IMPOSTORS WEAR SOLDIERS' BADGES

Complaints Made That Men Falsely Claim Overseas Service.

During the past two weeks several complaints have been received that men wearing returned soldiers' badges are passing themselves off as having served overseas, and who say that they have applied for financial assistance from the Soldiers' Aid Commission and that they were refused. These men, however, when pressed for more explicit information, have given rather vague answers. J. Warwick of the commission has explained that they must be careful in making loans to all who apply. If the man can produce his discharge certificate and other papers and seems to be worthy of confidence and is in real need the commission gladly gives assistance. At the present time there are scattered throughout the Province of Ontario 143 branches of the Soldiers' Aid and each one of these branches is in charge of a man who has been appointed by the head office of the commission at 116 College Street. These offices act as employment bureaus for soldiers in their district and also give assistance to soldiers' dependents the same as the Toronto office.

When the Military Hospitals Commission went out of existence last year the Soldiers' Aid took over its vocational training work and also its relief work. In the other provinces of the Dominion this is now controlled by a federal commission, but in this province the work is divided between the federal and provincial governments, the latter undertaking the principal share. It has no connection with the Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment Commission or the Soldiers' Repatriation Committee of Ottawa, which has a general supervision over all the work of getting the soldiers back into civil life.

All the names of the returning soldiers are first received by the Soldiers' Aid Commission, who after alphabetically tabulating them, turn the list over to the military. The offices of the commission throughout the province are supplied with the names of the men who are returning to their centres as well.

Vocational training is also under the supervision of the Soldiers' Aid Commission, and is given to soldiers whose disabilities are such as to hinder them from returning to their former occupations. The training is given on the condition that the men will take the entire course and will follow up the trade later on. A scale of money allowances is paid to the men while they are in training.

SOON NO JOBS LEFT FOR ACTUAL FIGHTERS

"If the government does not bring back the men who saw service in France and Flanders pretty soon there will be no positions left for them, as they will all be taken up by civilians and others," said Mayor Church yesterday. "The first contingent men are nearly all over there yet, and those that did the actual fighting. The munition workers and low category men, and almost everybody else has had the right-of-way on the transport. It takes a year to demobilize 300,000 Canadians it would take 25 years to demobilize the British expeditionary force of eight millions at the same rate. The artillery also should not be needed in Germany and brought home."

Preference. "Preference should be given to the men who did the actual fighting. Officers are returning in large numbers, notwithstanding that the minister said they should stay with their men and see the war thru, and are not home yet. Ottawa blames the overseas authorities and the admiralty for the condition of boats, and now they are taking off the Olympic, the Mauretania and the Aquitania. These boats should be left on until all the Canadians are home, and I do not understand what the overseas authorities are thinking of to permit this. It is all very well to say the men do not want to get home. They do, and the wishes of their folks should be respected in this matter."

WOMEN'S INSTITUTES.

About six hundred delegates are expected to be present at the annual meeting of the Women's Institutes of Ontario, which meets on Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 4. The superintendent, George Putnam, will give his annual address and there will be brief addresses on Serbian, Belgian and French relief, also an address on experiences overseas by Rev. G. C. Pidgeon. The subjects of "Housing," "Canning Centres," "Medical Inspection in the Schools," "Thrift Stamps," and the "Hot Lunch for Rural Schools," will be among those discussed.

DEMILITARIZING R.A.F.

F. P. Hambly, chairman of the board of education, has received an application from the commanding officer of the Royal Air Force, for the use of the new Jesse Ketchum School building until the end of February. The letter states that the demobilization work there requires a month longer than was recently expected. The application will be dealt with at the board meeting on Thursday evening, Feb. 7.

TORONTO TERMINALS MAY LAY PIPES

Judgment Given Lays Stress on Non-Interference With Viaduct.

The city solicitor yesterday received from Sir Henry Drayton, chairman of the Dominion Railway Commission, a judgment granting the application of the Toronto Terminals Railway Company for the right to lay steam pipes on Scott street from the Toronto Electric Light plant to the new Union Station for the purpose of heating that building.

Sir Henry says: "The statutory rights of the Toronto Electric Light Company were challenged. With this question I have nothing to do; it cannot add to them nor detract from them. The Toronto Electric Light Company is not a party to the proceedings, and the question as to whether or not the Union Station Company can obtain the necessary heat and light from them is entirely a question for that company. It, however, says it can."

Cannot Forecast. "Looking at the plan apparently the company's stack would not, of necessity, be destroyed, but the furnaces and boilers as now laid out would be interfered with. It probably would be necessary to build another set on the other side of the stack and then cut them in if the company's operations are continued. It is impossible, however, absolutely to forecast what will be done, and as I see it, the board ought to be careful in doing nothing which will militate against the construction of the viaduct. "In order to obviate any possible difficulty on this score any order that may be made must be regarded as merely temporary and subject to cancellation by further order of the board. No new right should be given which either directly or indirectly can create a new permanent vested interest and render the construction of the viaduct the more expensive."

WOMEN'S PRESS CLUB.

A meeting of the Women's Press Club was held last night in the rooms of the Belfast Women's Club. Four new members were received, Miss Prime of The Star, Miss Osborne of The News, Miss Phillips of The Telegram, and Miss Delamore of The Globe. The subject of acquiring permanent rooms for the club was discussed, former quarters having been dispensed with some months ago as a war measure. Much amusement was caused by the guessing contest among the members, many of whom represented well-known figures in popular advertising. The test was what did the advertised figures represent?

STILL HELPING SOLDIERS.

Seldom, even in war days, were the headquarters of the Women's Patriotic League more busy than they are now in connection with the shower for the destitute Serbians. Yesterday two women were busy at knitting machines turning out socks in long lengths like sausages. A third woman stood by one of the machines ironing the product as it came from the knitter and cutting every sock from its nearest neighbor. Still another was busy recording the donations in a great book, which was simply plethoric with records of offerings. Great cases stood ready packed and closed, while loud hammering told that others were still under way. Cases are going out at the rate of five daily. About two thousand blankets have been acquired thru the "shower," also quilts, warm clothing, cases of soap and other needs. The workers hope that donations will come in rapidly for the remainder of the week, as it is the hope to close by the end of the month. The Queen Mary Needlework Guild, co-operating with a number of societies, is responsible for the success of the undertaking.

WOMAN ON JUVENILE COURT.

The United Women Voters of Toronto have passed a resolution asking that the city council appoint a man and a woman to the juvenile court, pointing out that in Vancouver, Calgary and Montreal women had proved very successful as judges.
