DO THE RETURNING MEN FIND HOME GIRLS MERELY GRAFTERS?

Has Simplicity of English Girl and Economy of French Girl Opened Their Eyes at Last?-What Will the Girls Do About It?

Is the girl of the new world a para- women—both before and after mar-ite? Have the changes of war opened our eyes to what foreign visitors for years, have been telling us, that the girl of proud mother of a handsome sailor son,

For years I have been hearing this criticism. Now, reiterated by the returning soldier, and the mothers of these men, I am almost beginning to believe it.

I asked the head of a family what he thought about the allegations that the girl of the new world is a "natural grafter." He said this:

"Perhaps she isn't any more 'naturally' a grafter than other folks, but she has been brought to the grafting business by tradition and training, and being good at anything she sets her mind to, she is as clever and successful a grafter as you can imagine. Of course, women don't have reasons for things. They just do them. So that there is no way of getting at their motives. You get a glimpse of her state of mind when you ask her about a given case. She says she likes to have a good time, and why shouldn't he pay it?—he being the man in the case."

My head of a family gives me this bit of dialogue as typical:

"Why do you take money from that young man?"

"Money? I never took money from "The fact of the matter is, the great" to bodiers and sailors.

Said Mrs. Heath:

"There is a type of girl all too numespectable society, who would be offended to be called anything less than honorable, yet who has in her the making of a parasite, or perhaps what one might call, in plain terms, a general all-around grafter."

"For years," said Mrs. Heath, "young men have tolerated her; have even induged her and encouraged ner extravagance, her selfishness, in marvelously generous, good natured fashon.

"She is the same sort of girl today who can think of men acquaintances only in terms of theatre tickets, handy escorts to cabarets and givers of flow-ers and candy. Well," said Mrs. Heath "I'm afraid she will have to change her views or be compelled to confine hersell to lest desirable male society. Of course," she added, "there are still plenty of the sensible, old-fashioned sort of girls, but I often wish there were fewer of this other kind.

"The fact of the matter is, the great trous highly respectable society. Or perhaps what one might call when we call, or take them out to a movie or a cabaret, they've got no use for us."

"I know from my own experience," said Mrs. Health, "that these boys speak the truth. During the past winter, I threw open my house every Sunday afternoon and evening to men who had leave from nearby camps. I interested a number of girls to come every Sunday to help serve refreshments and sing and entertain the boys. The boys enjoyed it immensely, but I observed that the girls would become restive; that is to say, many of them would, and would ask to be excused so they could keep an engagement to go to the movies or some lively entertainment.

Seeing Girls Differently.

"The boys, too, who used to look"

I believe," said a youthful Adonis in khaki.

"There are lots of nice girls we meet, that we'd like to ask to the theatre or entertainments, but as no man today could risk inviting a young woman to the theatre and supper on less than $8 or $10. we boys who are just back from war can't afford it. Most of the girls we meet are this sort. In France one can go to a cabaret, and spend say a couple of dollars on wine and some sandwiches or salad, and dance and listen to the music and have a pleasant evening, but I do wish she would cut down experience," khaki.

Is whipping one of the recognized treatments for hysteria, I wonder?

I have never heard a regular practicing physician say that he thought it was—and isn't hysteria just a form of nervous derangement of some sort?

Nerves are strange things. They play Nerves are strange things. They play the oddest kind of tricks, and the queer-est thing they do is to make people be-lieve that they don't really amount to very much.

I knew a woman once who got up in the night and killed herself. Her friends knew there was something wrong with her, but the family said, "Oh, she is just a little progresses." a little nervous.'

"Nerves" and "Nerves." Perhaps if they had whipped her good and hard when she began to be what they called "nervous," it might have saved her life.

There is a little boy who lives near me right now who comes home from me right now who comes home from school every once in a while shaking from head to foot with "nerves."

He is a beautiful boy, manly, bright and unusually intelligent. But his teacher thinks that "nerves" should not be encouraged, so she slaps him and shakes him and boxes his ears whenever she gets a good excuse—but somehow the little boy's mother doesn't understand that teacher's point of view, and she has taken the little boy out of this school and put him into another—and he has gained three pounds and looks like a different child since they have made the change.

So you see there are "nerves" and "nerves," and methods and methods.

This is my first was greeted letter to your Mail-Box, and I wonder cheering that lasted 31 minues. A sole if through it I could obtain a little is help. I have a girl of 12 years, and would like to place her, in a nice home in the country for the vacation. I wonder if some kind reader would like to board a little girl for a few weeks? We are strangers here and have very few friends; also we are members of the R. C. Church, and would prefer placing her in a Catholic home. She is a big girl and able to help some kind mother in many ways about the house, and I would also pay something for her board. Now, Dear Miss Grey, I hope to see this in print, and if necessary will forward you my name and address. Thanking you deeply in advance, I will sign myself, MRS. A. B. Ans.—Yes, you had better send me your address right away, for I feel certain there will be a summer home—and likely more than one—for your girlle.
