

WE have a great deal more to say at present, and therefore shall say no more now. We hope also, that as the whole Kingdom have uttered their Grievs thus, that the severall Counties will follow our Example. To-morrow is gone and Yesterday is coming! Let us lose no more Time, but the present. 'Tis not too late to save us, though we by our Constitution had rather save ourselves.

GIVEN under our Hands, having never learnt to write, by certain Marks we are ignorant of, but are used to. And sealed with the Arms of the King's Imperial Kingdom of the City of Dublin, for Want of a proper Seal, or any Seal at all.
