Glasses With Double Sight

If you have been using separate glasses for reading or sewing, and another pair for general use, you have probably found it an inconvenience keeping tabs on both pairs. A solution is the glasses which have two sights in one glass. The lenses are ground together so that the join is invisible, yet they have the requirements of two pairs in one. These lenses will be made according to your prescription and fitted into a gold-filled frame or rimless mount, for the special price of 5.00

All oculists' prescriptions filled at this price.

Reminding You of the Extraordinarily Good Value of the Lyra Piano at $225.00

A Beautifully Finished, Richly-Toned Instrument, That Compares With High-Grade Pianos, Yet is Priced Considerably Lower

THE Lyra Pianos are the most reasonably priced pianos in this country. This is rather a strong statement to make, but it's proven by the facts. Their price is so much less than is usually asked for this grade of piano that it could not be used as a basis for comparison. This low price is made possible on account of selling all pianos for spot cash, without agents' fees, etc., enabling us to effect a great saving and price the Lyra at the low price of 225.00

As well as the artistic design and rich mirror-like finish on the Lyra, is the real character of the instrument. The Otto Higel action, with which all Lyras are equipped, assures mechanical efficiency and durability for years of service. Other standard equipments in the Lyra are—copper around bass strings, full metal plate, bushed tuning pins and ivory keys.

See these Pianos in the showroom, 5th Floor. Hear the Lyra played, or play it yourself and get acquainted with its many excellent features.

Every Piano sold comes direct from factory perfectly tuned and with the EATON ten-year guarantee of absolute satisfaction. Delivered to nearest railway station in Ontario or Maritime Provinces, freight prepaid. The EATON price, $225.00.

The Acme Cabinet Gas Range is Very Good Value at $36.50

It's a Modern, Efficient Cooker, Suitable for Ordinary Sized Family.

WITH manufacturing conditions as they are, this Acme Gas Range is extra good value. Perhaps the most outstanding feature of this range is its four ovens—one for baking, one for broiling, one for boiling, and the other for plate-warming. The spacious table top is equipped with four powerful star dilled burners and a simmerer, each controlled by a separate needle-point valve and air-mixer, under all of which is a removable enamel dirt tray. The Acme is also equipped with a canopy top, which, when connected to chimney, carries away all fumes of cooking. The body of the range is made of steel, baked enamel finish. Handsome nickel-plated trimmings. Piping and connections extra. Excellent value at 36.50

GOOD ROADS MEN IN CONVENTION

Hear Addresses on Need for Extension of County and National Roads.

EMPLOYING SOLDIERS

Building of Vast Road Systems Will Give Work to Returned Men.

The opinion was expressed by a number of speakers at the annual convention of the Good Roads Association, which opened in the municipal building yesterday, that the counties and municipalities of the province would have a great opportunity to assist in the readjustment period after the war by employing returned men to build up the great highways of the province. The question had the attention of President S. L. Squire and W. A. McLean, deputy minister of highways, who emphatically stated that it would be for each community to take care of the men who return from overseas when peace is declared. The members were admonished as to the future, and told that their most urgent duty was to make provision for peace time and not be caught unprepared as they were for war.

Mayor Church welcomed the delegates to the convention, and praised them warmly for the conduct of the work with which they were identified. It was his belief that the main reason for the inability to produce foodstuffs and other articles to meet the requirements of the people was the lack of main thoroughfares throughout the province. Good roads were the great essential to production. The inauguration of a federal system of thoroughfares after the war would provide the principal means of solving the unemployment problem. The president declared that the need for conventions of this kind was becoming more evident, and he was satisfied that when society had been educated and organized along the lines of better roads it would mean a great development of the country in general. Ontario was never more in need of improved traveling and transportation facilities than at present. The general prosperity with which the province had been favored, and the increasing use of motor vehicles, necessitated better roads, as also did the demand by the cities for a cheaper and better class of produce.

That the roads were the property of the municipality there was no question, and it was undoubtedly true that mistakes had been made in administration. For the latter reason it was the duty of the government to encourage and educate the municipalities to an ideal condition of roads and to carry out experiments pertaining to their development.

Unprepared for Peace. Regarding after the war conditions, he said they were not better prepared to meet peace than they were to engage in the war when it broke. He wondered whose duty it would be to take care of the returned men. Some might want to shirk the responsibility and say that it should be assumed by the governments, but he thought it should be assumed by the people as a whole. There was nothing which gave them a better opportunity to help the returned men than the building of a good roads system, and the municipalities must be used as the spillways of labor in the readjustment period.

W. A. McLean was well satisfied with the progress being made by the good roads movement. When the minds of the people, he said, were set on a certain purpose, it was exceedingly hard to change them. When the movement was started there were about two counties interested in the
