CIRCLING THE GLOBE BY LAND

Railway Will Be Built Some Day-He Does Not Care to Repeat His Journey.

Chicago, Aug. 22.-Harry De Windt, who left Paris to circle the world via the all-land route by Bering Straits, has got as far eastward as this city, and is now at the Auditorium, under the same roof as the Grand Duke Boris, who in San Francisco lately denounced some of De Windt's statements, as rubbish.

Mr. De Windt says he landed at Cape Prince of Wales in Alaska June 19, three months to a day after he left Paris. His railway journey from Paris to Irkutsk, the eastern capital of Siberia, occupied exactly nine days. Thereafter for three months he went northeastward into the long tongue of Siberia that juts into the Pacific, and skirted the Arctic Ocean for hundreds of miles to Bering Straits, which he crossed half by boat and somewhat on De Windt, who had three companions, determined to demonstrate that the proposed Trans-Siberian and Alaskan Railroad was practicable, and that it would be possible to make the jour-ney from Paris to New York by rail if such a line was ever constructed. We have no doubt that the railroad will be constructed sometime, and believe it will not be many years before one may take the trip by rail," said "Ten thousand dollars, however, would not induce me to take the same trip again as we made it.'

ISOLATED. On the Arctic, in extreme Northeast-ern Siberia, De Windt entered a village of exiler who had not seen a white man for thirty years, whose inhabitants were unacquainted with the progress of the world in all that time. That village of Robinson Crusoes welcomed him as a voice from the un-known, and he told them all he could of the world's latest history.

There was a space along the Arctic waste where Mr. De Windt and his companions traveled for three weeks without encountering a soul or seeing a hut. There their sufferings were in tense from cold and hunger. Nights were spent under a canvas tent in a villages." vain attempt to thaw out. There the Vicomte Cluichamp got both his feet frozen. It is a country into which no Russian has ever penetrated, said Mr. De Windt, for the reason that nothing exists to draw them. The savages, who are not Eskimos, but a distinct race, are flerce and hostile. At the end of three weeks the first but they came to was filled with persons dying of adt expresses his gratitu to the Siberian officials. "I owe it to the governor-general of Siberia that I got through at all. He telegraphed ahead, sent messages ahead, and had reindeer, dogs, sleds, provisions and hospitality arranged for us. Indeed, the officials at every point did all they could for us and were courtesy itself. Mr. De Windt estimates the distance he traveled from Paris to Bering Straits as 7,950 miles. After leaving Irkutsk, and before reaching the Arctic, he went through an immense territory, into which the Russians contemplate extending a branch of the Trans-Siberian Railway. "That," said he "constitutes perhaps the richest gold region in the world. It is richer than the Klondike. Americans in Alaska, many of them, asked me if I wouldn't advise them to go over to Siberia and stake out claims. An American or any other foreigner has no show in The mines are here by one millionaire under the Czar, and it is utterly impossible for anyone else to get an opening"

COLDEST TOWN ON EARTH. In speaking of the trip of 2,000 miles to Yakutsk, in horse sleighs, De Windt from the world for 30 years, and has says Yakutsk has the reputation of bethe coldest town on earth, and the liles' lot face to face.

goes on to remark:
"The distance was covered by means of 122 drivers and 732 horses. The total cost for each sleigh was $150." From Yakutsk the travelers' jour-ney took them 700 miles to Verkoyansk, thence northward 1,300 miles to the town of Srednikolynisk. "The sleighs that brought us from Irkutsk were discarded at Yakutsk for small reindeer sleds, about seven feet by three, covered in by canvas and reindeer skins," said Mr. De Windt. "Bear skins formed the beds, and there we lay at full length, day af-ter day, night after night, for the next two months, while a Yakute driver urged on his deer train. Light furs were useless in that region.

IN FROZEN WILDS. "The traveler bound for the Kolyma district must take all his provisions in a frozen state, for food is scarce along that lonely tract of 1,800 miles. The reindeer stations are 150 to 200 miles apart, but shelter huts are located at shorter intervals. These are little houses of wood and water in the form of slabs of ice, but nothing else.
"The stupendous difficulties of that overland journey from Paris to New York can be realized only by those who have encountered them. "From Srednikolvnisk our next dash was 2,000 miles to the shore of Bering Sea, dogs being our motive power. The cold was terrible. At times the thermometer registered 78 degrees below zero, and for 500 miles we did not see a hut.

FOUND ON SIBERIAN COAST. At last the inhospitable seashore was reached, and there the entire party nearly perished from exposure and hunger. They were found at a place called Whadyluk by Capt. Cottle, who supplied them with provisions and offered to take them off in his boat. This offer De Windt declined. After reaching Cape Nome De Windt and his companions went to Seattle, and from there to San Francisco. Twice before De Windt had failed in the effort, once being driven back by unfriendly savage tribes in North-ern Siberla, and once turned back by the war in China.

CLASH WITH DUKE BORIS. In San Francisco Mr. De Windt and Grand Duke Boris clashed. "I made the statement to the reporters," explained the explorer, "that the criminal exiles in Siberia could not be better treated, but that the political ex-iles lived in hell. The grand duke retorted in the newspapers that that was rubbish. Of course, I bow to the grand duke. He no doubt has been in Siberia and has visited a village of political exiles as I have. The duke may have his own ideas of hell, but I would

Harding is with his employer now, but the vicomte embarked at Seattle for Paris, his feet being badly frozen. TWICE FAILED.

