

THE 24TH OF MAY IN MONTREAL.

Preparations for the "Peaceful" Invasion of Canada. How Chaplain Becher and his Merry Men Propose to Astonish the Land of Lorne.

Rev. Mr. Becher has done many benevolent deeds in the course of his eventful life, but it may safely be asserted that he never suggested or accomplished a more startling plan than that of parading a Yankee regiment in the streets of Montreal, flaunting the Stars and Stripes in that ancient city on the day of the anniversary of the birth of Her Majesty the Queen.

"What inducement was offered him to go?" "Why, he is the regimental chaplain and is as enthusiastic as any boy you ever saw."

"What is the programme, so far as arranged?" "The regiment is ordered to meet in the armory on Thursday, the 22nd, with one day's rations. It will take the cars at the Central Depot at 10 a. m., and make the time to Springfield in three hours and a half."

"Why doesn't Mr. Becher go on with them from the start?" "Well, the chaplain thought that he would rather take the first part of the spree quietly, and so he goes on ahead, but only so far as St. Albans. It will be something to see the boys cheer him when he looms up at that point."

"Is the Montreal demonstration to be on Friday?" "Oh, no. The regiment will be met by the Montreal volunteers, who will take their guests by rail to Lachine, memorable in sporting annals as the scene of Hanlan's contest with Courtney. There a steamer is chartered to give them all a trip over the Lachine rapids in the St. Lawrence."

"Well, the 'then' somewhat depends on circumstances, but the plan now is to go straight back to Montreal, where they will be met and escorted to their quarters in the Rink. A grand collation will be served there, and afterward the Thirteenth will be dismissed until ten o'clock the next day, Saturday."

"That is the great day, is it not?" "Yes, and that day is great, too. At ten o'clock the regiment will form for parade; then, in company with the Canadian volunteers, will march to the park for dress parade and review by the Marquis of Lorne, Princess Louise, and all the lum tummers of the Dominion. They are to give royal salutes and in every way participate in the loyal rejoicings."

"Will he preach?" "Will, I rather guess he'll preach. On Sunday at 10 o'clock, the regiment will be marched to church, escorted by their hosts, and the regimental chaplain, in his regimental coat and trousers, will conduct the services."

"Don't you suppose there will be some trouble in getting your stuff to Delagoa Bay?" "I think not," said the Major. "I have a lot of rifles, better, I believe, than the boasted Martini-Heenrys of the British army."

Preparations for Mr. James Gordon Bennett's Arctic Expedition

Preparations for Mr. James Gordon Bennett's Arctic expedition are so far completed, that the yacht "Jeanette" will sail from San Francisco by June 1. Mr. Bennett provides the vessel and everything necessary except the crew, which is selected from the U. S. navy, and will be paid by the Government.

One of the first persons to run down the gang plank of the steamship Britannic on her arrival at this port a little over a week ago was a stout-built middle-aged gentleman, who, having built his baggage, was soon clear of the Custom House inspectors and free to enter New York.

"Major William Tuxen, Berlin." An hour later he was eating a dinner, he said, was the best partaken of since he left America, a dozen years ago. Later he entered into conversation with one of the hotel clerks.

Smuggling will go on lively under the new tariff. There has always been a certain amount of smuggling between Canada and the United States, but the comparatively low tariff was not so much of an encouragement to that sort of thing as the new tariff will be.

Winson, April 15.—On Sunday a well-dressed stranger registered at the American House as Charles Davison, of Philadelphia, and was assigned room 37. On Sunday afternoon he called upon Dr. Coventry, stating that he was accustomed to the use of morphia, and was given a prescription for two grains in six powders, which he had dispensed at Leslie's drug store.

There was a man of ungovernable appetite and passions, who had brought shame and untold trouble upon his family, his pure, noble wife and two sweet children. His life had been a failure, and he sought rest, so that no more crime and disgrace might arise through him.

The hotel clerk inquired of the Major if the guns were bought for the Russian government. "Oh, no; not at all," was the reply. "Well, if they are going to South Africa, they must be for the Zulus," said the clerk.

London, April 15.—With respect to the attempt yesterday upon the life of the Czar, the following information concerning the governing committee of the revolutionary association of Russia has been obtained from authentic sources.—This committee is composed of elected representatives of a great number of local and secret nihilist and revolutionary associations.

A writer in the New York Sun on parasites in Mediterranean oranges and lemons says:—"The existence of this dreaded pest was well known to fruit dealers in this city more than thirty years ago, but never before has fruit from the Mediterranean been so thickly covered with parasites as during the last and present year."

