

"WHAT IS AN EDITOR, PA?"
 A man who gathers the news, my boy,
 And does it all to amuse, my boy,
 A man of wit,
 And tact and grit—
 A man they all abuse, my boy.
 The man the printers deride, my boy,
 Who's troubled on every side, my boy,
 A load of care,
 That's hard to bear,
 Weighs on his mind beside, my boy.
 His purse is always light, my boy,
 Never a coin in sight, my boy,
 Early and late,
 Driven by fate,
 He works for the cause of right, my boy.
 In spite of all that's said, my boy,
 In the end he'll be ahead, my boy,
 For up above,
 Where all is love,
 He'll go when he is dead, my boy.
 —Exchange.

A BRAVE ACT.
 Some ten, or more, summers ago, a flat-bottomed, stern-wheel steamer was making its slow way down the tortuous windings of the Real River of the North. Among the few passengers was a little girl three years old—a dainty, fearless, winsome child—everybody's pet, from her father, an officer in the Hudson Bay Company's service, and the good-natured captain, to the grim deck-hands, whose acquaintance the little maiden had somehow made on the lower deck.
 One afternoon the child was taken by her nurse to the floor of the lower deck. Three men were lying here, bound hand and foot. They were on their way to Fargo to be tried for crime. The sheriff kept a close watch on them, for they were desperate men. They guessed their game was up and accepted their fate with half-cheerful bravado; but the sheriff knew them for ruffians and bullies, and never left his post.
 The child came up to the men and looked at them curiously; they looked silently at her. Perhaps these rough crime-hardened men had never seen anything so dainty and sweet before.
 She was not afraid of them, but began talking in her pretty, broken words, and putting her baby hands on the fetters of one, smiled and said, "What dat?" The man smiled back without replying, and soon the little maid moved away.
 As she walked, there was a sudden jerk of the whole ship, it ground jarringly against some unyielding substance hidden in the water; it tilted over slightly, the child lost her balance, and with a scream fell over the side into the water. The three prisoners saw her disappear.
 The prisoner to whom she had spoken, and whose handcuffs she had for a moment touched, exclaimed to the sheriff, "God! don't ye shoot, Bill!" Then quickly rolling himself over and over, he tumbled into the water beside the child. His hands were bound, but he caught the child's dress in his teeth, and, treading the water with his fattened feet, kept the child above water until help came, and it was some minutes before the steamer's boat reached them. The child was saved.
 "I guess you air a white man after all, Eriker!" said the sheriff, admiringly, to the man.
 It was afterwards learned that the sheriff told the story to the 'judge,' and the judge, with Western freedom and that admiration for a gallant act which covers a multitude of sins, so arranged that when it was found that Eriker, who was a Scandinavian by birth, had mysteriously disappeared, nothing was done beyond a little official bluster, and he escaped.

A HINT TO THE GIRLS.
 There are more chances of making a passable husband out of a fool or a crank than out of a drunkard or vicious person. The fool, if not too egotistical or silly for anything at all, can usually be led, coerced, or driven, but the vicious person cannot. The woman who undertakes to reform a man in order to get a husband has undertaken a task that is not successfully accomplished one time in a thousand. In the first place a man who needs to be reformed before he is fit for a companion is lacking in some of the elements which are necessary in the make-up of even an average man.
KISSING IN PUBLIC.
 Men don't do it; neither should women and girls. It is a vulgar practice because, intentionally or otherwise, it attracts the attention of strangers. When two women, at a railway depot or other crowded place, flush together with a resounding osculation, like two rapid meteors out of their orbits, the whole crowd grins and the dudes prick up their ears, and eye-glasses. Don't—[Ladies' Home Journal.]

MINNESOTA GALLANTRY.
 "Did you ever notice how a woman takes the cork out of a bottle?" asks an exchange. "No, sir. We let the woman notice how we take the cork out of a bottle. No gentleman would stand idly and let a woman struggle to get a cork out of a bottle. It takes her too long.—St. Paul Globe.
