MURDERED AND BODY PROPPED UP IN ROYAL BOX IN THEATRE

Vienna, Dec. 8.—Attendants at the theatre in Warsaw, on entering the royal box to dust the seats ready for the evening performance, saw a figure sitting very erect in one of the seats of the box that was hidden in shadow.

Turning on the lights they discovered that the figure was the corpse of a well-dressed man, and that his pockets had been emptied. A doctor was called and declared that the man had been dead for many hours.

SICK HEADACHE A Symptom of Troubles Which are Removed by Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills.

Sick headaches are not merely afflictions to be borne as patiently as possible—they are danger signals. They never come unless the digestive system is out of order, and their regular recurrence is proof positive of serious trouble and a warning that should be heeded promptly.

Sick headaches are caused by indigestion, biliousness, and constipation, and no amount of "cheap headache cures" will do more than temporarily relieve them. The only way to get rid of them entirely is to cure the Constipation and Indigestion that is causing them.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills will do this quicker or more effectively than Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills are purely vegetable in character and are free from any harmful drug. For over fifty years they have been in constant use in Canada, and have proved most effective in regulating the bowels, adding digestion, banishing sick headaches and restoring vigorous health.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills have stood the test for over fifty years, 25c. at all dealers. W. H. Comstock Co., Ltd., Brockville, Ont.

EMANCIPATE THE GIRLS OF SULTAN LAND

Ahmed Riza Bey's Scheme to Lift Them to Western Level

WAR CAUSES CHECK

Lyceum for Moslem Girls to Be Founded With Every European Requisite for Education and Training and Conducted on Lines of Western Civilization

(London Chronicle.)

Constantinople, Nov. 26.—His Excellency Ahmed Riza Bey, who has just been elected, now for the third time president of the Ottoman Chamber of Deputies, has received me to the charming garden of his villa at Cardilli, on the Asiatic shore of the Bosphorus. I have interviewed this distinguished statesman to get the latest information, not about the Italo-Turkish war, which, like everything else in the Near East, is becoming a dull monotonous business, but about the realization of a problem, which will prove, in the near future, of the utmost importance to the whole commonwealth of Young Turkey's constitutional regime.

For many years past the creation of a lyceum for Moslem girls has been the favorite dream of Ahmed Riza Bey, and such an institution will shortly be opened.

As is known, Ahmed Riza Bey lived for a long time in Paris as an exile, being one of the bitterest enemies of the ex-Sultan Abdul Hamid, and of his brutal, despotic away. He was, in that city, editor of a revolutionary newspaper in Turkish and Arabic, a paper exclusively devoted to problems of overthrowing the tyrannical regime of the "Red" Sultan. It is not too much to say that the bloodiest revolution of three years ago was largely due to Ahmed Riza Bey's intrepid campaign.

Abdul Hamid feared Ahmed Riza Bey more than any other leader of the revolution, as he wielded a weapon far mightier than the sword, the weapon of an expert pen. Thus, when Ahmed Riza Bey returned to Constantinople, the ex-Sultan attempted every possible overture to make a friend of him. At their first meeting he embraced and kissed him. It was a judicious kiss, and left the recipient unmoved. Abdul tried then to bestow on him various grants and privileges, but they were not accepted.

"Then, one day," continued Ahmed Riza Bey, "Abdul Hamid called me and said: 'Ahmed, art thou still cross with me? Is there nothing I can do for thee? Do ask me, ask anything thou hast set thy heart upon, and it shall be given thee.' I showed him my attitude all respects to the Sultan, as he was then still our padishah and khalif, but I refused to accept any personal favors from him."

Abdul Hamid's Gift

"This just as I was leaving Yildiz Kiosk, the idea struck me that the ex-Sultan might be made the instrument of the realization of a national task, the ideal of a national lyceum for Moslem girls, the ideal of a national lyceum for Moslem girls, the ideal of a national lyceum for Moslem girls."

Every day of course, how very backward our unhappy country is in the direction of the education of women. This has been all along the curse of our fatherland. We have women enough, but we have no life companions, no mothers in the proper sense of the word. I thought what a stupendous benefit would accrue to the whole of our nation, if we could create an educational centre where the sacred principles connected with the raising of Moslem girls, with the social duties of properly directed motherhood, could be imparted to our rising generation.

