Nov. 7—A row of four hundred soldiers, on St. John Street, opened into a riot. Iron bars, every weapon except a rifle, were brought to the scene and caused a riot call. At least a hundred pickets for some time were arrested.

For some time the 171st Overseas Battalion had resentment against military pickets for their actions. Stores and shops were rushed and badly damaged by the riot after an hour's fighting. Arrested.

OLD BAY OF FUNDY MASTER COMES BACK

Over thirty years ago, Capt. John Cook was one of the veteran shipmasters sailing out of the Bay of Fundy. Around the Horn and the Cape of Good Hope, through the Bay of Biscay and down into the Mediterranean the staunch ships he commanded found their way. In the barks Conductor and Recovery he made some record trans-atlantic runs and finally he thought he was tired of the sea and in 1886 decided that he had his share of sea-faring life, so he quit in favor of younger men and settled down in a cosy home in Harborville, Kings County.

Once since that time he took a little voyage, but for the most he stayed ashore, occasionally amusing himself with a sail or motor boat. Then came the war, and the mines and the submarines and all the excitement and chance for adventure that has been on the sea for the past two years and more. Sailing vessels came into their own again and the windjammers were called upon to freight stuff across and the war zone. Day after Capt. Cook passed the wharf at snug little harbor near his home and ever he was looking down the bay to where it opens out into the wide Atlantic. Across the water at Port Greville a splendid big schooner was building. Finally she was launched, christened the Ada Tower and chartered for a run to the United Kingdom with lumber. The owners wanted a man accustomed to the deep, offshore sea and they sent out a call. Although away past the allotted three-score years and ten Capt. Cook's hearing was not affected; he heard and answered that call right gladly and full happiness came to him as he trod the new ship's quarter deck and gave orders to keep her well off to the northward of Isle au Haut. In eighteen days he had her to Queenstown "for orders" and the owners were delighted. They called him to proceed to Glasgow, and inside of a week there flashed under the ocean bed "Arried." She will soon be ready to return and the younger captains out of the bay are wondering what new kind of record the old veteran will open up.

LAURIER—NEVER AGAIN

The Canadian people are being informed by Liberal politicians and by the Liberal press, that there is to be immediately a general election, and that the true hope of the future is the Liberal party. With a delicacy born of discretion they omit to mention that the Liberal party means Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Why are they sensitive on the subject of Laurier? It is because they realize that the continuance of the Laurier leadership is an affront to all that is best in Liberalism. Fetish worship is losing its hold. Canadians are looking for real things in these grave times. A plume carried about on a pole no longer commands the obedience and docile submission of a people whose eyes have been opened in a tremendous trial. In a crisis which has called for virile Canadianism, what has Sir Wilfrid Laurier done? He has reaffirmed his position as a pacifist. He has chattered of militarism, of some mysterious menace of militarism to be fought and subdued when the war is over. He has urged that the Germans, who have slain so many thousands of Canadians—sometimes with torture—he treated gently when the war is over. And he has refused to play an active part or any part, in the call which is being made to the manhood of Canada for the winning of the war.

A Premium on Slackers

In refusing to aid in that call, he has given open encouragement to a section of Canada which has stood aloof in this war. Is that what he intended? At a time when all true Canadians are engaged in war upon the country's enemies, either in the army or in work at home, this man comes forward with warnings against military preparedness and with kind words for an enemy who has violated every law of God or man, an enemy who has made war upon the helpless and the innocent, who has slaughtered and pillaged and burned, who has committed, deliberately, atrocities more horrible than those practised by North American Indians. And this man seeks to be Prime Minister of Canada, to secure that office by a system of insidious warfare against a Government which is prosecuting the war vigorously and well. And he calls himself a British Liberal.

What Sir Wilfrid Forgets

The thing is unthinkable. Canada is far too earnestly engaged in the war to permit a betrayal of that kind. Sir Wilfrid Laurier forgets the thousands of homes in Canada which have become places of mourning because of this war for which he would not allow the country to prepare. There are too many desolate hearths, too many empty chairs, too many wounded hearts in Canada, to let this thing succeed. There are too many graves out there in Picardy and Flanders to make it possible.