At a computation of the nationalities on the members of the present House of Commons the following give: Scotch, 64; French, 54; English, 60; Irish, 38; Germans, 7; Americans, 3.

The Sense of Ridicule in Dogs and Horses

Mr. Sidney Buxton, in one of his amusing papers on animals in the Animal World for February, says that dogs and horses are, as far as he knows, the only animals sensitive to ridicule, while cats and birds are wholly unaware that they are being laughed at.

The sense of ridicule is also apparent in the horse. The horse sympathizes evidently with many of his rider's feelings and amusements, while the dog can enter into no small proportion of his feelings.

The sense of ridicule is also apparent in the horse. The horse sympathizes evidently with many of his rider's feelings and amusements, while the dog can enter into no small proportion of his feelings.

The sense of ridicule is also apparent in the horse. The horse sympathizes evidently with many of his rider's feelings and amusements, while the dog can enter into no small proportion of his feelings.

The sense of ridicule is also apparent in the horse. The horse sympathizes evidently with many of his rider's feelings and amusements, while the dog can enter into no small proportion of his feelings.

The sense of ridicule is also apparent in the horse. The horse sympathizes evidently with many of his rider's feelings and amusements, while the dog can enter into no small proportion of his feelings.

The sense of ridicule is also apparent in the horse. The horse sympathizes evidently with many of his rider's feelings and amusements, while the dog can enter into no small proportion of his feelings.

The sense of ridicule is also apparent in the horse. The horse sympathizes evidently with many of his rider's feelings and amusements, while the dog can enter into no small proportion of his feelings.

The sense of ridicule is also apparent in the horse. The horse sympathizes evidently with many of his rider's feelings and amusements, while the dog can enter into no small proportion of his feelings.

The sense of ridicule is also apparent in the horse. The horse sympathizes evidently with many of his rider's feelings and amusements, while the dog can enter into no small proportion of his feelings.

The Coming Italian Republic

London, April 15.—In the letter of Garibaldi in favor of universal suffrage, and convoke a meeting of Republicans on the 21st instant, to take measure for the agitation of the subject, he says he considers it the duty of the Republican party to rally all its forces in the field of legal action, in order to secure progressively that liberty which is their undoubted right.

London, April 15.—On Sunday a well-dressed stranger registered at the American House as Charles Davison, of Philadelphia, and was assigned room 37. On Sunday afternoon he called upon Dr. Coventry, stating that he was accustomed to the use of morphia, and was given a prescription for two grains in six powders, which he had dispensed at Leslie's drug store.

There was a man of ungovernable appetite and passions, who had brought shame and untold trouble upon his family, his pure, noble wife and two sweet children. His life had been a failure, and he sought rest, so that no more crime and disgrace might arise through him.

The hotel clerk inquired of the Major if the guns were bought for the Russian government. "Oh, no; not at all," was the reply. "Well, if they are going to South Africa, they must be for the Zulus," said the clerk.

London, April 15.—With respect to the attempt yesterday upon the life of the Czar, the following information concerning the governing committee of the revolutionary association of Russia has been obtained from authentic sources.—This committee is composed of elected representatives of a great number of local and secret nihilist and revolutionary associations.

A writer in the New York Sun on parasites in Mediterranean oranges and lemons says:—"The existence of this dreaded pest was well known to fruit dealers in this city more than thirty years ago, but never before has fruit from the Mediterranean been so thickly covered with parasites as during the last and present year."

At a computation of the nationalities on the members of the present House of Commons the following give: Scotch, 64; French, 54; English, 60; Irish, 38; Germans, 7; Americans, 3.

Col. Pearson's Column—Chelmsford's Reply to Cetewayo—Heavy Fighting—The Invading Columns Marching to the Front—The Boers Say They Must Have Independence

Cape Town, April 1, via St. Vincent.—The Colonial-Secretary of Natal has telegraphed to the Colonial-Secretary of Cape Colony that Cetewayo has sent messengers to Lord Chelmsford with overtures for peace.

There was a man of ungovernable appetite and passions, who had brought shame and untold trouble upon his family, his pure, noble wife and two sweet children. His life had been a failure, and he sought rest, so that no more crime and disgrace might arise through him.

The hotel clerk inquired of the Major if the guns were bought for the Russian government. "Oh, no; not at all," was the reply. "Well, if they are going to South Africa, they must be for the Zulus," said the clerk.

