There have been rumors for a day or two that the ministry was unstable, or two that the ministry was unstable, owing to its frequent request for me-diation by the European powers, but the newspapers say this situation has given way before the demand of the army and of public opinion that the war be continued. The common dan-ger seems to have united all parties. This is shown by the perfervid out-burst of the newspapers of all politi-cal shades urging a fight to a finish. But this is only one of many curious facts which makes it hard to decide whether the Grand Trunk really in-tends to throw up its contract with the government. Of course, it can stand off the government for a long time because it cannot be compelled to come up to the captain's office and settle and sign papers until the Que-bec bridge is finished two, three or four years hence.
