Sentiment Versus Utility.

All legislation affecting dogs meets with an agitated opposition. Man has adopted the dog, and has been adopted by him, as a friend and companion, and the closeness of the bond admit-of no disloyalty. The most lurid proposal for a wholesale massacre of cats (who are also engaging companions) is listened to with composure; but the muzzling of dogs, the licensing of dogs, any attempt to interfere with their comfort or their liberty, is stigmatized as cruel and ungrateful. The indignity lady who wrote to a newspaper, saying that she had adopted a dog, and that she had in her opinion it would be better to muzzle children than to muzzle dogs, was a fair representative of her class.
 There is something to be said for children, and something to be said for sheep and chickens. Even naughty and vicious boys may in the course of time become good citizens; and as for live stock, these are not days in which the most romantic of us can lightly disregard it. According to the report submitted to the Legislature in 1917, the dogs were nearly three thousand sheep killed by dogs, and over twelve thousand sheep "injured or worried" by dogs, last December. In 1917, 31,917; and this claims for damage done to flocks amounted to $77,762.
 In Pennsylvania economists are urging that their restrictions upon the raising of poultry in suburban districts shall be withdrawn, and that every householder who can conveniently keep a few hens shall do so.
 But the hens are manifestly in need of some other protection than that afforded by their owners, who may leave them to luck, or who may be tried the application of oxygen and brilliant dramatis has written some scathing lines, consigning to loneliness and infamy a "temperamental chicken owner" who shot and killed a dog:
 If on the battlefield you lie, May Red Cross dogs all pass you by.
 A dogless wanderer may you be.
 For you're no heart for such as we.
 And in your lonely hours then May your companion be a hen.
 A merited condemnation, perhaps, if a bit severe. It is hard to forgive any man who kills a dog or a cat—friends and playmates of humanity—even when the chickens belong to him, and the dog and the cat to his neighbor. But some allowance must be made for a conflicting sense of value, and some finer appreciation might be shown for the substitute of the hen. As a companion for lonely hours she leaves much to be desired, yet she is none the less a benefactress of mankind.
 If she cannot carry help and hope to the wounded soldier, the un-wounded and hungry soldier helps her with enthusiasm. And if, in peace or war, we should have to choose between a dogless world and a hen-less world—the question to be settled by referendum—how would the vote cast?

Malign Birds.

Speaking of metathesis, a reader writes us that his parrot, which had been taught to announce that its name was Polly Hopkins, one day got excited and declared that it was Holly Hopkins. We hope that the parrot was contrived to be a friend of ours, walking along a shady village street, was suddenly hailed by a parrot who wanted to know how many children she had. A good deal to her mortification, she was startled into replying, "Three." "Dirty little brats," said the parrot, and seemed to lose interest in the subject. They are malign birds.

 has fallen heir to an annual income of $500, which was enjoyed by a pet

 M. de Rothschild.

HORRORS OF GAS ATTACKS.

How the Men Died in Torture Caused by German Kaiture.

Suddenly a great cry rang out:
 "The gas!"

It was true. Over there, from the enemy's lines, came great greenish balls, rolling close to the earth, rolling deliberately yet swiftly, rolling straight toward us. Gas! That horrible thing, still almost unknown, which had been used for the first time recently on the Yser. It was coming with deadly surety amidst a tornado of artillery. Orders were shouted back and forth:

"The gas! Put on the masks!"

Each man spread over his face the protecting cloth. The shelters were closed. The telephone, whose wires ran the length of the communication trenches, gave the warning, "Look out! The gas!"

We did not yet know what manner of horror it was. None of us had experience an attack of the sort. We ran to and fro like ants whose hill has been molested. Some fired their guns at random, other swayed on their feet, and an atmosphere stained green, expanded to a cloud, crept upon us, glided into the trenches. The air was quickly obscure. We were swimming in an atmosphere of a most venomous odor, uncanny, indescribable. The sky appeared greenish, the earth disappeared. The men staggered about for a moment, took a gasping breath, and rolled on the ground, stifled. There were some knots of soldiers who had been asleep in their beds when overtaken by the gas. They writhed in convulsions, with vitals burning, with froth on the lips, calling for their mothers or cursing the Germans. We gathered them up as best we could; we took them to the doctors, who thus confronted by an unknown condition, found themselves powerless. They tried the application of oxygen and other in an effort to save the lives of the victims, only to see them die, already decomposed, in their hands.

The masks had not yet been perfected and were a poor protection.
 Some ran about like madmen, shrieking in terror, the throat choked with saliva, and fell in heaps, in convulsions of agony. Some filled the mouth with handfuls of grass and struggled against asphyxiation—Emmanuel Bourcier, in Scribner.
