but at the same time not to interfere with those needed at home, either from an industrial or an agricultural standpoint.

The two hundred thousand men whom Canada is pledged to send, and should send, certainly cannot be secured unless the young men of Quebec are brought into line along with the other shirkers in this and all other communities.

No Compromise Possible
London Times—Compromise is impossible with an enemy whose military system directs the perpetration of enormities at which humanity shudders, which makes the massacre of undefending civilians, the slaughter of women and little children, the slavery of populations, the forcible abduction of young girls from their homes, wanton cruelty to helpless prisoners, loot, arson and judicial murder, the accepted incidents of war. "Peace talk" is impossible with those who openly avow their contempt for public faith. The whole scheme of thought, the whole normal atmosphere which sanctions, condones and rejoices in these things is a standing menace to all right and to all progress. The highest interests of humanity imperiously require its utter extirpation from the minds it darkens and debases, lest its triumph should contaminate the future of mankind.

The "Ruins of London"
Birmingham Post:—German prisoners, buoyed up by the airy insinuation of the Wolfenstein, are daily disillusioned. It seems, when they find that London still stands where it did. Two or three days ago a wounded officer arrived at Charing Cross, manifestly cheered by the prospect of seeing London largely in ruins. His first disillusion was at the terminus itself, which he had been told was a shapeless mass; and as he passed through Trafalgar Square and towards the West End, his English guard, in answer to repeated questionings, pointed to buildings after building which the unassuming Wolf had seemed to be destroyed, and towards the West End, his English guard, in answer to repeated questionings, pointed to buildings after building which the unassuming Wolf had seemed to be destroyed, and towards the West End, his English guard, in answer to repeated questionings, pointed to buildings after building which the unassuming Wolf had seemed to be destroyed.

When Peace Will Come
The Outlook (New York)—Two weeks after the outbreak of the war The Outlook said: "We believe with Hegel that God has a plan and that history is nothing but the working out of his plan in human affairs. And we believe that the Austrian Prime Minister and the German Emperor have made a fatal mistake in leaving this truth out of their reckoning in their endeavor to destroy the great democratic movement in Europe." That faith we repeat. The end of this war will come with the end of militarism, not before. And the end of militarism will come when the German people realize the fatal blunder of the war lords, the falsity of their philosophy, and the futile malice of their purpose. It may come only gradually as the wearing away of the German forces convinces the German people that militarism has failed; it may come suddenly with disaster to German arms so overwhelming that no explanation can destroy its effect on the mind of the German people. But it will come in Germany, as it came in our own country, when the ambitious hopes of the leaders are destroyed and the people awake to the truth.

At Lottville, Pa., Charles Hill shot and killed himself at his home, after setting the place on fire.

CANADA'S REVENUE

By Courier Lensed Wire.

Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 6.—Canada's revenue for the first five months of the fiscal year aggregates $84,000,000 as compared with $60,000,000 in the same period of last year.

Expenditures on ordinary public works is down by $2,000,000, and on capital account $500,000. Capital outlay on railways declined by $5,000,000. To this extent the heavier war and pension expenditure will be offset. The revenue is so far in favor of Hon. Mr. White's budget forecast.

A police guard was necessary at a Trenton child's funeral because of religious differences of the parents.