But I had no means of realising the scheme, and I thought that Abdul Hamid, who had so cruelly wronged his nation and country for over thirty years, might now be given a chance of doing good. I consequently told him of my plan, and asked him to grant me the land and the building a lyceum for Moslem girls. Next day I got the enjoyable news that this extensive place on that side of the hill, which I had placed in the hands of Ahmed Riza Bey, showed with his outstretched arm the delightfully wooded plateau above his villa—had been given me as a site for my lyceum."

The voice of Ahmed Riza Bey quivered, and his eyes glistened with intense excitement and delight as he uttered these words:—

"You can walk on that plateau for about an hour, so extensive it is," added my host, with enthusiasm, "and I defy anybody to find another place on the whole of our charming Bosphorus which would equal this in picturesqueness and beauty."

I was offered the opportunity of inspecting the place, and indeed no site more admirably adapted for the erection of an educational establishment could be found anywhere in the whole extent of "the great city of Constantinople the Great." The view from the hill of the Bosphorus, of the Golden Horn, and the Marmora Sea, is magnificent beyond description. The large vineyards, the numerous plane and cypress groves, and their own exquisite charm of cool shade, of variegated green, of perfect quietude and peace.

250,000 Needed

"The site alone is not enough, of course," there was a melancholy intonation in these words of Ahmed Riza Bey. "Nor is the erection you see on that side of the hill all that is needed. To make my dream a tangible reality, I require a sum of about 250,000. The government has permitted me to arrange an international lottery. Money was beginning to come in readily and liberally from all quarters, showing that the need of a national lyceum was felt everywhere. Unfortunately, however, the disastrous war with Italy and the extensive confiscations which completely reduced to ashes large quarters of Istanbul, diverted public interest elsewhere, and my scheme is experiencing at present a very regrettable deadlock. I do not despair, however, and trust that by next year the whole institution will be put into working order."

"The chief object I have in view," Ahmed Riza Bey continued, "is the elevation of the sense of motherhood and of its sacred responsibilities in the minds and hearts of our daughters. I was greatly struck during my long exile by the splendid beneficial results that accrue to European countries from good women brought up with the ideal of gentle, sweet, self-sacrificing, yet strong and rational motherhood. Give us such motherhood and our country will be saved, prosperous and happy. Nothing else will do it."

Ahmed Riza Bey's plan is to equip his lyceum for 250 Moslem girls from 5 to 15 years of age. The staff of teachers will consist of European ladies with a perfect, modern education. Only those in possession of a full certificate will receive appointment. Apart from all the necessary preliminary subjects there will be taught also domestic economy. Physiological and hygienic training will receive the utmost attention. Instruction in nursing will be all-round and thorough.

As I was leaving Ahmed Riza Bey showed me a spacious bathing house erected on the shady, delightful shore of the Bosphorus.

"This is for my children," he said to me with a smile, "my 250 children, who are to people this charming world, to make it, and my heart as well, doubly bright with their happy laughter, their merriment, and their intelligent studies."

"Long live, then, future Moslem motherhood!" I exclaimed. My host warmly pressed my hand.

"What about gymnastics?" was my parting question.

"Ample provision will be made for that," was the proud reply. "My children, the future mothers of our nation, will have to learn the wisdom of the classical subjects. Men's arms in corpore sano. And I am sure they will learn it as easily and as readily as their efforts and their looks."

UNIQUE WATCH

Works all Contained in a Pearl—It is Worth $6,000

Geneva, Dec. 8.—The watch-making firm of Louis Galopin, of Chaux de Fonds, has just completed a wonderful watch, the only one of its kind in the world.

A pearl, which weighs forty-five grains and has a diameter of about half an inch, contains all the works. It took an employee of the firm fifteen months to hollow out the pearl and fix in the whole.

The watch, which is guaranteed to keep good time and may be worn as a ring on the finger, is worth $6,000.

WAS A GREAT SUFFERER FOR FIVE YEARS FROM DYSPEPSIA.

Dyspepsia is one of the most prevalent troubles of civilized life, and thousands of people suffer untold agony after every meal, for nearly everything that enters a weak dyspeptic stomach acts as an irritant.

The long train of distressing symptoms, which render a dyspeptic's life so miserable, are completely cured by the use of Burdock Blood Bitters. Mrs. Wm. H. Blood writes: "I thought I would write and tell you of the great benefit Burdock Blood Bitters has done for me. I tell you how thankful I am."

