Republicans Carry Every Doubtful State Except Maryland, While the Democrats Get a Solid South-Parker Did Not Equal Bryan's Record-New York State Goes Republican, While the Usual Democratic Majority in the City is Cut Down Greatly - La Follette Wins in Wisconsin.

New York, Nov. 8.—The Republican national ticket has been elected by a vote in the electoral college that will eed that of 292 given to McKinley in 1900. The result of to-day's ballot ing was astounding even to the most sanguine of the Republican managers. Confident as they were of success they were not prepared for the aston ishing figures which followed the clos ing of the polls-bringing into the Recan column not only all those es they had claimed as safe for eir candidates, but with the possible ception of Maryland, every state seed as doubtful.

Democratic successes are confined to the solid south, in which Kentucky is included, and Mr. Parker has not carried a single state which did not give its vote to Mr. Bryan four years ago. Unofficial returns indicate that he has lost some of those whom the Nebraskan candidate held for his party. Official figures from some of the northwest states may slightly change the totals, but based on the returns available at a late hour to-night the electoral vote stands as follows:

The late returns show that there were cast for him in New York State about 185,000 votes more than for Alton B. Parker. Not only was his vote heavy in the country districts where the Republican strongholds are, but in the Greater New York, traditionally Democrat, he ran much closer to Judge Parker than had been expected, even by his own campaign managers. 10 000 TREES IN TORONTO pervious to Sentiment - Cluny Ave. Residents Have a Protest Now.

WOODMAN, SPARE THAT TREE.

That old, familiar tree,
Whose glory and renown
Are spread o'er land and sea,
And would'st thou hew it down?
Woodman, forbear thy stroke!
Cut not its earthbound ties;
O spare that aged oak,
Now towering to the skies!
Forgive this foolish tear,
But let that old oak stand,

"Sacrilege" and "vandalism," say the residents of Cluny-avenue and vicinity; "sentiment" and "necessity," replies the park commissioner. And so, since Friday, in spite of protests from all around, there have been men at work mercilessly uprooting, sawing and splitting trees which were, as one lady expressed it, "the glory and pride of the people."

More destruction is yet to come, and the feeling now is of the resignation of despair. There is also a feeling of bitterness. The trees which are being destroyed are along the boulevard on the south side of Cluny avenue, fronting the oid Ridout estate. This property was recently purchased by Cawthra Mulqck. He secured the services of a landscape gardener, and, on this man's recommendation, asked permission of the city to have the trees removed. The intermation came as a shock to the neighbors, but to sundry protests made, Mr. Mulock was obdurate in his intentions, and so were the authorities who were appealed to.

"We appealed to the mayor, and to the park commissioner, and to others, and it was no use. We are all heart-broken. They were beautiful old trees, and we feel that it is almost sacrilege to ruthlessly destroy them. We feel we all have some right to consideration in a matter of this kind," was one statement. Ridout estate. This property was re-

To Go by the Thousand.

Park Commissioner Chambers, when spoken to about the matter last night, not only argued in justification of the destruction, but said that the citizens can be prepared to witness the removal of from 8000 to 10,000 trees from the city streets during the winter. Mr. Mulock, he said, had employed Todd, a land-scape gardener from Montreal, to make the property beautiful, and he wanted to make the boulevard in keeping with the rest. There were two or three basswood trees that should have come down before. These who objected did so from purely sentimental reasons.

"They never take into consideration that we must make improvements one time or another," he said. "There is a that we must make improvements one time or another," he said. "There is a good deal of sentiment about trees in Toronto. I went up there with Mr. Mulock and saw the trees and I had no hesitation in ordering them down. I get people heart-broken every day in the year, almost. Whenever I go to take down a tree there are protests, and sometimes they nearly take a gun to me. Presented With Cabinet of Silver- Northfield Residents Having Mail Ad- to me. trees as any of the people in Rosedale, and perhaps more than some, but I do what I consider is best in the city's interests. I'll tell you now that there are going to be 8000—ond probably 10,000—urees cut down in Toronto this winter.

farmers of Ontario. It is a live question for the people of the west: already the Conservatives of the west are moving to hold a convention next year to declare for public ownership. Public ownership, therefore, is not to be sent to the rear, but is to be kept at the front more and more from this time forward. Public ownership ought to be the dominant question in this election now about of the towns of Ontario, and it will soon be a live question even for the Public ownership is a live question to many people in Ontario. It to take place in the Province of Ontario. In Toronto it ought also to be the ruling question in the approaching municipal elections for mayor, aldermen and controllers. Anyone who watches the cities in this province to-day will see an unsatisfactory condition of affairs. For instance, if you read the papers of yesterday you will find that the City of Hamilton is at loggerheads with the street railway company there. If you read the reports in the same papers you will see that the Mayor of Ottawa has presented a report to the council of that city advocating public ownership of all public utilities, including the street railway and the distribution of light and power. And if you read the papers of Torontq you will see what dissatisfaction prevails with the street railway service here, and that great dissatisfaction has long existed with the gas company and the electrical companies.

What does all this point to? It points to public ownership, and it points to public ownership being first realized in connection with our municipalities. As the provincial law now stands it is against public ownership. It was only by the hardest fight that the City of Toronto was even enabled to acquire power to buy some stock in the Consumers' Gas Company. The attorney-general of the province has been a corporation man and not a municipal man. He has done his best and used his party, his government and the legislature to build up these private corporations, to strengthen their franchises, to confirm agreements that were manifestly against public policy and the public interest, to pass unfair acts like the Conmee measure and to establish a railway commission within the government that was against public interest and in the interest of the corporations. He is the head of the public franchiseholding ring in Hamilton and about Hamilton

All this must be changed. The general law of the province must be at least so changed and modified as to facilitate public ownership wherever public ownership is desired. Not for one moment are we suggesting any such thing as confiscation or interference with so-called vested rights. We simply propose that the general law of this province be so amended that public ownership can be realized the moment the people of the municipalities desire it. In other words, if the City of Ottawa, as the mayor has declared, wishes to take over the street railway, it should be enabled to do so. If the City of Toronto desires to do so, too, it should have the right, and certainly the City of Hamilton, which is now being held up by its street railway, should have some means of putting an end to a miserable state of affairs. And if street railways, then electrical and gas franchises.

