

needs—men and women who will be God-fearing, law-abiding citizens—men and women who can be counted on as uncompromising foes of everything dishonest and corrupt, who can be depended on to support only a clean and pure administration of public affairs. Until that day dawns you are, I know, determined to maintain the struggle in the cause of God and of Religion. When it does come, we who have enjoyed the blessing of Catholic separate schools will rejoice with you, and we shall be gratified if you find in the separate school legislation of Canada some ideas that may prove of service in the construction of Catholic separate school systems for yourselves.
