THE GLOBE JOLTED

The Globe is much concerned over the nickel situation. We have read what it said yesterday about the United States Navy League, a pretended patriotic association in that country, that it was only a name in disguise for the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, the Harvey Steel Company, the U. S. Steel Company, the International Nickel Company and the Armory Plate Trust; that they were all, with others, an interlocking array, devoted to making immense profits out of armaments, armor, munitions, etc., for their shareholders; and that the one thing that gave them their monopoly rested in Canadian nickel control.

That was the wise and safe way. Was it the way followed by the Government of Canada? If not, why not? Company. What are the relations of Mr. Thompson to Hon. Wallace Nesbitt of Canada? Why has Col. Thompson been so active in presenting pleas for membership to the gunners in the British navy? Why the fevered activity of Col. Thompson among the armament trusts of Britain, among the big-wigs of Britain and of the British Admiralty? And how fervent were his assurances that Canadian nickel had not got to Germany in enormous stores? And what splendid understanding had been reached between the Mond Company, the British nickel trust, and the American one? And how active the Mond Company has been in politics here for years back? Why did Lord Fisher leave the British Admiralty? Had the metal trusts and the armament trusts anything to do with it?

THEY ALSO GOT THE NICKEL JOLT

The Hamilton Herald, The Hamilton Spectator, The Ottawa Journal, The Stratford Herald, etc., etc., etc. all had more or less elaborate apologies for the nickel policy of the Hearst and Borden governments, with more or less polite references to the position of The Toronto World and W. F. Maclean; but they didn't much affect the sound of a going in the mulberry trees in North Perth yesterday!

Perhaps our two Hamilton contemporaries will take this trouble to find out who killed the movement to locate a great nickel industry in that city; and later on, what sinister influence blighted the nickel experiments of the Hoepfner Chemical Works, in that same town?

WAR SUMMARY THE DAY'S EVENTS REVIEWED

rather than of the French. A reason for this is that the British army threatens a vital point about six miles beyond. That point is the Village of Baupame where several roads and railways meet. These roads and railways supply about 40 miles of the German front, and the capture of Baupame would force the enemy to readjust his line. But a section of 40 miles of front cannot be readjusted without affecting other portions of the front, and the process of shifting about troops to new positions might well become a local disaster for the enemy in the face of an enterprising foe. Perrone which the French have now about gained control of, is not nearly so valuable from the standpoint of strategy. That the French are really trying to do south of the Somme is to press a considerable force of Germans back against that river. It makes a sharp southward bend just west of Peronne, and by shoving the enemy against it the French have good prospects of capturing many prisoners and much equipment, including guns. The Germans have already taken the precautions of removing their heavy artillery to the eastern bank of the river.

Rather a good day's work was done by the French south of the Somme in the capture of Hill 92, which dominates the river southeast of Blaches, fort where a detachment of the enemy still held out. They also took a field of survivors, 113 officers and men, near Blaches, and farm and a little wood to the north of La Maisonette Village also fell to the French. The Germans still maintain themselves in a small redoubt at the extremity of this wood.

The French aerial service also did distinguished work by attacking German aeroplanes hovering over the Somme and by bringing down four of them. French air squadrons working by night threw a number of bombs on the railway stations at Ham and Polinacourt, situated southeast of Peronne.

Not less noted service was rendered by the British flying corps. It carried out several successful bombing attacks against detaining centres, ammunition depots and aerodromes of the enemy and it fought numerous combats in the air, destroying one German machine and driving down several others damaged to the ground.

Altho the Russian reports of yesterday are worded obscurely, it appears that they have begun to force the passage of the Stokhod River, not only west of Czartorysk and Kolki, but on the road from Lutsk to Kovel, where they were held up by German counter-attacks for about a month. The apex of their advance from Lutsk was at Svidnicki Village, on the stream and firmly secured a bridgehead there, but subsequent counter-attacks launched by the enemy with extreme violence had forced them back a considerable distance from Svidnicki. Now, in combination with the straight thrust from Czartorysk and Kolki, the Russians have opened a vigorous offensive all along the line of this river and are forcing crossings at Svidnicki and other points. This river is broad, but rather shallow, owing to the destruction of the crossings, it is being found difficult to pass. West of the Stokhod no natural defensive position intervenes between this stream and Kovel.

The object of an advance on Kovel would be to cut the railway communications between the German group of armies in the centre and north and the Austrian group of armies in the south. This would compel a retreat to the lines of the Bug, but the enemy could get his armies away without their being destroyed. At Baranovichi the fighting still intense. A heavy German counter-attack was defeated. Along the Dniester River, in southeastern Galicia, the fighting of a heavy artillery action presages an advance.

In the Caucasus the Russians are vigorously pressing the attack and they have commenced to make gains of territory in the struggles with the Turks. They are pressing forward west of Platana, and south of the Taurus they advanced and captured an important mountain neck and an entire line of heights. The enemy had spent considerable time on fortifying these positions and their loss is a heavy blow to him.

The feature of the Italian advance recorded in yesterday's despatches is the clearing of the Austrians from the greater part of the Tofane Valley on the upper Boite River. The garrison of Tofane One was surrounded and surrendered, to the number of 150 men. The war is also quickening around Gorizia, with the Austrians attacking the Italian lines to the north-west of the fortress and receiving a severe setback from the fire of the Italian artillery. Renewal of Austrian activity here in the present state of the war betokens anxiety, and anxiety is probably aroused by forebodings of a coming offensive.

LONDON, ONT., BATTALIONS RIOT AT CAMP BORDEN

Several Thousand Men Stormed Headquarters After Parade and Broke Number of Windows and Doors—Trouble Apparently Due to Discomforts of Evening in Sultry Weather.

By a Staff Reporter. CAMP BORDEN, July 11.—Between 7 and 8 o'clock tonight a riotous outbreak with several thousand troops of the London district participating, took place near the new headquarters building, the warring into the open air, howling, swarmed sticks, struggling and threatening officers. Within half an hour after the trouble started headquarters was stormed, the rioting men throwing stones, breaking a great number of the windows and swarming up onto the roof.

Guarded with Bayonets. Between 9 and 10 o'clock, as the London men were still in a riotous mood, a row of guards with rifles and fixed bayonets were stationed on the side of the 170th Battalion's area, nearest to the area of the disturbance. The men of the 170th and Mississauga Battalion from Toronto were placed at ten-foot spaces along the entire long side of the tent line. They were not only guarding their own lines but also the whole southern half of the camp, where all the other Toronto district regiments are encamped.

A Bloodless Charge. At 10:30 the 170th Battalion sentries charged into the London men with fixed bayonets and routed them, but there were no casualties. Five or ten shots fired in the air, added to the general excitement. The rioters cleared they were going back to their own district tonight.

Gen. Logie Peace-maker. Earlier in the evening a number of men from various units went with complaints to Gen. Logie's headquarters. He came out and addressed them, he told them that several of their complaints seemed to be just and that he would do all he could to have any grievances remedied. He promised that the men should have leave one or two times a month, but assurance had only effect with a portion of the listeners.
