International Bible Lesson for To-Morrow-Elijah Taken up into Heaven.—Second Kings, 2, 1-11.

Golden Text-"He was not, for God took him."

This is the man wno once wished, in a passion, he might die, but God honors him, like Encoth, with the marvelous privilege that he should never see death, but thus gloriously wind up life below to begin eternal life in heaven. Here are two samples of how men should leave this world had sin not entered it—by translation and not death. Here we catch a glimpse of life and immortality, prior to gospel times, that opens the kingdom of heaven to all believers. Elijah's footprints on the sands of time are fresher to-day than when he trod the Syrian sands 914 B. C. He seems, from Bible History, to have been a lonely bachelor; not one of his kin is ever mentioned, and that he felt his condition comes out in his "I, even I only," in our former lesson; but God was proving by the life of His servant that He and one man was a big majority. Compare Elijah's farewell with Ahab and Jezabel's taking off, and compare his life work with our present Elijah, poor Dowie, with his horses and goldmounted harness in Zion City, Ill. The contrast is too ridiculous. The steeds of fire leap the chasm and carry the glorified old soldier up the golden streets, waking up heaven as he is borne victor into the presence of the King to receive his crown. He can say, like Paul, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith; henceforth there is laid up for me a crown, and for all wh oovercome in the Lord's battles. Is it to be wondered at that Salvationists sing in the midst of the fight—

Oh, we're going to wear a crown, to wear a starry crown, Away over Jordan, with my blessed Jesus, when the battle's over—any wonder that our ascended Lord, who has the gift of the Holy Spirit for His disciples and all believers, said, "Greater works than these shall ye do, because I go unto the Father." Have ye received this Spirit?"
