A SIGNIFICANT VISIT.

new epoch in imperial politics. Never before has a cabinet minister crossed the ocean during the period of office-holding to visit one of the colonies. Yet Mr. Chambylain proposes to inaugurate this new custom at a time when his government will be exposed to fierce attacks on account of its education bill, and cate that the situation in Cape Col- general feeling on the part of the ony, the Transvaal and the Orange people. River Colony is of a very grave nature, and calls for the personal investigation of the problems agitating the rival parties there. That the visit of the Coloniat Secretary will wave of Imperial sen iment which. will have a momentous influence in healing the wounds that irritate the Dujch and their loyal rivals.

The visit, and the hint that it is onial affairs on the part of imperial statesmen and the population of the Motherland. The Colonial troops were eager to fight the battles of the Empire. They astounded the people of the old land by their heade bravery, their intelligence and by their intense loyalty. It was seen that the colonial, troops would be a powerful factor, which it would be suicidal to overlook in case of war with one of the great powers. The colonial premiers held their conference in old London, and now the Colonial Secretary announces his fintention-approved by the King-of visiting the colonies and studying on the spot the various problems

The result of these visits will be seen in an increased flow of British capital and British brawn and musele into Greater Britain, and in a more intelligent and sympathetic treatment of colonial views "at home." The new century promises great things in the way of the consolidation of British power. So

EDWARD BLAKE SPEAKS.

Hon. Edward Blake, M. P. for South Longford, and who is so well-onown in this city and throughout Canada, spoke in Boston the other night at a meeting of the United Irish League. Mr. Blake being an acknowledged loyal subject, his words are of intense interest to all who have the good of the Empire at heart. Among other things, Mr. Blake said: "In Ireland to-day, instead of an independent bar, with honorable aspirations to seats on the bench which it may nourish and maintain, taking an honorable part in politics, you have a bar bribed from the time a man aspires to become a barrister at all, bribed by an excessive number of scandalously overpaid judgeships and other officers, judgeships in which the judges with very light work and with an absolutely secure tenure and with a large retirement allowance as soon as infirmity suceeds, getting a larger salary than the best of them can earn by labors at the bar.

"In Ireland there is such a condition as does not obtain anywhere else in the world. What is the road to the bench and to the law offices in Ireland? The road to the bench or to the law offices is the road of abnegation of national aspirations, the road is the road of maintaining the so-called union, the road is the road for those who were born under circumstances and of parents and in a class which might have rightly ties of leadership. Mr. Borden is succeeding in impressing sections of the country he visited with his worth, his unimpeachable honor, and the soundness of his views.

He has recently returned from the West. Previous to going, he was challenged by the Ministerialists to enunciate the tariff views there which his followers in the east, hold and advocate. To his credit he nailed the flag of Protection to the mast and throughout his journey appealed for support on that policy.
