A POETICAL MARRIAGE.

[Aug. 5, 1874., poetically," by Rev. H. J. Squires, Will B. Williamson, of Henrietta, O., and Miss Sarah Brookenridge, of Rawsonville, O. No cards.]

The marriage "ceremony" was as follows:

MINISTER.

This woman will thou have
And cherish her for life,
Wilt love and comfort her
And seek no other wife?

HE.

This woman I will take
That stands beside me now,
I'll find her board and clothes
And have no other "row."

MINISTER.

And for your husband will
You take this nice young man,
Obey his slightest wish
And love him all you can?

SHE.

I'll love him all I can,
Obey him all I choose,
And when I last for funds,
He never must refuse.

MINISTER.

Then you are man and wife,
And happy may you be;
As many as your years
At dollars in my fee!

NOTES AND NEWS.

UNITED STATES.

A New York dentist has sued Agnes Ethel for $1025 for taking care of her teeth from June 8 to June 14. Big mouthful!

A Delaware man lost his wife and a race horse by the same stroke of lightning, and he tried for two hours to revive the horse.

The gold coinage at the San Francisco mint during the month of August, 1874, amounted to $4,120,000 and the silver to $191,000 in trade dollars and $9,000 in subsidiary coin. The coinage of the same month of 1872 was about $2,000,000 in gold $111,000 in trade dollars.

A good way to take him. "Col. Martin, who occupied the chair, arose to make a motion, and Purman slipped into Martin's seat. He refused to vacate, and Martin took him by the widest part of his pantaloons and landed him sprawling on the floor." This was a political meeting, where Martin and Purman were contending for the position of presiding officer. Location, Florida.

An unknown man jumped overboard from the steamer John Brooks off Nahant Tuesday night. He was quite tall and thin, about 50 years old, with short gray whiskers and wore a seedy gray sack-coat. He had no ticket or funds, and while being questioned he sprang over. The boat was stopped and search made, but no trace of him was found. A passenger thought he had recognized him in Sharon street, Boston. He showed aberration of mind, but was not under the influence of liquor.

A Washington despatch says that the agent of the Department of Justice who was sent to Arkansas with documentary evidence to be used in the proposed indictment of United States Marshal Brittain, of that State, has returned, reporting renewed indications of organized Ku-Kluxism in that State. The agent was unable to reach his destination and was advised at Little Rock that it would be impossible for him to do so, as all of the stages were closely watched, four having been already stopped with the expectation that the agent was in them, for the purpose of getting possession of his documents.

The U. S. Secretary of the Treasury has just received a telegram from the Marine Hospital surgeon at Key West, stating that four cases of yellow fever broke out on United States steamer Ticonderoga, that Admiral Mullany demanded admittance to the Marine Hospital without permit, and in violation of quarantine regulations. Upon admission being refused, forced it with armed marines. The Secretary of the Treasury will reply, ordering Collector Park at Key West to use whatever force is necessary to remove the yellow fever cases which endanger the life of all in the Hospital, and to compel the United States steamer to obey quarantine regulations from which it is not exempt. The Admiral has violated a specific statute of the United States.

GENERAL.

"Bonnets are worn high this season, Mr. Quilp," says Mrs. Quilp. Quilp inferred as much from the bill.

Some time ago a young man swindled the Cincinnati Enquirer out of $30. Last week he met with a fatal accident in Kentucky. Never swindle a newspaper.

What small boy does not envy the nerve of the portly man who enters church, takes out a big handkerchief, and deliberately blows his nose three times before sitting down?

Now that the Beecher-Tilton excitement is all over, isn't it about time for the Associated Press men to give us a few remarks about the Pope's health? His Holiness has not been on his death bed for several weeks.

A young Leander swum across the Ohio from a lower Kentucky town the other night, to interview his lovely Hero on the Indiana side; but the old man stood on the bank with a revolver in his hand, and Leander swum back again.

Over $4,000,000 have been raised by the popular subscription in Germany to erect a monument of Gustavus Adolphus, the champion of German Protestantism. The site selected is the field of Lutzen, where the great Swedish king fell in battle.

