MAKING A CURRENCY ELASTIC

President Wilson and his compact following in Congress have achieved another triumph in the passage of the Currency Bill, declares the Montreal Star. While his measure is not quite what the Administration first proposed, it is practically the same in principle, and will undoubtedly strengthen the American currency system at one of its weakest points—a lack of elasticity.

The good will of the bankers has been won by this new measure. There was a time when Mr. Bryan might have regarded this as a poor compliment; but he seems to have learned a number of things, beside how to mix and muddle his drinks, since "Professor" Wilson undertook his education.

The good-will of the bankers will endure the smooth adaptation of the new system of old conditions. They propose to try to work it; and that must mean much as a guarantee of its practicability. As for its ability to cure the ills complained of, that is the business of the reformers who framed it; and they seem entirely certain that it is the remedy they require.

A MONUMENT TO UNIONISM

That labor Unionism does not stand solely for a struggle for shorter hours and greater remuneration, is strikingly demonstrated by a booklet issued by the International Typographical Union on the Union Printers' Home.

While the purpose of the home is to take care of aged members of the organization, it is particularly designed to treat and care for patients suffering from tuberculosis. In this respect it stands absolutely among the greatest and best equipped institutions on the continent.

Tuberculosis, failing eyesight and other troubles incident to the nature of their work have been recognized as the printer's physical enemies. Conditions are in many cases improving through co-operation between employers and employees, the former providing better light, better ventilation and better equipment of factory, and the latter a better day's work.

CANADA'S OUTLOOK

In its annual special number, the Monetary Times has taken the trouble to collect the opinions of the premiers of the several provinces of Canada on the commercial outlook.

First, we may turn to the Maritime Provinces. Premier Murray, of Nova Scotia, says that in that province the financial stringency has not largely affected the volume of mercantile business. Recent changes in the American tariff, he thinks, will assist in the development of the province.

Premier Gouin, of Quebec, says the onward march of progress and prosperity in that province has continued throughout 1913, with unabated vigor.

From the central provinces we pass to the west. Premier Roblin, of Manitoba, says the year has been one of steady and satisfactory progress. Immigration has continued. Farm improvements excite admiration. "Manitoba is much stronger financially, numerically, commercially, industrially and educationally, than it was in the year 1912. Here progress and development are as rapid as they could be and be healthy and permanent."

ZAPATA'S DIBE THREATS

It would appear that the Mexican rebels are becoming just as tired as the outside world with the indecisiveness of the struggles up to date, and that they are preparing to deliver a death blow.

Probably Zapata would not shrink from carrying out these threats if he were in a position to do so. If he should be able to make an attack upon Mexico City, as he announces, there is no doubt that his blood-curdling proclamation might have some effect upon the more timidous of the inhabitants, and might cause a wholesale desertion of Huerta at a critical moment.

Judging by the way President Wilson is able to secure legislation at Washington, "Uncle" Joe Cannon was right when he said the president was the greatest autocrat of the age.

STREET CORNERS

At this season of good resolutions, with all the hopes that come in their train, the utmost encouragement should be given to those who turn over a new leaf.

When it comes to literal tripping, a warning must be given of a certain corner around which for many hours out of the twenty-four many people pass, and sometimes with disastrous consequences.

It may be said that it is one of the many corners in Brandon that has a special fascination of its own; it is a frequent meeting place for the society of friends.

Around that corner, too, though a little further off, by the standards, interesting peace conferences and parliaments take place, where local doings sometimes in trade or finance are discussed.

The building at the corner is one of the land marks in Brandon, and has a special attraction of its own, chiefly in connection with red-covered, (and other covered) books. The southeast corner of Ross and Tenth is a very popular one.

Just around this point is one of the most slippery spots in the city, barring the trunks. This is to be taken literally, and every day there are such unexpected slips and slides, such efforts by individuals who just save themselves from sliding off somewhere, and now and then real tumbles, that pedestrians would be glad if they might get around with more safety than at present.

No wonder a ring was lost in that vicinity; many a balance, too, has been lost there, and not merely a bank balance either.

Within the last few days a friendly visitor was going down Tenth street a good deal to the southerly end, and, fortunately, far away from the slippery corner.

And till that time comes it would be all the better walking if the snow were allowed to remain trodden hard on the sidewalks instead of being scraped off.

AT THE SIGN OF THE PASTE POT

Home is the place where character is formed, where education goes on, and where people are impressed for time and fitted for eternity. It is a place to be happy in, to grow in and start out from, for all good, honest and earnest living.

SIGHTS IN CHINATOWN

The Chinese Lend a Picturesque Touch to Vancouver Streets

It is hard to tell whether the Chinese and Japanese settlers that are so numerous on the Pacific coast should be called Westerners or Easterners, but they claim the latter term themselves. You meet them in Vancouver wherever you go, said a visitor to British Columbia.

