

...I hope to have another opportunity before this session has gone too far of making another statement on the final results of the United Nations assembly and, indeed, on the results of the NATO Council meeting which takes place this month. What I have said, however, about our policies at the United Nations, and about the policies which we continue to pursue in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, does, I hope, confirm what indeed probably does not need confirmation - that Canadian policy is directed solely toward bringing about in the United Nations and in NATO, and in any other organization devoted to peace, a peace which will be more than the kind of peace we have today. It is directed toward a peace which will mean more than merely the absence of fighting; and to the bringing about of a security that can ultimately be based upon something stronger and more permanent than force.
