

Chamberlain, Mr., 150.

Champloré, 55, 60, 66, 73.

Champlain, Samuel de, object of life of, 46; official exploring expedition of, 47, 48; urges necessity of colonization, 49; establishes trading connections, 58; made official geographer, 60; builds factory at Quebec, 67; winters at Quebec, 68, 69; promises to assist Montagnais against Iroquois, 70; first expedition against Iroquois, 70; meets Hurons at St. Eloi, 72; defeats Iroquois, 73; invited by Hurons to visit them, 73; returns to France, 73; Indian guides refuse to accompany, 75; again defeats Iroquois, 76; trades with Algonquins, 76; takes young Huron to France, 77; at Tadoussac, 79; at Quebec, 80; at Lachine, 81; names island near Lachine, 81; dissatisfaction of, 81; confers with Hurons, 81; returns to France, 82; accident of, 83; effect of report of death of, 84; urges appointment of Condé, 86; brings home oak, 88; sails up the Ottawa, 89, 90; reassures savages, 90; salary of, 94; absence of, 95; before Assembly, 98; spends winter with Hurons, visits Lake Simcoe, Bay of Quinté, and part of New York State, 99; contracts alliances with tribes, 99; seeks passage to the east, 100; returns to Lachine, 100; promises to build fort at Rapids, 100; returns to France, 100; at Hartleur, 103; reproves factors, 105; fruit of labours of, 106; lieutenant of Thémis, 107; presents statement relative to trades in New France, 108; requests King to fortify colony, 108; plans of, for St. Lawrence valley, 108; tightens reins of control at Quebec, 109; decision of, about Indian murderers, 110; stirs up shareholders about colonization, 110; authority of, weakened, 112; presents case to King, 112; justice of claims of, acknowledged, 112; apology of Boyer to, 112; assists Dolu in examination of company, 113; sends bad reports to Dolu, 114; salary of, 115; receives news of withdrawal of monopoly and formation of new company, 116; allows old company alone to trade, 116; opposes Dupont-Gravé, 117; announces Caën's arrival, 117; at Ta-doussac, 118; complains of colonists, 118; Company of, unites with new Company, 120; makes peace between tribes, 120; pardons Indian murderer, 121; builds new factory, 121; sails for home, 124; position of, maintained, 126; returns to Quebec, 127; builds larger fort, 127; sends back Iroquois prisoners, 129; reports Caën's negligence, 131; refuses to surrender, 132; ordered by Kirke to surrender factory, 139; answer of, 140; pinnace of, captured, 144; surrenders to Kirke, 145; in London, 148; urges Lauson to come to England, 148; critical estimate of, 274-281; other references to, 51, 55, 59, 65, 66, 93, 94, 97, 98, 150, 195, 199, 200, 201, 202, 203, 206.

Champlain's Company, 94-114; articles of, 94; allowance of, to Condé, 94; factory at Quebec the property of, 95; trade of, 95; infringement of monopoly of, 96; proposal to repeal monopoly of, 98; maintains Recollect Fathers, 99; enemies of, 103; Thémis's demands from, 104; Condé threatens, 104; fresh agreement of, 104, 105; induces Hébert to emigrate, 104; failed to fulfil agreement, 104, 105; extent of mission work of, 107; monopoly of, endangered, 107; monopoly confirmed to, 107; notified about colonization, 109; servants of, murdered by Indians, 109; treatment of Hébert by, 111; shareholders' views on colonization, 111; commerce of, hindered, 111; hands over charge of factory to Dupont-Gravé, 112; investigated by Dolu, 113; threatened by Dolu, 114; monopoly of, cancelled, 114; appeals to Dolu for protection, 116; appeals to King for justice, 116, 117.

Champlain, Lake, 73, 129.

Charles I, makes trouble with French, 138; sends fleet to French coast, 139; offers to help Alexander, 141; confers knighthood on baronets of New Scotland, 142; proclamation of, 142; desires peace, 146; assists James Stewart, 147; promises restoration of Quebec, 149; at Compiègne, 156; presses for payment of wife's dowry, 156; offers baronies, 158; discusses treaty, 159; sacrifices Port Royal, 160; complains to Fon-