HARVEST THANKSGIVING SERVICE.

Appropriate Decorations and Addresses in the Methodist Church on Sunday, 21st Inst.

The auditorium of the Methodist church was a bower of loveliness on Sabbath last, the occasion being the annual harvest thanksgiving service. Flowers of myriad forms and hues, in lavish profusion, lent their subtle man's physical needs. Trailing vines, years. rich in autumnal colorings, draped ed with brilliant berries, hung gracefully from the chandeliers. Much credit is due the industrious producers who contributed to the decorations, also to the willing workers ed in the Free for All. whose aesthetic taste resulted in such a harmonious tout ensemble.

The recently appointed pastor, Rev. the pulpit, choosing as his text Isa. 9:3, the theme being "The Joy of ness of God to man, as exemplified in the bountiful provision vouchsafed to Canada in our present abundant harvest. He dwelt, too, upon the mes- Athens sage of the flowers: 1. The hand that Jasper made me is divine; 2. Life is brief; 3. Rejoice; elaborating each heading, and in conclusion showing that God. the perfect Architect, Chemist, Reaper, has created all things, has kept the furnaces of nature properly heated until He has brought to perfection l. f. the flowers and fruits of a continent, and a world. The evening address was upon the subject of "The widening sphere of viornan's influence," his text Gal. 3:28. The idea of the equality of man and woman was a starting revolutionary doctrine to the Jews of that day, when women were little more than chattels or slaves, who at that time constituted fourfifths of the population of the world. Jesus was the first great teacher to Jesus was the first great teacher to ever recognize the importance of woman, and accord her a place of honor and dignity. Christianity is the most audacious religion in the world, for it places all races, all classes, both sexes, upon an equality, and emphasizes the brotherhood of man. Many examples were litted of the achieve-But woman's crowning glory is in the home, where her subtle influence as wife and mother may constitute her a tremendous force for God and right.