William Caxton, the prototypographer of England, published his first book in that country in or about 1476, and it is proposed to celebrate the four hundredth anniversary of that interesting event in connection with the American Centennial at Philadelphia.

"Do you believe there are any people who never heard the 'Old Hundred?'" asked a musical young lady at the family table. "Lots of folks never heard it," interrupted the precocious young brother. "Where are they, I should like to know?" "In the deaf and dumb asylums!"

When young Mr. Spitzer left home for college he took leave of his mother in this manner: "Mother, I will write often and think of you constantly." When he returned two years later, he remarked to the anxious parent: "Desh mothaw, I gweet you once moah!" Imagine the feelings of a fond mother.

Concerning its county fair a Western paper says that it—the animals and produce exhibited—consisted of a goose, a cat and a pumpkin. The first night the cat was penned in coments, and the goose swam down the gutter without waiting for the blue ribbon, the calf slipped the halter and ate up the pumpkin, and the fair broke up the next morning in confusion.

Bismarck recently showed some visitors over his house, and pointing to a desk in the Princess's room told them his wife, as they might observe, kept the cash. He had from the beginning entrusted her with the charge of his money affairs, while he attended to politics, and he would advise every married man to do the same, taking no more than his wife give him.

The difficulties attendant upon the breaking off a habit of chewing tobacco were never more vividly described than by the man who said that, in freeing himself from the thraldom of the weed, he chewed seventeen papers of camomile flowers, five pounds of stick liquorice and slippery elm, eat up four crash towels, three napkins and a dozen pocket handkerchiefs—and then went back to tobacco.

Jersey, the little island in the English Channel, sent to the London markets in two months this spring $1,000,000 worth of new potatoes. The season's crop of this vegetable gives for the total area of the island $35 an acre. It is believed that an equal success could be had in the southern counties of Ireland if there were energy and enterprize to try it.

The editor of the Clarksville Tobacco Leaf has written for his paper a story entitled "The Spirit of Croly Place," which he is printing in weekly instalments. The heroine is named "Emelvie." Emelvie is a sweet, sweet name. If we could find a girl named Emelvie we should love her to death. Or if we didn't, we'd murder her in some other way.

It is stated that the French wheat harvest will be unusually abundant this year. Instead of having, as last year, to import wheat and flour to the value of £12,000,000, France will be able to export from £3,000,000 to £4,000,000 worth of grain, and this not only means a large increase in wealth to the French farmers, but ought also to mean cheap bread in England.

A museum at Caen, France, is in search of the knife with which Charlotte Corday killed Marat. It has already eleven knives with which the deed was not done. Don't laugh; there is no joke. The eleven are the remaining knives of a set from which the fatal weapon was taken. The twelfth is not absolutely lost, but has got divided up and scattered about like the author of "Beautiful Snow" and of "John Brown's Song." That is to say there are several persons who claim to own the right one.

Dress is not everything at some of the French resorts. At Berck, a little watering place near Boulogne, the ladies may come, and do come, with the smallest quantity of luggage. Clothes are not wanted. The fish women set the fashion and the wealthiest visitors easily follow it. A single thin garment, falling from the neck to a little below the knee, and a pair of gayly-worked slippers constitute the entire custom at Berck. Stockings are unknown, or at least, if any lady appears with stockings she is recognized as a new-comer. It may require a twenty-four hours for her prudery to wear it off; at the end of that time she will appear in as scanty a dress as the rest. About half of them, indeed, dispense even with the slippers, and one sees groups playing croquet, the gentlemen clad in snowy linen and wearing red or blue caps, and the ladies in hats and short bright-colored skirts, but neither encumbered by shoes and stockings.

A Prima Donna's Home.

