DR. DANIEL IN CARLETON.

Dr. Daniel paid a visit to the conservative workers in the two west side wards on Saturday night. It was quite an informal visit, but both in St. John and Carleton, the doctor found a large number of workers gathered together. At both halls he gave addresses, which were most carefully listened to. The audience applauded heartily as the doctor showed the utility of the claims made with regard to the government's railway policy by the liberals, and showed marked appreciation when he spoke on fiscal matters. At both meetings the doctor was given a great ovation when he entered the hall, and he was heartily cheered on concluding his address.

HEAVY ENOUGH.
"So you want to marry my daughter, eh?" said the stern father. "Do you think you can support her in the style to which she has been accustomed?"
"Sure thing," answered the young man who knew whereof he spoke, "that is if she doesn't get any stouter."

A fire in the wooden tenement on the corner of North and George streets, owned by Thos. Gibbon, called out the fire department on Saturday night. The fire is believed to have been of incendiary origin.

Sporting News.

FOOTBALL.

Carleton, 11; Trinity, 3.
At the Shamrock grounds on Saturday in the intermediate league series on Saturday Carleton defeated Trinity by a score of 11 to 3.

At 4.30 the Carleton and Trinity football teams lined out with about their usual formation. Wright was playing left wing on Carleton's backs, in place of Mosher, and Robb was a new man on Trinity.

In the first half Carleton scored 11 points while Trinity failed to get the ball over the line. In the second half Trinity made one or two changes in their line-up and after a few minutes secured the ball and scored a point. The standing if the teams in the intermediate league is as follows:

Played.	Won.	Lost.	Tied.	Pts.
Carleton.....	5	3	0	21
Neptunes.....	5	3	0	21
Trinity.....	5	1	3	19
Fairville.....	5	5	0	19

Penna, 11; Harvard, 0.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 29.—The third surprise of the football season occurred at Soldiers' Field today, when the Harvard eleven was not only defeated and prevented from scoring, but was completely outplayed in every department of the game by the Pennsylvania football team. The final score was Pennsylvania, 11; Harvard, 0.

Only three times throughout the entire game was the Harvard eleven within striking distance of the Pennsylvania goal. On two of these occasions she fumbled the ball. On the third she was held for four downs within seven yards of Pennsylvania's goal.

FREE KINDERGARTEN.

The first meeting of the free kindergarten, held on Saturday night, brought out encouraging reports.

Mrs. H. H. Pickett's report of the first year's working of the kindergarten showed that the number of children attending school was thirty, and they were not only educated and taken care of from nine to twelve o'clock each day, but any deficiencies in clothing were supplied. The children enjoyed themselves and had developed much skill during the past year. The donations received, Mrs. Pickett said, amounted to $27, and with an expenditure of $12 there remained $15 in hand. The work, however, during the second year would entail much heavier expense. The salaries paid had been only nominal, but in future would have to be increased and the results achieved had been so satisfactory that Mrs. Pickett, on behalf of the committee, hoped the necessary increase in income would be forthcoming.

During the evening Mrs. M. F. Byrner, of Chicago, delivered an instructive address on primary work.

CAPT. FRITZ MAY REGAIN HIS SIGHT.

Dr. H. D. Fritz, with his brother, Capt. E. J. Fritz, arrived home Saturday from Paris, where they had been in consultation with some of the most eminent specialists in that city, in reference to Capt. Fritz, who was unfortunately blinded by a bullet during the middle of May last. While improvement in his eyes had been made, the doctor, naturally anxious about his brother's condition, recommended this trip to New York, where one of the most famous eye specialists, and most extensive experience, could be consulted.

Dr. Fritz's treatment of the eyes was fully endorsed, and surprise expressed at the amount of improvement during the brief time he had been under his care. It will no doubt be very gratifying to the captain's many friends to know that strong hopes of still greater improvement in his condition may be confidently entertained.

WHAT MR. EMERSON SAYS.

"We want to help the Western people to get this grain to the Canadian seaboard? Do we want to help them to get it over an all-Canadian line? And do we want to make it help effective? Then I say that the only way you can do that is by demanding and insisting upon the carrying out of the idea of the extension of a Government owned road across the continent."—Hon. H. R. Emerson, Minister of Railways, May 1903.

QUEBEC IS COMING ROUND.

