FREIGHTS ON RIVER BOATS HEAVY NOW

Much Produce Being Brought Down These Days

AHEAD OF LAST YEAR

Passenger Traffic, However This Season Has Been Below the Average, Say Steamship Owners—Service About the Same As Other Years

The heavy season for freight on the river has begun with a rush which bodes well for a prosperous fall traffic, almost every day now sees farm and dairy produce in very large quantities coming down the stream on all the boats of the different lines. This week was really the start of the fall season from the boat owners' point of view, as there was a great increase in freight, particularly barrelled goods, such as potatoes, apples, and crates of various kinds. Last week was a good one in this regard, however, many of the farmers being early with their fall shipments.

From now until the close of navigation, which will probably be about the middle of November, the steamboats will be kept busy bringing to the city markets the products of the farm and the fruits of the orchard, and it is expected that, in the quantity of such commodities shipped, the standard of other years will be eclipsed. This has been the case thus far this year, freights being far heavier than last summer, and indications point to a continuance of this order of things.

While shipments of goods to and from the city have been extra large, it cannot be said that the same is the case with the passenger traffic, as this end of the steamship business on the river has been behind the standard of last year, although an average year, when compared in this connection with seasons previous to 1909, which was a particularly good year for tourist travel.

"The weather this year has been a drawback to tourist travel," said F. W. Corey, of the Star Line Co., yesterday, "and the class of people who did take outings seemed to be below the general standard of tourists who usually take passage up the river during the summer months. Last year was one of the best known for a long time in the number of passengers on the river steamers, but this season will not nearly come up to it. Of course, it may well be attributed to a certain extent to the weather, which on days when there were numbers of tourists in town, was too disagreeable to appeal to them for a trip on the river."

The steambest accommodation was as good as in former years, and there were few, if any, complaints about the service. Large numbers of citizens took advantage of the late Saturday afternoon trips to spend Sunday in the country, returning in the evening for their work on Monday. Many new cottages were erected along the river and travel by local people was well up to the mark.

FEWER CASES OF DESEASE IN CITY THIS YEAR

Board of Health Record Shows an Improvement of Conditions—Better Sewerage System a Help

It is a matter of much gratification to the board of health that during the past months of this year, there have been few cases of contagious disease in the city, and that at the present time, while there are a few cases of typhoid and scarlet fever, there are none of diphtheria, and practically a clean bill of health is reported. This condition of affairs is a great improvement over other years, when typhoid and scarlet fever, and diphtheria were quite common even at times, ranging to epidemics in some neighborhoods.

It is considered that the change has been wrought by the improved sewerage system, and the stringent measures taken by the board in the matter of public health facilities on all premises in the city. Many of the cases of fever reported this year, are considered by those who should know to have been caused by visits of the common house fly, which it has been found, is the source of much disease, carrying germs from filth to place, unobserved.
During the coming year the sewerage system of the city will, it is expected, be fully in operation, and this will help greatly in the prevention of disease. Residents of Chesley street in particular feel the need of a sewer, and the board of health is with them in the matter of having one installed.

POLICE COURT

For the first time in five years, Joseph Murphy, formerly an habitual frequenter of the police court, appeared before Judge Ritchie this morning on a charge of drunkenness, pleaded guilty and had a fine of $8 stand against him. Murphy has been working at St. Martin's and promised to return there. John Lindy was fined $8 and Michael Manning $4 on the same charge.
Herbert Blois, was remanded on a charge of being drunk and using profane language to Frank Wallace in Sydney street. Wallace said the man came into his store and used bad language, besides tearing his scarf.
Herbert Macomber, a young Greek, pleaded guilty to stealing articles valued at about $5 from the store of John de Angelis, King street, where he was employed. The property consisting of brushes, shoe polish and two footstools, was found in his boarding house. He was remanded.

No successor to Dr. Stackhouse has yet been thought of by the committee of movement as his departure was not looked for.
