The coroner's inquest into the Mea-han case concluded on Thursday with a verdict of murder, naming John Walsh, the man at present under arrest, as the guilty party. rest, as the guilty party. Considerable new evidence was brought out, the principal being the statements of Mrs. Markle, the de-ceased's sister, and Patrick Quinlan, the deceased's brother-in-law, that Meahan while in the hospital told them that it was Walsh who struck the blow. Scott E. Morrell appeared for the Coroner Berryman then announced the case closed, and Mr. Morrell brief-ly addressed the jury, calling their attention to the fact that the verdict would in no way affect the further movements of the police or crown offi-cers. He criticized the evidence, some of which he declared would not be admitted in a court of hom the case closed, and Mr. Morrell briefidmitted in a court of law.

Coroner Berryman briefly reviewed the evidence, criticizing statements K XX here and there, and impressing the importance of others upon the jurors, concluding with the statement that there were only two or three verdicts there were only two or three verdicts they could return. If they found Walsh guilty it was either of murder or manslaughter; if not guilty, then accidental death; but he could not conceive how they could bring in any other verdict than murder or manslaughter.

The jury after being out about fortyfive minutes returned with the following verdict:

"We, the jury empanelled to enquire as to the cause of the death of John Meahan, find from the evidence adduced that the deceased came to his death by a stone in the hands of one John Walsh, at present a prisoner arrested on suspicion of having as-saulted the said John Meahan on the 5th day of October; and that he did eloniously kill and murder the said John Meahan."

The prisoner occupied a seat by the ide of his counsel, Mr. Morrell, all through the proceedings, and seemed in no way affected by the damaging evidence against him. He paid close attention to all the witnesses and at all times appeared calm and unaffected. When the verdict was read he seemed to evince no further interest in it than did the ordinary spectators, of whom there were quite a number. The prisoner's father sat near him all
