FREDERICTON, Aug. 1.—The funeral of the late C. James Wilson quartermaster of the 71st batallion took place this afternoon with military honors. The procession was made up as follows: Firing party from 71st battalion, 71st battalion band, members of the fire department, No. 1 hos cart, containing casket and drawn by members of No. 2 company, of which deceased was captain, with sergeants of 71st as pall bearers, chief mourn-ers, officers 71st battalion in uniform, members of Court Milicete, I. O. F., Sons of England, employes of Cooper's factory, general public. Interment was made at the rural cemetery, where the customary three volleys were fired as the casket was lowered.

Jared Boone, one of the best known residents of St. Marys, died at his home there this morning of typhoid fe-ver. Deceased, who was foreman for Whitman Brewer, bridge builder, con-tracted fever about three weeks ago from drinking polluted well water at Rusagornish, Sunbury county, where he was engaged overseeing the con-struction of a bridge for Mr. Brewer, and he was immediately brought to his home. Yesterday his physician was greatly encouraged by apparent im-provement in his condition and all danger was thought to be past. His death this morning was quite unex-pected and resulted from heart failure. He was quite bright a few minutes before he died. Deceased was about 52 years of age, was captain of No. 1 Co., 71st hattalion, and brevet major. He would have succeeded Major Loggie as major of the battalion on the latter's proposed promotion to colonel when Col. Alexander's retirement takes place after this fall's camp. He leaves a widow, four sons and three daughters. This is the second death among the prominent officers of the battalion this week, and both from the same

TO DETERMINE BACTERIA. Provincial Bacteriologist Dr. G. A B. Addy has had placed in eight drug stores about the city, for the use of the medical profession, culture outfits to develop and determine the germs of disease, more principally those of diphtheria. In all cases of throat diseases having any of the symptoms of diphtheria, the physician attending the patient will inoculate one of these sets and develop the germs. They will then be sent to the hospital for examination by Dr. Addy. The in-struments have been placed in the drug stores of Messrs. George Hoben, Main street; S. Hawker, Mill, street; G. A. Moore, Brussels street; James McKinney, jr., St. James street; A. Chipman Smith & Co., Charlotte street, and W. C. Rudman Allan, Carleton. The culture sets will soon be placed in other New Brunswick towns and cities, in order to assist the profession in combating the dread diseases diphtheria and typhoid fever.
