OFFICIAL.

LONDON, Feb. 13.

The Governor, Newfoundland:
The French Government reports that in the Vosges, French Chasseurs have brilliantly carried a hill, incurring only insignificant losses; in Lorraine a German attack was repulsed; elsewhere there were artillery duels.

The Russian Government reports attacks in the Carpathians near Koszowa, where the enemy suffered heavy losses. At one point the enemy trenches and five hundred prisoners were captured.

The Admiralty announces operations by the Naval Wing in Flanders with thirty-four aeroplanes and sea-planes, the object being to prevent developments of submarine bases. Ostend railway station is reported much damaged and probably burnt down; Blankenberge station damaged, and the railway lines torn up in many places. Bombs were dropped on gun positions at Middelkerke and on German minesweepers at Zeebrugge. No submarines were seen. Graham White fell into the sea near Nieuport, but was rescued by a French vessel. All the pilots returned safely. Two machines were damaged.

AMERICA'S TWIN NOTES.

LONDON, Feb. 13.
That the British Government will have no difficulty in giving a satisfactory reply to the American note on the use of the American flag by British merchantmen, is the contention this afternoon of the papers in London, which virtually unite in expressing the opinion that a neutral flag will be used by British vessels only as an intimation to German warships that there are neutral passengers and goods on board.

The Pall Mall Gazette attaches "immense significance" to the phrase in the American note "or cause death of American citizens," as meaning that Americans aboard British ships will be equally protected by the Home Government, as those on board American ships.

The Evening Standard, basing its judgment on the tenor of the American note, says: It is plain in which direction America looks for the possibility of trouble. If Germany does not now understand the meaning of the note, and realize the false position in to which she has been led by the arrogance of the official minds of Berlin, she must abide by the issue.

H.M.S. AUDACIOUS IN GOOD TRIM.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.
The Audacious, one of Britain's finest and most powerful battleships, will rejoin the grand fleet next week. She will leave the shipyard of Harland and Wolff, Belfast, on Monday (to-day) with out a flaw in her hull or armament. Such was the information contained in advices received yesterday in New York by the Herald.

GERMANS IN UGANDA.

BERLIN, Feb. 14.—(Official).
German East Africa is now completely cleared of the enemy. German troops have entered Uganda in British East Africa. Nothing from any other quarter.

GERMANY CRIPPLES AMERICAN NOTES.

BERLIN, Feb. 14.
The German Foreign Office, after studying the American note respecting the declaration by Germany of the war zone waters around Great Britain and Ireland, states that the terms are much friendlier than had previously been expected, by reason of the incomplete newspaper despatches published here. The Foreign Office even recognizes that from the American standpoint, certain of the points raised are quite justified. Germany, however, it is declared, intends to adhere to its own viewpoint. Various emblems, diplomats, and naval and military, whose opinions have been sought, profess to see no element of danger in the situation, and are convinced that the naval campaign can be conducted on the lines laid down by the Admiralty proclamation without involving difficulties between the States and Germany.

Berlin newspaper comment, while of a generally determined nature, is friendly. Conspicuous exceptions to the rule, however, are furnished by the Die Post and Tages Zeitung. The former, which employs rather sharp phrases, says: When something does not suit the Yankees, they are accustomed to adopt a threatening and as frightful a sabre rattling tone as possible. They reckon that the person thus treated will let himself be frightened and give in. If this does not come to pass, however, and if the person thus treated and threatened with the strongest expressions, pays no attention, and shows that he is not scared and will not let himself be driven into a state of funk, the swaggering Yankees calm themselves soon and quiet down. The Die Post complains that the States did not protest against the British declaration that the North Sea was war territory. "That is to say, they are in benevolent agreement with England, but make a threatening protest against us. If the North American Government would show Germany the same neutrality as it shows England, the entire present note, with its threatening tone, would be superfluous."

