The supplementary estimates, issued in the form of a Public In Old Land Awed By Frank Confession of How Hard-Pressed Army Has Been Struggling To Survive Against Great Odds.

(Canadian Press.)

London, Sept. 10.—Many English breakfasts went untasted this morning while the people read the graphic account by Field Marshal Sir John French, commander-in-chief of the British forces on the continent, of the heroic fight made by the British, expeditionary force to keep from being annihilated. Like a wildcat, pursued by hounds, the British force backed stubbornly towards the River Oise, constantly showing its teeth, but realizing that it must attain the river or perish.

LIKE A BOMBSHELL.

General French's frank confession has fallen like a bombshell on the English public, who up to the present time has not been permitted to know how hard-pressed their army

Great comfort is, however, derived by the British public from this report, particularly from the indications that throughout these trials their troops never lost their morale. The feeling of optimism which has pre vailed in England during the last twenty-four hours has had only one check; this was the report of the wreck of the steamer Oceanic.
