The high water mark in the development in sine mining and refining in Japan has been reached since the in Japan has been reached since the outbreak of the present war. Zinc was first mined in a commercial way in 1897, but even as late as 1911 the output was only about 10,000 tons. The refining of the ores was not started on a large scale until 1914. The rising quotations of the metal in all markets gave the industry great impetus in Japan, so that in 1915, 45,000 tons were produced. It is estimated that the production in 1917 totaled some 65,000 tons. It is said that the refineries can produce as high as 100,000 tons a year, but as this takes some 250,000 tons of sinc ore, the problem before Japan is to obtain 200,000 tons of ore in foreign markets, as only 50,000 tons were mined in Japan. In the past Japan has bought ore from China, Australia and Russis, the greater part of the ore, however, coming from Australia.

Some people have no luck. Ther is the Tzar of Bulgaria, for instance who long ago purchased a beautifu-crown from a Brussels jeweler, bu rown from a Brussels Jeweier, the never yet has been able to eave to be crowned, and now the re talking rudely about his abdition. It is like this: Sixteen ye tion. It is like this: Sixteen years ago, when the crown was sent home from the jeweler's, Ferdinand announced that he was no longer a prince but a king. Bulgaria, however, had not been giving satisfaction in St. Petersburg, and so the news was conveyed to Ferdinand that Russia was not acknowledging new kings that year. Then, in 1908, he got a beautiful proclamation out, only to hear from Vienna that 1908 was not a good year for new monarchs. Leter on he brought the matter up again, only to have it whispered by the Bulgarian Exarch that when it came to crowning people haratios were barred, and so Ferdie," as Mr. Punch affectionately calls him, remains, like Mr. Parnell—an unarowned king.