A prominent business man who has been in Montreal recently, brings encouraging news that the people of Quebec are going to do well for Mr. Borden. As an instance of this he mentions that the board of trade is opposed to the Grand Trunk plan, and the chamber of commerce and the French board of trade have also declared against it. They are of the opinion that if MacKenzie and Mann can build a road with the limited amount of assistance they have received, the Grand Trunk could do so as well. The solid business men regard it as a "gift enterprise" of the greatest magnitude.

COURT WILL DECIDE IF KISS IS WORTH $15,000.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Oct. 29.—Whether a stolen kiss is worth $15,000 is the question which will have to be decided by Judge Cochran, in Covington, Ky.

Mrs. Grant Mitts, a society leader of Mason, Ky., thinks she is entitled to that amount for a kiss she declared was stolen in June by J. B. Alexander, a friend of her husband, who made a call while the husband was not at home.

As a result of the larceny of the kiss Mrs. Mitts declares she is a nervous wreck and has been subjected to much humiliation.

WHAT HE WANTED.

The Tramp—Say, mister, would you kindly give me $10 to get something to eat with?

The Parson—What, $10 to get something to eat with? Why, my good man, I never pay more than 50 cents for a meal.

The Tramp—That's all right, mister, but I want to get a set of false teeth. See?

CAN WE GO WITHOUT SLEEP.

With the increase of mental power and strength of character, the time allotted to sleep can be correspondingly decreased," declared Axel Emil Gibson in a comprehensive article written for the Medical Record on The Genesis of Sleep. Cases are well known of men of towering intellect, such as Lord Coke, Sir William Jones, Bismarck, Gladstone, Zola, who rarely exceeded the limit of six hours, and of Goethe, Schiller, Napoleon, Balzac, Humboldt and Mirabeau, who mostly contented themselves with four or five hours sleep out of 24. There is good testimony that Jeremy Taylor, Baxter and Bacon seldom allowed more than three hours of sleep a day. Now comes Dr. Gibson, asserting that in the progress of humanity toward complete diurnal and nocturnal self-consciousness sleep is a transient phenomenon, serving as a constant means and a gradually eliminative sedative to that end. That is, the race of the future will not require sleep, and the disposition to do without it is already discernable, says the Philadelphia Ledger.

Dr. Gibson reasons upon certain positions. It is an established fact that the vital processes are governed by a dual consciousness, seated in the upper and lower brain, alternating in activity during the hours of sleep and waking. In one respect the duality is in volitional control of the body and mind; in the other it attends to the reflex, involuntary functioning of the physical organism. During sleep the latter, the automatic, continues to operate, while the former, the conscious, is held in abeyance. Dr. Gibson believes, however, that the equilibrium with the waking government, which in its turn seeks constantly to suppress the sleeping government, the temporary recalcitrance of the automatic sub-conscious forces.

But recurrent recovery by these forces must become less marked as the race progresses. In the life-history of our planet the vegetable consciousness precedes the cerebral. To a certain point can vegetative life protect itself. To survive in an alien environment it requires a reviving, and in response to this demand has gradually been evolved the cerebro-spinal system. This powerful system has gained control over the organs of locomotion, protection, and support, and is extending its conquest to the internal reflex organs. The semi-evolutionary working of the lungs, and, exceptionally, the volitional movement of the heart, witness the slow but sure conquest of the vegetative side of our nature. As the struggle proceeds and as the self-consciousness extends its control over the sub-conscious it will encounter less resistance, the breathing spells will become shorter, and will finally disappear altogether. Sleep, the last vestige of the vegetative side of our nature, will have been eliminated. Such rest as may be taken will be consciously administered.

Dr. Gibson introduces certain checks to test the soundness of this reasoning. For instance, lower animals whose cerebral system is yet too undeveloped to offer any telling resistance to the vegetative side, are unable to sleep. The same fact is recognizable in unusually developed human intellects—those of the great geniuses, who are so prone to the domain of sleep in their case it is the vegetative nature that is subdued and can make no struggle. The intellects, the sensitive, and the weak-minded require the most sleep. In such individuals the conflict of the two consciousnesses is more nearly equal, with a consequent loss of grip upon the sense functions, which leads into a condition of inertia. To the normally active mind, of course, fatigue and sleep follow upon prolonged attention and aggressive action. By virtue of the power of concentration, innate in most individuals, he concludes that the mind is capable of forcing the instrument to yield a moderate amount of work in excess of its normal limits.

