In the Carolina Mountains

The popular Colonial Stock Co. will play at the Nicklet Theatre, beginning June 12th. The opening bill will be "Carolina," a romantic Southern play. It is a play containing an unusually strong plot and an abundance of bright original comedy. It deals with the trials of a young Southerner, who has inherited large coal lands, and who is being cheated out of his birth right, by a smooth talking land-shark from New York; until he discovers the real worth of his lands, he had practically succumbed to the wiles of the clever agent.

There is a charming love story, and a number of dramatic situations. This play met with great success when first produced in New York five years ago.

The Colonials this season, have the strongest organization of its kind that has visited the Provinces for some time.

Resolved that Roy Hiltz umpire all games.

The need of some means of keeping back crowds from the base-lines was brought up and it was the opinion of the majority that we should ask for, and have, police protection. Nothing definite was done about this, however.