"For five years I had been a great sufferer from dyspepsia, and I had tried different doctors and proprietary remedies, but I got no relief. One day a friend told me to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I did not have much faith in it, but I thought I would give it a trial. To-day I am completely cured, and I will always recommend it."

Burdock Blood Bitters has been on the market for about thirty-five years and is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

KING MAY SECURE A RESIDENCE IN IRELAND

SEVERAL WORN AT LONDON OPERA Performance—One Had Velvet Buttons

London, Dec. 8.—"Quiz," in the London "Observer" says: There is no doubt whatever about the arrival of the blue dress suit. The color is very dark but it is quite distinct from the black. The suit is a gentleman who was with the "Majesty of Sovereign's party."

I would lay stress on this, because the blue dress suit has been regarded in society as the leader of the latest fashion, and it is not easy to imagine one of his friends having sufficient courage to go into his presence attired in anything likely to be considered daring, or in any way opposed to good taste. In short, I regard this admission of blue dress cloth into the de Sovereign circle as the highest possible confirmation of my recent announcement of it as the new style.

I would like to put on record a postscript of the interesting fact that a well-known patron of opera appeared in the stalls at Hammerstein's on that wonderful opening night in a dress suit which, of a dark blue dress suit, had velvet buttons to it, there being four small ones on the sleeves, the cuffs of which were marked by a thin velvet piping. The collar, too, was of velvet.

On a man inclined to jewelry and fancy socks or tinted waistcoat, this suit would undoubtedly look glaringly conspicuous. But, as I have so often pointed out, so much in these matters depends upon the wearer. He, whose coat I have described, was tall, slim, middle-aged and clean shaven; his waistcoat was of white linen and not too pointedly cut in the foreparts; his studs and waistcoat buttons were plain white enamel.

I was pleased to observe a scarcity of grey dress waistcoats. Indeed, I saw only three in all that great assembly, two being worn by foreign musical critics, and the remaining one decorating the facade of the composer-conductor, M. Nougues.

PROCESSES OF MANUFACTURING PULP

(Forestry Press Bulletin No. 31.)
These processes were used to manufacture into wood-pulp the 600,000 cords of pulpwood used in 1910. These are the mechanical or grinding process and the chemical processes, which depend upon the use of sulphuric acid. Statistics are given by the Forestry Branch of the Department of the Interior show that wood used by the mechanical process formed more than three-quarters of the total during 1910, a greater percentage than at any time in the past. Unlimited supply of clean water is a necessity in the manufacture of wood by the mechanical process so that Quebec is the province best adapted for it. Spruce furnished over four-fifths of the wood used for mechanical pulp, Balsam contributed one-sixteenth, with small quantities of hemlock and poplar making up the balance.

The sulphite process accounted for one-fifth of the pulpwood and was used slightly more in Ontario than in Quebec. Nearly seventy per cent of the wood used in this process was spruce, mostly from Ontario. Balsam furnished thirty per cent, about three-quarters of which was from Quebec and the same province used a small quantity of poplar in this process. Barely two per cent of the total amount of pulpwood was manufactured by the soda process, although Canada has the distinction of having the oldest soda mill in America. Quebec manufactured more than three-quarters of the pulp made by the soda process. This process was the principal method used in the reduction of hemlock. Of the total used by the soda process spruce formed seventy per cent, hemlock seventeen per cent, and poplar ten per cent. Balsam is not adapted to the soda treatment.

FOR A SICK, SOUR, BILIOUS STOMACH, GAS OR INDIGESTION SURELY TAKE CASCARET

That awful sourness, belching of acid and foul gases; that pain in the pit of the stomach, the heartburn, nervousness, nausea, bloating, constipation, indigestion, and sick headache, means indigestion; a disordered stomach which cannot be regulated until you remove the cause. It isn't your stomach fault. Your stomach is as good as any. But it immediately cleanses, regulates the stomach, removes the acids and gases, and loosens food and gas; take the excess bile from the liver, and get rid of the decomposed waste matter and poison from the system. Then your stomach trouble ends forever. A Cascaret tonight will strain you out of morning sickness, and your family feel good for months. Don't let the children—the little insides need a good, gentle cleaning, too.
