Father Forced to See Baby Crushed.

C.P.E. MAN'S BITTER DILEMMA—SAVED BOY.

KALADAR STATION, Ont.—(A.P.)

Three year old Carolyn Noren Spencer was crushed to death and her brother Ronald, miraculously saved, when the express wagon in which the two were playing toppled off the station platform and tossed them under the wheels of a passing freight.

Their father, Roy Spencer, C. P. R. agent here, glanced up from his key in the station window as the train came in from the West and noticed that the children were close to the track. Before he had time to shout a warning the freight came opposite the wagon, suddenly caught and turned it sideways, and the children fell under the wheels. In the fraction of a minute left before the wheels would have passed over their bodies he rushed out and, realizing instantly that he would be unable to rescue both, he reached desperately for the boy, who was nearest. One wheel caught the boy's knee as he grasped him, but in spite of this the father was able to drag him out to safety.

His daughter was crushed to death before his eyes just a few inches beyond his reach.

Spencer, who has only been in Kaladar a short time, comes from Wallaceburg, Ont.

Keep your face towards the sunshine, and the shadows will fall behind you.

A woman is never so disappointed as when she orders a man to behave and—he obeys.

There are few women who can understand why, if they want a thing, they shouldn't have it.

A smoking room for nurses was recently proposed by a member of the Portsmouth Infirmary Committee.

Towels and table-cloths, as well as silver, are "collected" as souvenirs by visitors staying at our big hotels.

They not only test the fibre of character, but strengthen it. Every conquered temptation represents a new fund of moral energy. Every trial endured, if weathered in the right spirit, makes a soul nobler and stronger than it was before.

We often falter in our task of happiness either by cowardice or hypocrisy. True love of honor, unrighteousness of character, and a steadfast faith in God, are far more valuable treasures than riches. If men were to strive more earnestly to try and lead good Christian lives, by the observance of the Divine Law, they would find a panacea for all their ills, and the world would be much safer in every way than it is to-day.

"The laws that He made He was first to obey them."

The counsels He gave were both simple and true—

His legions of soldiers, were He to array them

Would fill the vast space in your concave of blue;

He came down on earth for that glorious strife,

To give man a new birth and Eternity's life."

To Watch Speeders.

Motor Cycle Police to Make Drivers Respect the Law.

The Quebec Government is determined to stop speeding on the provincial highways, both in the interest of the roads and of safety. The wild speed does harm to the surface and also is responsible for the numerous accidents. Hon. Mr. Perron has time and again warned and appealed to automobile drivers to respect the laws, and the majority no doubt have given heed to the urgings. There is a minority of drivers, however, who care nothing for the regulations and who turn a deaf ear to all the appeals and warnings. These gentlemen are to be dealt with summarily, and to catch them hotfoot, as it were, a special squad of provincial motorcycle men has been appointed by the department of Hon. Jacob Nicol, provincial treasurer, for the enforcement of the motor vehicle speed restrictions. Ten motor vehicle police are already being trained and these will be stationed on the main and national highway. Their particular task will be to regulate the great and growing tourist traffic in particular, to instruct the drivers as to the Quebec laws, and to curb the gentry who refuse to take the hints. The presence of these men on the roads will have the desired effect, without a doubt.—Review.

must admit for a teacher to perform. On account of his constant cheerfulness, and his affectionate ways, he was called, "Daddy." On one occasion, as he was giving his lesson, a staid student happened to sneer and laugh. In a very nice way the professor said, "Well, I'm getting old. Old age does not appeal to some." The culprit blushed, held his head down, and felt ashamed of himself. When the lesson was over, he proved himself a gentleman by apologizing for his conduct. Assisting at a re-union in the college theatre one Sunday evening, an American clergyman, a former student of the college, was asked to speak. "I am glad," he said, "to pay a visit to my Alma Mater. I see here my old professor, and he's the same old "Daddy." Now students, we did not call him that as a nick-name. No, we called him "Daddy" on account of his fatherly affection and loving disposition. Needless to say, the students loudly applauded the kindly reference to the cheerfulness and patient professor, who blushed greatly at the speaker's remarks.

The satisfaction you get out of doing good work will be multiplied if you know that, in doing it, you are contributing to the comfort or welfare or happiness of another soul.

Wallace Bruce says: "I am beginning to suspect that all the world are partners, whatever their creed or sect,

That life is a kind of pilgrimage—sort of Jericho road. And kindness to one's fellows is the sweetest law in the code."

The want of charity, in word and deed, recalls these lines:—The world is bad enough we own, And many need more light; Yet, with true love to all, may we Help in the cause of right. Lift up the sinful and the weak, The soul by care perplexed; Well knowing that to drink the gall, It may be your turn next."

Happiness, the greatest of all treasures here below, comes to those whose conscience is at rest with God and man—the fruit of duty well and carefully done.

Buckingham says: "Trials, temptations, disappointments, all these are helps instead of hindrances, if one uses them rightly.
