To the Editor of the ADVERTISER:

I rent a house by the month, rent due on 20th of month (nothing said about notice).

When about to leave give notice on 18th, and agree to stay to the 1st, if it would advantage the landlord, who said it might.

I leave before 1st, and offer pay to the 1st and deliver up the key before the 1st.

Landlord refused the money and claims one month's rent, keeps the key. Query—Can he collect the rent while holding the key?

What is the penalty for selling milk by a small measure, and how would I take steps to prosecute? Answer in daily and oblige

Yours truly, J. Brown.

Leamington, May 16.

[Note—The landlord is entitled to one month's rent unless he rents or occupies the house and premises before the 20th of the next month. The penalty for selling by unlawful measure is a sum not exceeding $20, to be recovered by summary proceedings before a justice of the peace under the provisions of the "Weights and Measures Act," Revised Statutes of Canada, chap. 104.

Frank Brown Says Dodd's Kidney Pills

Give Universal Satisfaction—The Reason is They Never Fail to Cure.

SHELBURNE, May 14.—Frank Brown, the well-known druggist here, says, "In the past eighteen months I have sold 110 dozen of Dodd's Kidney Pills. Considering the quantity I have sold, I have had an opportunity of ascertaining whether the pills give satisfaction or not. I can say that during my fifteen years' experience in the drug business I never sold a medicine that gives the universal satisfaction that Dodd's Kidney Pills do. I am satisfied any person suffering with kidney trouble only requires to give Dodd's Kidney Pills a fair trial, and he will be convinced of their wonderful curative properties.

Crab-Like Progress

Made by the Government on the Tariff Schedule.

The Minister of Finance Goes Back on

His Own Arguments and the Illustrations He Used to Strengthen

Them.

[Special to the ADVERTISER.]

OTTAWA, May 18.—Lady Aberdeen graced the floor of the House of Commons this afternoon during a portion of the proceedings, and at 6 o'clock held a little levee, shaking hands with some of the Ministers,

Mr. Laurier and others.

The Government bill amending the Insurance Act was read the second time and referred to the committee on banking and commerce. This is a measure of great importance, although little notice has so far been taken of it, owing to the fact that it originated in the Senate. The committee will probably be waited on by representative insurance men.

On the motion to go into committee on the tariff resolutions Mr. Paterson, of Brant, deplored the delay on the part of the Government in getting the tariff into shape. He quoted Col. Tisdale as urging on April 20 that the Opposition should not delay the tariff, and so embarrass the business interests of the country. Mr. Paterson pointed out that the Government since then had balked at the tariff and adjourned early on several occasions because they were not prepared to go on. At every sitting of the committee changes in the tariff had been made and more were to come, and there was dissatisfaction, unknown quantities disturbing business. He wanted it clearly understood where the responsibility rested, and that it was owing to the absence of any stable policy on the part of the Government.

Mr. Foster acknowledged that there had been a disturbance of business, but he claimed it had been a minimum disturbance, and that the delay was due to the long speeches of the Opposition on the budget debate. He did not believe the House should sit until 3 or 4 o'clock in the morning.

Sir Richard Cartwright agreed as to the advisability of not sitting beyond 11 or 12 o'clock at night. He held the Government responsible, however, for not knowing their own minds on the tariff and for making up to date nearly 100 changes from the items of the tariff as first brought down. In nearly every case the Government had gone back on their first and better intentions and were again wallowing in the mire.

Sir John Thompson defended the Government by abusing the Opposition, and evoked the cheers of his followers by these tactics. He dwelt on the hours of adjournment, and described this attack as a sham fight.

Mr. Laurier charged the Premier with avoiding the real issue, which was that the Government had no settled policy, but had been allowing certain interests to dictate changes in scores of items every week. He challenged Mr. Foster to say even now what the tariff was to be.

Sir C. H. Tupper and Hon. David Mills closed the debate which, while short, was animated and well sustained.

The motion to go into committee was then adopted, and the changes in the tariff, of which notice was given last evening, were taken up. On this point Mr. Laurier declared that the Government had no settled policy, and that the tariff was to be changed as the wind blew. He declared that the Government had no settled policy, the wind blew. He declared that the Govern-
