BUSINESS PRINCIPLES

Which Rev. Mr. Crossley Says Should Guide all Men.

He lays Down Twelve of them—The 61st attended meetings yet held.

At yesterday morning's service in Park St. Church the rite of baptism was administered to over 25 persons. Revs. Crossley, Hunter, Locke and Hannon officiating. The two Methodist pastors and the evangelists afterwards received nearly 150 people into church membership. Miss Idle sang "The Palmers" in a splendid manner, in fact, faultlessly.

"Saved by Grace," as sung by Mr. Crossley, impressed all present. The attendance was very large.

In the afternoon the church contained the largest crowd of people since the present series of services began, seats, aisles, steps and pulpit being crowded to their utmost capacity.

In the centre seats sat a large representation of various benevolent societies, and many badged breasts were noticed scattered through other parts of the church. Mr. Crossley sang "The Village Blacksmith," and afterwards preached from John 7th chapter and 17th verse, and said all benevolent societies are founded on the Bible. The Christian church may be rightly called a divine secret society with the Bible for its constitution and Jesus Christ as Worshipful Master. The church's password is Hallelujah and the counter sign Amen.

These words have no equivalent in other tongues, they are the same in all languages. Its "signs" are discernable in the members' faces. There is no difficulty in telling a Christian by his countenance. The "badge" is "love," exhibited in the words and life. There are several degrees as we go on to perfection. No blackballing no matter how bad you are as long as you have the "love" of repentance. Mr. Crossley warned the several societies to avoid lodge duties and meetings interfering with the church, and admonished them to live up to the principles taught by each and every one—morality, honesty and truth.

The essential principles of the great order of Christianity are faith in the fatherhood of God, the brotherhood of man. Anyone may know if they are a brotherhood or not, because "if any man will do His will he may know of the doctrine. Mr. Hunter gave three rules which every man should follow.

First, make your peace with God; the first great question of life.

Second, give your life to God. You owe it to your family to guard against their being left destitute at your death.

Third, make your will. Don't leave everything to your boys. If they are any good, after they have received an education they won't need your money, and if they are no good your money will be a curse to them.

IN THE EVENING.

There was, if possible, more people present than in the afternoon. The choir sang "It came upon the midnight clear," by Sir Arthur Sullivan, obligato solo, by Miss Idle. The anthem was exceedingly well rendered, and Mr. Hunter asked as a favor to him that he repeated at the farwell service on Friday evening. Mr. Crossley sang "Eternal Rest."

Mr. Hunter took as his text the 10th verse of the 28th chapter of Genesis, and Mr. Crossley spoke of twelve practical business principles which should guide all men.

First, have a trade or profession; a means whereby you may be independent of others for your food, raiment, and dwelling.

Second, do not merge your manhood into your business; trade, or profession. Some are born men but die lawyers, bakers, doctors, or blacksmiths.

Third, do not confound hypocrisy with Christianity. It is stupid as well as wicked to call that crooked which shows something else to be so.

Fourth, don't separate honesty and morality from Christianity. If God forgives your sins it does not follow that you need not pay your fellow man what you owe him.

Fifth, don't identify honesty or morality with Christianity. A man may pay every cent he owes and yet if he does not pay God the love, devotion, reverence and trust he owes Him, that man is dishonest.

Sixth, don't separate business from religion. Christianity is not a department of life, it is all of life; whatever you do, do it to the glory of God.

Seventh, don't allow the inconsistencies of church members to keep you away from God. There are quick doctors and stilted lawyers, even preachers who have not been what they should, still we have good men and true entering those professions and calling.

Eighth, take stock, examine yourself and see if you have saving faith.

Ninth, be insured. When people are hurried out the first question they ask is, what insurance had they? and when he died, was he a Christian? Be insured for time and eternity.

Tenth, don't fail to enter into partnership with God, and put all you possess into the partnership.

Eleventh, don't think that you cannot attain the highest success and be a Christian by so doing you surrender your fellow creatures and rebel God.

