

OL47.14

"But, for my part, which write the English story, I acknowledge that no man must looke for that at my hands, which I have not received from some other : for I would bee unwilling to write anything untrue, or uncertaine out of mine own invention ; and truth on every part is so deare unto me, that I will not lie to bring any man in love and admiration with God and his works, for God needeth not the lies of men."

TOPSELL'S Apologia (1607).