London, April 15.—With respect to the attempt yesterday upon the life of the Czar, the following information concerning the governing committee of the revolutionary association of Russia has been obtained from authentic sources.—This committee is composed of elected representatives of a great number of local and secret nihilist and revolutionary associations.

A writer in the New York Sun on parasites in Mediterranean oranges and lemons says:—"The existence of this dreaded pest was well known to fruit dealers in this city more than thirty years ago, but never before has fruit from the Mediterranean been so thickly covered with parasites as during the last and present year."

At a computation of the nationalities on the members of the present House of Commons the following give: Scotch, 64; French, 54; English, 60; Irish, 38; Germans, 7; Americans, 3.

A writer in the New York Sun on parasites in Mediterranean oranges and lemons says:—"The existence of this dreaded pest was well known to fruit dealers in this city more than thirty years ago, but never before has fruit from the Mediterranean been so thickly covered with parasites as during the last and present year."

At a computation of the nationalities on the members of the present House of Commons the following give: Scotch, 64; French, 54; English, 60; Irish, 38; Germans, 7; Americans, 3.

A writer in the New York Sun on parasites in Mediterranean oranges and lemons says:—"The existence of this dreaded pest was well known to fruit dealers in this city more than thirty years ago, but never before has fruit from the Mediterranean been so thickly covered with parasites as during the last and present year."

At a computation of the nationalities on the members of the present House of Commons the following give: Scotch, 64; French, 54; English, 60; Irish, 38; Germans, 7; Americans, 3.

A writer in the New York Sun on parasites in Mediterranean oranges and lemons says:—"The existence of this dreaded pest was well known to fruit dealers in this city more than thirty years ago, but never before has fruit from the Mediterranean been so thickly covered with parasites as during the last and present year."

Queen Victoria and the Trappists

Queen Victoria visited the other day the Trappist Monastery of the Three Fountains. She left her carriage at the foot of the ascent, and proceeded alone and on foot to the convent. Her Majesty prayed devoutly at the altars, and promised to send a present to the convent.

There was a man of ungovernable appetite and passions, who had brought shame and untold trouble upon his family, his pure, noble wife and two sweet children. His life had been a failure, and he sought rest, so that no more crime and disgrace might arise through him.

The hotel clerk inquired of the Major if the guns were bought for the Russian government. "Oh, no; not at all," was the reply. "Well, if they are going to South Africa, they must be for the Zulus," said the clerk.

London, April 15.—With respect to the attempt yesterday upon the life of the Czar, the following information concerning the governing committee of the revolutionary association of Russia has been obtained from authentic sources.—This committee is composed of elected representatives of a great number of local and secret nihilist and revolutionary associations.

A writer in the New York Sun on parasites in Mediterranean oranges and lemons says:—"The existence of this dreaded pest was well known to fruit dealers in this city more than thirty years ago, but never before has fruit from the Mediterranean been so thickly covered with parasites as during the last and present year."

At a computation of the nationalities on the members of the present House of Commons the following give: Scotch, 64; French, 54; English, 60; Irish, 38; Germans, 7; Americans, 3.

A writer in the New York Sun on parasites in Mediterranean oranges and lemons says:—"The existence of this dreaded pest was well known to fruit dealers in this city more than thirty years ago, but never before has fruit from the Mediterranean been so thickly covered with parasites as during the last and present year."

At a computation of the nationalities on the members of the present House of Commons the following give: Scotch, 64; French, 54; English, 60; Irish, 38; Germans, 7; Americans, 3.

A writer in the New York Sun on parasites in Mediterranean oranges and lemons says:—"The existence of this dreaded pest was well known to fruit dealers in this city more than thirty years ago, but never before has fruit from the Mediterranean been so thickly covered with parasites as during the last and present year."

At a computation of the nationalities on the members of the present House of Commons the following give: Scotch, 64; French, 54; English, 60; Irish, 38; Germans, 7; Americans, 3.

A writer in the New York Sun on parasites in Mediterranean oranges and lemons says:—"The existence of this dreaded pest was well known to fruit dealers in this city more than thirty years ago, but never before has fruit from the Mediterranean been so thickly covered with parasites as during the last and present year."

THE ZULU WAR.

Cetewayo's Preparations—The British Forces—The Advance Begun.

London, April 15.—The exact condition of affairs in Zululand, according to the latest advices, is this:—On the south side of the Tugela River there are at this moment 1,200 cavalry and 14,000 infantry, all from England, and in readiness for operations, which, it is hoped, will not only relieve Col. Pearson from his now desperate situation, but make a final end of Cetewayo.