BEFT HIS OWN MONUMENT.

Dr. Thomas Dunn English, who died in Newark, N. J., last Tuesday at the advanced age of eighty-two years, has left his own monument behind. His poem, "Ben Bolt," is one of the sweetest songs that was ever written on this side of the Atlantic and it has been sung wherever the Anglo-Saxon tongue has currency. Doctor English wrote during his lifetime other poems, but not that appear to have struck the popular chord like this famous lyric. Although "Ben Bolt" was written in 1843. it was born again, as it were, in 1894, when Mr. George Du Maurier introduced the song into the pages of "Trilby." which for a year or two