Count Ernest Reventlow, naval expert in an article to the Tages Zeitung, declares that the request by the United States that ships be searched before further action is taken against them, shows that the people at Washington do not or will not comprehend the meaning of the German measure. "We have so often demonstrated," Count Reventlow continues, "the impossibility of search that we can merely refer to our earlier remarks. Washington must know this, therefore, that the demand in the note for search and the establishing of identity of neutral merchant ships, amounts in fact to the non-recognition of the German declaration respecting the war territory." Count Reventlow repeats that the German order, the declaration of which, he asserts, is considerable warning, adds "whether it is regarded or protested against, is of secondary importance. If its consequences are denoted as 'inexcusable' the Count Reventlow continues, "we may believe that the States' Government misjudges its ground. The same can be said of the remarkable phrase in the note that the United States Government will see itself impelled to hold the German Imperial Government responsible for such action of its naval authorities. She cannot escape the conclusion that President Wilson and Secretary Bryan, in their communication with the Mexican pretenders and rebel leaders, have accustomed themselves to a tone that is not suitable for communications with the German Empire." Count Reventlow says the American Government's request for assurances that its ships and citizens be subjected only to search, even in the war zone, is utterly out of the question. "The only way to preserve existing relations between the German Empire and the States," says Count Reventlow in conclusion, "is the actual American recognition of the German war zone declaration, and regard for the warning expressed therein."

Seeing America Last.
By GEORGE FITCH.
Author of "At Good Old Slawsh."
In a few months the gentle incandescent summer will be among us once more. It will be like all other summers in length and effect upon starched collars, but it will have one new and unprecedented feature. This summer several hundred thousand voters and members of the income tax club are going to take up the job of seeing America last.

There will be a great trial to many of these people because they are not interested in America, except as a place where acids can be secreted with more rapidity and less fear of the grand jury than in any other country on earth. They are much more interested in Europe. Some of them have crossed the ocean so many times that, if led blindfolded on to a steamer, they could tell its name by its effect upon the soup course.

There will be a great amount of travel to Europe this summer, but it will not be of the usual sort. It will be indulged in by temporary Americans going back to fight for the country which loaned them to us. The custom of going to Europe to worship old paintings and new military will be very largely obrogated this summer. This is because it takes a very strong-minded tourist to enjoy himself in a cathedral in company with a large, violent shell which has just arrived from a gun ten miles distant via the roof.

Therefore, those Americans who know their country from the Atlantic Coast eastward will be compelled to explore their own nation or remain at home. As the latter is even less stylish than the former, we may look for a large tourist business in this country during the coming season.

We shall see Americans who know Europe like a guide book hunting painfully for some one to tip in the Chicago Art Institute, gleaning a few scattering facts about Mark Twain, Lincoln, John Hay, and other quaint western characters, painfully attempting to fall off the Rocky Mountains, free of charge and without the aid of a guide, trying to persuade themselves that the Grand Canyon is as awe-inspiring as the Giant's Causeway, and calling home for many from force of habit in San Francisco, instead of cashing a check.

America will benefit greatly from these earnest, spendful tourists this summer. And some of the tourists will be helped considerably by America, greatly to their surprise.

Give the Miller His Due, Mrs. Housewife

If he selects his wheat—
Washes, brushes and scours it—
Grinds it 20 times, so the granules are all alike—
Sifts it 10 times through silk, so you get only utterly perfect flour—
Then bakes a batch from every lot before it leaves the mill—
He deserves Recognition.
It is fair to you and fair to him that you specify his flour.

That's why we tell you of Gold Medal Flour.
We do it to better your baking—to give you more for your money—and to win a bigger place.
And, because we have done it, more homes use Gold Medal than any other flour in existence.

In mutual fairness, next time say

Helping Hands.

Good friends may help you at the start, and lend you for success and fame, but on your own undaunted heart you must depend to win the game. I often think that helping hands are prone to injure more than aid; when they're withdrawn, the helped one stands all undecided and afraid. He's learned on others to rely, his courage leaks away, eftsoons; and he who started out for pie, is satisfied to gather prunes. Not all unlucky is the youth who says, "I have no friend to help; I'll have to hoe my row, in sooth, with none to aid me when I yelp. My comforters, like those of Job, will jar me more than they will bless; so I must show this cheap old globe what sort of mettle I possess." So he at once gets down to tacks, and wields whatever tool is his, the pen, the backsw or the ax, as though he meant to make things whiz. And, having learned to make his way, without the help of any man, he gains success, while 'tother jay he aided, is an also ran.
