"WOMAN"

Oh, woman, how beautiful thou a So fair, so lovely, so bright; So unlike any other being, Yet so strange, so unspeakable,

Oh, woman of the snows, I've never seen one like you before So wonderfully and fearfully mad

So spiteful, so envious, queer-Gossipy, fond of other's business, A tale-bearer of no good news, A street sweeper-a

Love for fine apparel, So frivolous, so innaftural; Secking practse, wants no blame Ready to find fault, seldom sane

So uniwise, always ready To spoil another woman's name (Because you do not understand. Yet out on the streets you train

Homeward you wend your way. Am "At Home," away from home

Then when all is o'er, You cannot think what else to d You take another woman's name And change it for your prey.

Oh; woman of the snows, God made you for other ways, And sent you into this world To be a shiming light.

When you know the truth speak id There is where you tall." When you don't know anything. Don't say you know everything. Don't be influenced by a tale-bare

For woman was never made for that—
The lowest being on this earth, Stemp her out, stamp her down. Flitting about from place to place Doing no good to body or soul; Barth's lowest being a gossip; Barth's deepest scar, a tale-bare

Oh to understand one another, To be in harmony with one anothe Then uplift, by pure talk. Tall no evil thall you ever think.

God made you for his purest flower, A being nobly planned To love, to trust, to priise; Earth's noblest gift.

Woman, love one another. Or Heaven you never will enter Your deeds here below You are not the judge of this world No, your Judge awaits you up above No woman with a slantering tongue Shall ever enter Heaven above.

For down below shall you go Then all day long you'll wish You'd never taken a woman's name in vain.

Day by day your deeds shall count So change, I prey you, soon, For life is long and life is short, For the woman with a slanderin

Adieu, edr'th's noblest treasure If rightly lived and understood Adiesa, earth's lowest blemish,