WIRELESS MESSAGES UPON A PAPER RIBBON.

Nephew of Atlantic Cable Inventor Invents Mechanical Microscope For Electricity.

GREAT BARRINGTON, Mass., Oct. 29.—Stephen Dudley Field, nephew of the Atlantic cable inventor, has recorded the Morse alphabet on paper tape by means of wireless telegraphy. The experiment was carried out in the presence of friends of Mr. Field at his electrical laboratory in Stockbridge, and was the crowning of two years of hard study.

The feat, which has baffled experts since telegraphing without wires became established, was made possible by Mr. Field's invention of what he calls an amplifier. It is a delicate machine of wire coils and magnets, so adjusted as to receive variations in the use of one of its novel features is the use of threads of glass one-thousandth of an inch in diameter, to connect some of the smaller parts. In the demonstration the telephone receiver was cut out from the electrotype message. The current was turned into the amplifier instead, the message was elicited out in Morse characters in the tape. The amplifier, Mr. Field explained, is nothing but a mechanical microscope for electricity.

CHURCH SUPPER COST HIM HIS PULPIT.

Preacher Denounces Entertainments to Lift Church Debt and Elder Removes Him.

WALKERSBARE, Pa., Oct. 29.—Having opposed church suppers and entertainments, declaring they rob the community and cater to low instincts and base motives, the Rev. Wilmer Evans Coffman, of the Dorchester Methodist church, was today removed at the request of some members of the congregation by Presiding Elder L. C. Murdoch.

The church is $600 in debt and some of the church societies have been giving suppers and entertainments in an effort to raise this debt. Since Mr. Coffman expressed his views many of the congregation sided with him, and the attendance at the supper fell off. The young men have been removed and the congregation is now more stirred up by the fact.

Some time ago Mr. Coffman read a paper before a meeting of ministers. He declared that the suppers and entertainments rob the community, make persons extravagant, and petty jealous. He appealed to the lower instincts and motives—the desire for food and amusement—belonging to the service of Mammon, teach persons to place a lower estimate on the ministry, while the word and cause become a sort of trading stock and the support of the churches.

These remarks caused much comment, and when the church was called to order to announce the supper and entertainments from the pulpit, those who did not believe with him rebelled. He said today after being removed that he was disappointed, but not surprised, and that he would continue to believe that the church should not compete with stores, restaurants and concert halls to procure money necessary to meet its expenses.

ST. DAVID'S RALLY DAY.

The "Rally Day" services in St. David's church yesterday were well attended. A special programme had been arranged for the occasion, and was carried out under the direction of Robt. Reid, superintendent of the Sunday school. The platform had been decorated with flowers and ferns in a very tasteful manner, and overhead appeared the motto, "God is Love, Miss G. Adams presided at the organ and the Sunday school choir assisted in the exercises.

The address of welcome was given by Mr. Reid, lesson for the day was taught by Mrs. M. P. Bryner, S. J. McGowan gave a vocal solo, and the secretary, Chester A. Earle, read the roll of classes. Two hundred and forty persons took part in the exercises. The address of welcome was given by Mr. Reid, lesson for the day was taught by Mrs. M. P. Bryner, S. J. GUilty BUT HURT.

"I was governor of my state for two terms," said a well known western politician, "and I made up my mind as soon as I was sworn in the first time to right any wrong I might find in the two state prisons. I had somehow got the idea that many innocent men were sent there."
"And did you find it so?" was asked.
"I did. There were over a thousand convicts in all, and I investigated 200 cases before I stopped. According to his own story, every one was an innocent man and the victim of injustice. There was just one exception. He had been sent to prison for stealing a cow, and he lied to me for a long time. At length, one day after I had gone over the case with him for the fifth time and showed him that he must be guilty, he said:
"If's no use to try to deceive you, governor, I'll admit that I did the stealing, but what hurts my feelings is the mistake they made. It wasn't a cow at all, but a blamed old jackass, and the jury convicted me because it was sworn to that he gave twelve quarts of milk a day."

THIS IS AWFUL.

The train was passing through a section devoted to the raising of live stock. "I wonder why it is," queried the passenger who had a mania for originating fool questions, "that a cow has such a high forehead?"

"I suppose," replied the philosophical man in the next seat, "it is due to the animal's predilection for browsing."