ONE CAUSE OF FOREST FIRES

Empty Glass Bottles Focus Sun's Rays and Ignite Leaves

Governmental authorities are always anxious to find out the causes of forest fires, since Canada has suffered severely in this respect in recent years. According to some theories, the cause is very often empty glass bottles.

THE ART OF LIVING

Many people never learn the art of living because they never see the relative importance of duties, opportunities and interests, and never discriminate between the things on which they ought to throw the full weight of their energy and those which they ought to touch lightly in passing.

The Country of Vineyards

France is the greatest wine-producing country in the world; but its vineyards are slowly declining. None the less, no fewer than a million and a half Frenchmen still are proprietors of vineyards, and between them they own well over 4,000,000 acres.

SHOT WIFE'S LOVER

Bordeaux, Jan. 3—An incident real life worthy of Balzac has occurred here. A husband who suspected his wife's fidelity pretended to go fishing, but returned suddenly and retired with his wife, taking a loaded gun with him. Suddenly there came a tap at the window. The husband insisted that his wife should open it, and as she did so he shot her lover dead.

ENVER BEY SHOT

Berlin, Jan. 3.—The "Schlesische Zeitung's" Constantinople correspondent says that Enver Bey, the hero of the Young Turk revolution, has come to Berlin to undergo an operation necessitated by a bullet wound inflicted on him by General Abuk Pasha in a quarrel at Adrianople.

BEST LINIMENT OF ALL DESTROYS EVERY PAIN BUT NEVER BURNS

"How thankful we are to get hold of such a wonderful household remedy as 'Nerviline,'" writes Mrs. E. P. Lamontagne from her home near Wetaskiwin, Alberta. "In this far-away section, far away from a doctor or druggist, every family needs a good supply of liniment. Nerviline is the best of all. It destroys every pain, but never burns. We use Nerviline in a score of ways. If it's rheumatism, aching back, pain in the side, sciatica or stiff neck, you can laugh at them if you have lots of Nerviline handy. For earache, toothache or cramps I don't think anything could act more quickly. For a general all-round pain remedy I can think of nothing more valuable and speedy to cure than Nerviline."

the error which is the beginning of a reformation in one who was all but hopelessly lost. There is no maudlin sentiment in this picture but it has a marvelous human appeal that will stir you heart and soul. You will look at "The Road to the Dawn" with absorbing attention. Recent pictures of England's King and the army manoeuvres at Liverpool will be of much interest to old country men and Canadians alike.

The appearance here of the Salambe at the Sherman for three days, commencing next Monday, is creating quite a sensation among the theatregoers in the city. This act is without doubt one of the most wonderful sensations ever brought to Brandon. It was the leading feature at the Drury Lane Theatre, London, for two seasons—a guarantee that it is out of the ordinary. The act is based on the arts of the Promenians and is presented with elaborate stage settings, original scenery and novel devices. Three other acts as usual will also be on the program: Elkin Fay and Elkin, in a lively combination of music and comedy; Irene May, a dainty entertainer; Marcus and Whittell, original people in good clean comedy; four reels of the best pictures and newest popular music by the Sherman orchestra.

Through a mistake, "The Open Door," which was billed for last Wednesday, was not shown but will appear next Monday and Tuesday and, as the story has already been published, it will not be necessary to repeat it. Another splendid K. B. drama for these two days is "The Harvest of Sin." Jin Neal is a rough character who kept a saloon in a Western settlement, selling liquor to the cowboys and the Indians. His "halfway house" is the center of many drunken brawls and raids—and the minister, a fine western type, tries his best to rouse Neal to the evil he is working in the community—especially for the sake of his wife and little girl, Mary. At last, a fight in the plate ends with Neal shooting a man and the settlers, in revenge, wreck the place. Neal flees for his life. Meanwhile the Indians, their wrongs greatly exaggerated by the firewater—go on the war path. They meet Mrs. Neal, escaping with little Mary to her sister's, and make her prisoner. The child, however, at her mother's command, hides in the bushes, just before the Indians reach them. Neal is killed in the Indian raid—the minister saves the child, and in vanquishing the red men, the settlers restore Mrs. Neal to her little girl. Neal's body is found among the rocks, a note clutched in the stiff hand; "I have reaped the harvest of sin. God bless my wife, and baby Mary."

The above letter is convincing—it tells how reliable and trusty this old-time remedy is. 'Nerviline' for forty years has been a household word in Canada. Scarcely a home in Canada you can find without 'Nerviline.' Every community has its living examples of the wonderful curative properties of 'Nerviline' which will cure pains and aches anywhere in the joints or muscles. It's penetrating, soothing, warming and safe for young and old to use. Get the large 50c. family size bottle; it's the most economical. Small trial size 25c. at any dealer's anywhere.
