Proceeding to deal with some of the Proceeding to deal with some of the reforms proposed to be made in the national budget, the minister admitted that the situation was by no means free from anxieties and dangers. The new budget, he said, would show a deficit of between 140,000,000,000 and 160,000,000,000 crowns, but even these figures should not be discouraging because measures had already been taken to improve the situation.

However, while the printing presses of the Austro-Hungarian bank are turning out such vast floods of new notes—situation.

By the new year at latest the food subsidies will be abolished, and at one stroke one-half of the budget deficit will disappear. Industry, commerce and trade have all expressed their readiness to assume the burden of paying increased wages.

Food Bill Helps.

This abolition of the food subsidies announced by the minister of finance is the most important step which has been taken in the financial policy of the state since the collapse of the mon-and always in an upward direction. But actually cost 62 crowns to produce, so that the government was paying a subsidy of 53 crowns on each loaf. This amounted to 2,500 crowns a year perhead of the population, a great part of the population. of the loaf was nine crowns, the bread amounted to 2,500 crowns a year per head of the population, a sum which in pre-war time was the yearly wage of a well-paid Austrian workingman. It would be too much to expect that the amount of the bread subsidies could be shifted from the state to the population at once. Hence it is proposed to keep some modified scheme of bread subsidies in force for some time. Of course, it would be possible in some cases for the large manufacture.