Twelfth, don't build your hopes on good intentions, while you neglect present decisions, the future is uncertain, and besides what reason can you give for delaying, there are none.

A large number held up their hands for prayer and other signified their intention of living the Christian life.

Every rose is an autograph from the hand of the Almighty God on this world about us. He has inscribed His thoughts in the marvellous hieroglyphics, which sense and science have been these many thousand years seeking to understand.

In prayer it would be far better that our heart be without words than our words be without heart.

BRAIN FOOD

Is of Little Benefit Unless It is Digested.

Nearly everyone will admit that as a nation we eat too much meat and too little of vegetables and the grains.

For business men, office men, and clerk, and in fact everyone engaged in sedentary or indoor occupations, grains, milk and vegetables are much more healthful.

Only men engaged in a severe outdoor manual labor can live on a heavy diet and continue in health.

As a general rule, but once a day is sufficient for all classes of men, women and children, and grains, fruits and vegetables should constitute the bulk of food eaten.

But many of the most nutritious foods are difficult of digestion and it is of no use to advise brain workers to eat largely of grains and vegetables where the digestion is too weak to assimilate them properly.

It is always best to get the best results from our food that some simple and harmless digestive should be taken after meals to assist the relaxed digestive organs, and several years' experience have proven Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets to be a very safe, pleasant and effective digestive and a remedy which may be taken daily with the best results.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets can hardly be called a patent medicine, as they do not act on the bowels nor any particular organ, but only on the food eaten. They supply what weak stomachs lack, pepsin diastase and by stimulating the gastric glands increase the natural secretion of hydrochloric acid.

People who make a daily practice of taking one or two of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal are sure to have perfect digestion which means perfect health.

There is no danger of forming an injurious habit as the tablets contain absolutely nothing but natural digestives; cocaine, morphine and similar drugs have no place in a stomach medicine and Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are certainly not known as the most popular of all stomach remedies.

Ask your druggist for a fifty cent package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and after a week's use note the improvement in health, appetite and nervous energy.

LITERARY NOTES.

McCLURE'S MAGAZINE FOR APRIL.

Two of the special articles in the April number of McClure's Magazine are very fitting to this season when the new life of nature in the spring draws our thoughts from cities, merchandise, and men to field and woods.

The first of these is a wonder story of the beaver, written by William Davenport Hulbert after a long study of the animal in its home amid the wilds. The author's account is made complete by a series of pictures drawn by A. Radcliffe Lurgore, an artist sent into the beaver country for this purpose by the magazine.

The second article is by Martha McCulloch Williams, and in it she gives us a geologic on "Ploughing." The reader is borne by the magic of her sympathetic art into a day's life on the farm, with scent of clover, song of birds, glint of sun, and sweet smell of fresh furrows. The illustrations of the article are as delightful as they are distinctive.

More Grand and More Central.

The New York Times, in a leading editorial last month, discussing the hotels, the clubs and some public buildings, in relation to their propinquity to the city's centre, said: "The Grand Central Station has come, in the process of the years, to be both more 'Grand' and more 'Central' than when it was originally built."

Yes, Commodore Vanderbilt, the founder of the famous house, had a long life. When he projected the "Grand Central Station," he did not plan for a day, but for a long time ahead, for a century more or less, and his worthy successors, by enlarging and remodeling the building, have kept the station "grand" and up-to-date. The Times knows a good thing when it sees it.—From the Home Journal, New York.

The Good

Fitting is really your sole care in buying our Clothing, you must judge of that—and the pattern of the goods of course. Look after these and you've done enough to warrant you perfect satisfaction.

Everything else—quality, manufacture, price—is our responsibility.

The tendency of our methods is to make the getting of proper Clothing easier and easier for you. On our part we watch all around—for things you must decide about and the things we must stand good to you for—buy the cloth and examine, mark the prices and guard against being undersold. We never are. We'd know it in an hour or two if we were.