This law would be one empowering municipalities to purchase all existing franchises within their bounds, now held by private corporations, and also empowering municipalities where these franchises have not yet been parted with to have them taken up by the municipality. It is intolerable that the City of Toronto should have to wait twenty odd years to take over the street railway franchises, and the same is true of Hamilton and Ottawa, and it is true of all the other franchises. The public interests demand that a law allowing of immediate municipalization on fair terms to all should be passed at once.

The question then comes to be: How are we to get this law? Assuredly not from Hon. George W. Ross, assuredly not from Hon. J. M. Gibson and men of that calibre. The only way we know how the people can get it is to elect a legislature on these lines and elect a mayor and aldermen on these lines, and for the Cities of Hamilton and Ottawa and other municipalities to elect men on these lines. Toronto has only four constituencies; she should have ten if she had her rights. What Toronto must do is to elect four public ownership men and to demand that the new legislature at once give her her just rights therein, and that all the cities shall have just and adequate representation in the legislature, which is supreme in municipal law.

Such is the state of affairs in this province and such is the remedy that we see for it. There is no other question so important now before the people-it is a live issue that concerns the everyday comfort of the people. It paves the way for public ownership of the great sources of power on our rivers and the distribution of that energy to all our manufacturing towns. It paves the way for public ownership of a great transcontinental railway. But the way to get public ownership is to start to get it, and the way to start to get it is to begin at the municipal and the provincial elections. Toronto to-day has nothing else to do than to find a public-ownership mayor and public-ownership council, and to try and get a public-ownership legislature and public-ownership government. The political parties and candidates who are about to contest the province have a fine opportunity to tell the public where they are. In this fight we do not want any academic support of public ownership, nor a half-hearted support of the principle. Let the public ownership people all get together and vote persistently for public ownership and it will soon be accomplished. We must put the question right up to the candidates, to the parties, to the press. And we must begin right at

THE FIGHT ONLY BEGUN.

Winnipeg Telegram: During the campaign which has just closed the Conservative party, under the leadership of Mr. Borden, stood for well defined principles of fundamental importance to a nation. One of these principles was that of public ownership and control of a transcontinental railway system, as opposed to the monopoly of private corporations over all thru transportation lines. Connected with this was the other principle that what the people pay for they should own. A third principle concerned the administration of the civil service. Mr. Borden and the Conservatives stood for the freeing of the government railway service from party political control, influence and interference; they stood for the removal of political partisanship from the militia; and with respect to other appointments in the civil service they stood for character and ability, not party affiliations, as the essential qualifications. A fourth principle was clean and fair elections, and such changes in the election law as would more surely prevent and punish Principles like these must be acted upon before Canada comes to her true self. It is the duty of every citizen who now realizes their vital importance to continue the campaign of education until an overwhelming majority accepts them. For this reason Conservatives must regard this fight as only begun during the past few weeks. Speedy success must crown the efforts of those who enlist in this cause, and the assurance of victory in such a cause will be the abiding inspiration of the Conservative party.

DOUBLE CROSSED BALLOTS IN THE LONDON ELECTION

Recount Asked for by Gray May Show Defeat of Hon. C. S.

William Gray of London, the Conservative candidate, who the in the field only eight days, came within an ace of defeating a cabinet minister strongly entrenched, is stopping at the Queen's. In fact, Mr. Gray is not beaten yet. His solicitors yesterday made application to the local judge for a recount of the ballots. The official return gives the majority of Hon. C. S. Hyman as 23, but a transposition of figures gave this result. The majority should be 18, and Mr. Gray and his friends are hopeful that a scrutiny of the ballots will entirely wipe this out.

It is believed that when the recount is held practices similar to those which prevailed in No. 9 division of St. Vincent in the North Grey by-election will be brought to light. In one of the subdivisions of London three ballots were given the double cross, that is, ballots marked and counted for Gray were afterwards recounted and rejected. The Conservative scrutineer, Mr. Gray asserts, found the ballots all right when he counted them. He left the poll, and in his absence the district returning officer decided to make another count, with the result that the three ballots were found to have faint crosses opposite the name of Mr. Hyman. Being marked for both candidates the ballots were thrown aside.

Another ballot that was marked "Hyman, socialist," was counted for the cabinet minister, and there are others which the judge may allow or reject, changing the result. prevailed in No. 9 division of St. Vin-

Thus spoke J. P. Whitney, leader of the Conservative opposition, last night to The World.

Mr. Whitney continued: "We will, however, welcome an opportunity given to the people to say whether this dis-creditable ministry shall remain any longer in power." Asked as to his opinion on the defeat of Mr. Borden in Halifax Mr. Whitney said: "Mr. Borden deserves hearty said: "Mr. Borden deserves hearty thanks for his magnificent work since he has been leader of the Conservative party in the Dominion. He has shown himself fully competent in every respect to fill the position of leader of a great party. In common with the entire Conservative party I will regret very much to hear of his refirement and I certainly hope to see him in the next house in his position as leader."

Mr. Whitney arrived in Toronto yesterday morning from Morrisburg, and will be at the Queen's till Thursday night. He met many prominent Conservatives during the day and talked over the situation with them.
