

to God, and in their intercourse with their fellow men, would live up to the spirit of their prayer book ; if they would only reflect in their lives the purity, holiness, entire devotion to God's service which pervades the collects and other prayers that they use in church, great would be our progress and amazing our influence. See to it, then, dear brethren of the clergy, that you lead those committed to your care along the narrow way of life, and oh, dear brethren of the laity, walk in that way, through God's grace, to your life's end.