In May, 1896, Mr. De Windt started out on his first venture into Siberia. He set out across Canada and British Columbia. From Juneau, on the Alaskan coast, they went to Fort St. Michael, on the Bering Sea. This journey lasted three months, and was one of extreme hardship and exposure. Having crossed the straits success-fuly. De Windt and his companion in-ally landed at Cape Tchaplin, on the Siberian Bering Sea coast. He fell into the hands of Koart, chief of the Tchuktschis. The natives stole his supplies, and after three months of suffering he was rescued by the American whaler Belvidere.

SUMMARY. To sum up: Mr. De Windt took nine days to reach Irkutsk from Paris, about 6,000 miles. He took three months less nine days to travel 1,950 miles, from Irkutsk to and across Bering Straits. Since June 19 he has been traveling down the western coast of North America to San Francisco and Chicago. He has gone where no Cossack dared go, as the Russian officials warned him. He has proved the feasibility of the journey, although not its profit. He has seen a gold country the Russians are working on the sly, has visited people who have been shut off learned the horrors of the political ex-

CARRIED A PISTOL

Robert R. Remington Planned to Kil the Van Alen Family.

New York, Aug. 21. - A Sun special from Newport, R. I., says: A wreath measuring four feet across was sent last night to the undertaker's to be placed on the coffin of Robert R. Remington, who shot himself yesterday at the reading room. It was made of American Beauty roses and lilies of the valley and was tied with white satin ribbon. On a wreath was a sealed envelope with instructions that it was not to be opened.

The wreath and the envelope were sent by Miss Van Alen, whose engagement to marry Remington was broken not long before he shot himself.

Miss Van Alen, it is understood, is nearly prostrated over the affair, and is still confined to her room, attended by a physician. A large number of flowers have been sent to her, but she has denied herself to all callers.

Remington had shown unmistakable signs of an unbalanced mind. Be-cause of this Mr. Van Alen, who with Mrs. William Astor, Miss Van Alen's grandmother, had sanctioned his engagement to Miss Van Alen, insisted that it be broken. This was done, quietly and gradually.

It seriously affected Remington, however, and he wrote numerous letters to Van Alen, his son, James Lawrence Van Alen, and Miss Van Alen, threatening to kill them. Van Alen referred to these when he said, after he was informed of Remington's suicide:

'Better one than three." Remington carried a pistol around all day the day before his suicide in his pocket, and those who saw him say that he appeared to be looking for somebody. He saw none of the Van Alons all day, and some persons think that it was very fortunate that he did not.

The Wonderful Electrical Light Is Said To Be Relieving an Ossified Man.

Detroit, Aug. 22.-X-rays are destroying cancers at the Harper Hospital clinic. One patient has already been discharged, his cancer all gone. ment under the rays, and their cancers are rapidly falling off in much the for destroying cancer will give hope ousands who suffer with the dread malady.

The two men now under treatment visit the hospital daily at noon and for five minutes the violet light is turned upon the cancers. One of the patients is an employe of the Solvay Company. He has a big cancer of the nose that, up to a month ago, was steadily eating up his face. The other man is a farmer with a cancer of the lower lip. Both have been under this treatment about a month.

HOW IT WORKS. In one of two ways the X-rays decancer cells. First the sufferer seats himself directly in front of a Crooks tube in which the X-rays are collected and of the man's face, neck and head is covered by sheets of tinfoil, leaving an opening through which only the cancer shows. The electrical machine is started, a pale violet hue fills the tube and all through the cancer shoot the mysterious X-rays. At the end of five minutes the attendant shuts off the switch and the daily treatment is over. In medical terms, the X-rays stimulate the vital processes of repair, and eliminate the waste products.

AS A MASSAGEUR. Another remarkable use is being made of the Harper Hospital X-rays apparatus. It is doing the work of a massageur, and far more effectively. massageur, and far more effectively. There is a young man from out in the country who is afflicted with a rare disease known as sclera-derma, or hard skin. When he came to the hospital his face, neck, arms and body were hard as wood and the affliction was extending down into his lower limbs. In time the patient would have become completely ossified. Only a few cases of the sort are on record, and cure is rare. The skin hardens up like dry leather, and so firmly encases the muscles within that they become useless. The whole body is just as though it were tightly bandaged, and muscles waste away.

The patient was unable to produce even a smile, so rigid had he become, As an experiment, in addition to regular massage, the X-rays were ployed. Each day the hard-skinned man stiffly hobbles down to the electrical room, his board-like face stretches a little-the wasting muscles are trying to smile-the doctors feel of his neck and face and examine his body to note progress, and then he is seated in front of the X-ray machine. The rays are shot through his whole body, neck, face, arms and trunk. It is almost beyond belief, but yesterday the man actually cracked a smile. His malady is being overcome by the strange properties of the X-rays. Anyone troubled with boils, pimples, burns, bruises, sprains, stiff joints, rashes, festering sores or any chronic or malignant skin disease, should use Burdock Blood Bitters, externally, and take internally. It will cure where