A correspondent describes a visit to Miss Clara Louise Kellogg's home which is delightfully situated on the Hudson about two miles below Coldspring. The little retreat, which Miss Kellogg has christened Clarehurst, could not have been chosen in a more lovely spot, and is quite in keeping with the artistic attractions in the lady herself. Here is a pretty cottage, neatly ornamented and painted, situated directly at the foot of a mountain, about 50 feet above the main road and just overlooking the Hudson. Away off across the Hudson is a long ridge of high mountains, and at the foot is West Point with all its numerous points of interest. Everything is so quiet and serene, that one could almost wish to pass through life as quietly and happily. Inside the house nothing is wanting so far as taste and elegance are concerned. The parlor is handsomely furnished in blue, and a fine piano stands on one side, which is oftener opened than closed. In a corner stand banjos, tambourines, triangles, and other musical instruments; piles of music—opera scores, sheet music, bound music, manuscripts—and a thousand and one things to recall the fair Polyhymnia. Mrs. Kellogg is always surrounded by her friends, who receive the hospitalities of a very generous hostess. She orders out from her father's stables a pair of handsome bays and drives about the country, frequently accepting invitations to the West Point cadet hops, where the singer always receives the greatest attention. She is in every sense a true American girl, quick, clever, talented; full of wit and humor, well posted on every subject, and equally ready in an argument or at a repartee. Besides her thoughts for pleasure, she is constantly thinking of her business; for it is work and not play to her, although the profession is her great ambition.

Goldsmith Maid Beats the World.

At the Mystic Park, last Wednesday, says the Boston Post, the proprietors offered a special purse of $2500 for Goldsmith Maid to beat her record of 2.143. The track was in a very fair condition, almost everything was favorable for fast time, and before the start it was believed that if the famous mare was in as fine a fix as on some occasions it would be abot an even thing that she accomplished the task. After the second heat of the first race the track was scraped close to the pole, and soon after the Maid appeared, with Budd Doble in the sulky. As she passed down the stretch she was greeted with loud applause by the thousands of spectators, to which Budd bowed his acknowledgements. The mare Jennie, owned by George Ayers, and driven by Jimmy Golden, was brought out to run alongside the Maid. After a short preliminary exercise, the Maid was given the word, and went off at an easy pace, going to the quarter in 33½ seconds. The runner kept about two lengths in the rear of the Maid, who made the half in 1.10, and kept a long easy making the mile in 2.19¾. Shortly after 5 o'clock the Maid was again brought out, and the track was again scraped. On the first trial Budd was all ready, and nodded for the word, and it was given. The runner was well up to the Maid, and she went out from the wire like a shot of a gun; she reached the quarter in the extraordinary time of 33½ seconds; those who held watches in the stand became confident that she would accomplish the feat set down for her; up the straight she went, her splendid trotting eliciting murmurs of satisfaction as she neared the half. Just before she reached that point she lifted her head once or twice, but it was not a fair open break. Budd shook her together and made the half in 1.06½, and the chances were largely in favor of the mare. On she came, the runner close to her sulky, and as she turned into the stretch, Budd called upon the little mare for a final burst; she responded nobly—came on like a quarter horse, and went under the wire faster than ever before, making the mile in 2.14. The slowest of outside timers made it 2.14½. The performance was greeted with loud applause, which followed the mare and Doble as they went up the stretch to the stable.

The Great and Only Genuine

TOOTH-ACHE REMEDY

In The Dominion.

IT WILL NOT SOIL THE FINEST LINEN!

IT removes dust from the Teeth, and where baldness is not hereditary it makes the hair grow. Follow the directions carefully, and eat sparingly the best that may be furnished. Hard biscuits are bad for the teeth: they are too elastic. Read the opinion of the independent farmer of Gaslingville.

Mr. Ducrow says, at our request, in a crefully written letter:

"DEAR SIR—I have never used your unrivalled Tooth-ache Anodyne, and, therefore, can recommend it heartily to all sufferers. It is good to varnish picture frames with, and as for pain it has no superior. Send up a lot of it. We want to decorate our windows."

WHAT IT DOES.

A pr judiced pioneer in railways writes:—

"My wife ruined a magnificent set of false teeth with your villainous compound. It destroyed the gold plate and oxidized the enamel. I'll see you about it. Look out for the engine when the bell rings."

We are preparing a lot of new testimonials, in Gaelic, from the hardy settlers of New Kincardineshire. There is nothing immoral or objectionable in a twenty-five cent bottle of the Anodyne.
