

BUT UNCOLTURED.

Odities Created by Successful Foreigners in Western Mining Section. A man in this city, says the "Telegraph," whose peculiar "been in harmony with his character. He was born in the had some education, though he considered an educated as lived in many parts of the is one of those men whose will power makes success a foreigner's mission. He is forty-five years of age, the possessor of a tremendous fortune, made by speculating in mines since 1875, when he lost very small fortune which he lost. This calamity, instead of bringing him out of the mine's nature. He went west with his large family, lived greater economy and was a confidence man to his success came to him. He found himself, however, a possessor of an admirable judgment of mines, and showed a fine skill of driving a hard bargain. As one of his friends of him: "He has made his queezing it out of others. By taking advantage of a crass financial situation, a property out of him, and a fine magnanimity, he has turned fifth dollars into present. He has after his advent in the and himself a millionaire. As a discovery was made it in him that the west was too for him. So he came to expecting to take the town But, strange as it may seem, succeeded in this ambition. rary, there are few people hat he lives in this big city, asessor of two millions, is to the shade of some of ns, each of whom possesses ns more. But he is well e experience in New York him to affect a contempt for gh he still continues to ac- "Money," he says, with a hich is very amusing to know him, "money is not for. There are other e world of greater impor- e self." He is a man of making this remark to ns with whom he has ations. He certainly con- that there is no use in money with him, for in the it he is sure to win. This, only one of his many ap- oves to pose as a philoso- scatter bits of wisdom, some of which have a similar sound, as though he said before, by some of also very religious, and he prows the cloak of his re- little prevarications and e dealings. His life in the ems to have inspired him e desire to be a gentle- surround himself with e efforts thus far have re- more curious episodes. His es to his guests at table are those who have met him. His manners have already novel writer to put him in has an intense admiration, whom he takes for his imitates in a manner which to those who can appre- eather, he is a most curious a civilization which is rap- out of the type which is nor gentleman, but a cross- two, the result of a state ation which proceeds in e of natural vigour only concealed by a veneer of nement.

OF THE BARINGS.

A Great Commercial Family Through Centuries. The Baring family, says the "Telegraph," has lived in Breman, a pastor of the Lutheran named Franz Baring, in those days, says Spare the ministers of his order men of great learning, but instances were at the best. His son, John Baring, went and established himself as a near Exeter, in Devonshire, the of the cloth drapers and rpers, quite as often as from goldsmiths, the merchants were then recruited. John Francis, born in 1740, was arly age to learn the "art, nystery" of a merchant, and e made himself, by conse- merchant in the world. A director in the Honorable Company, then one of the cards to which a merchant to attain; for a time he was company's chairman; for years he sat in parliament, more exclusive body than it under the extended suf- 798 he was made a baronet; died. But his first title to at he founded the house of sons were the first Baring ent is to be erected over the Davy Crockett, the famous hunter, who killed 108 bears and various other deeds of prowess more than sixty years ago. A shaft will be of Tennessee and over twenty-seven feet in front base of the column. The bronze medallion will be on the right part of the shaft, and on the left part of the shaft a bust of Crockett will be placed. The shaft will be of Tennessee. One other medallion representing the agricultural industry of Tennessee. A grand seal of Tennessee, on the front of the shaft a bust of Crockett will be placed. The shaft will be of Tennessee.

Crockett's Monument.

LOCAL AND PROVINCIAL.

Requested to Attend. The ladies of the A.L.O. Society of St. Andrew's R.C. church are requested to attend a social gathering on the 30th inst. for their late member, Mrs. W. H. Redmond. For Victoria. Following are the passengers who left San Francisco yesterday morning, on the steamship City of Puebla, for this port: Capt. G. M. Hunt, Mrs. Nicholson, F. Penahaw, Mrs. Minges and two children, H. Galant, A. Williams, Miss Patterson, Miss Fox. Safety on the Water. Sergeant Langley of the Provincial police is looking for his little pointer pet "Sport," which disappeared from the police station several days ago, and is believed to have been stolen. "Sport" is a pretty little four months' old puppy, thoroughbred in every line. In the Admiralty Court. would the British Government decide to purchase the schooner "Hector" for entering Behring's Sea after being warned off, the case will be adjudicated in the Admiralty Court. The defence is already partially prepared. Bridge Will Again. Another chapter in the famous will case of Turner vs. Prevost et al. was opened yesterday, when the motion of the defendants for a new trial was argued in the Divisional Court. Sir Mackenzie Mackenzie, J., Justice Crease, Justice McCreight and Justice Walkem occupied the bench. Mr. Charles Wilson (Wilson & Wootton) argued the motion. An Old Victoria Boy. Police Officer Francis Murray from San Francisco is in the city visiting relatives and friends. Mr. Murray was "raised" in Victoria, and left here for California in 1884. He is one of the best officers on the San Francisco force and is held in high esteem by his superiors. He patrols one of the most important beats in that city, known as "Barbary Coast," and keeps the tough element of that locality in subjection. He will leave on the next steamer for home. Sophisticated Indian School. The scholars of the above school, together with their parents, paid a visit to Esquimalt yesterday afternoon. By the special permission of the officers of H.M.S. Warspite every detail on board was most courteously explained, and then an invitation to tea in the gun room came as a most pleasant surprise to all. After tea the vessel was visited and the remainder of the afternoon was spent there. The Indians desire to thank all the naval officers and others for providing them with such an enjoyable afternoon. Within the Law. Rumor had it yesterday, that the steamer Victoria had rendered herself liable to seizure, by selling tickets from Victoria to Vancouver, both Canadian ports, being herself an American bottom. This blunder in reality did come within the scope of being committed, but prevented by the Collector of Customs warning the steamer's officers on Tuesday night. At that time many tickets had been sold, and to get out of the difficulty, it was kind permission of the collector, that the steamer should sail on Tuesday night, and then proceeding to the Terminal City. Can This Be Done? While no one doubts that the customs enumerators performed their work in this city as faithfully and energetically as possible, it is current belief that very many residents have been "skipped." As an instance of this, the keeper of a large boarding house here is credited with entering his family as three, making no mention of his 28 permanent boarders. Another case is that of Chinatown, where, it is said, the enumerators found their work particularly hard. One who should know says that the Chinese population was taken at not more than 1,000, while every one knows it is double that number. Concert at Cadboro Bay. The Cadboro Bay concert was largely attended, last Tuesday evening. Mr. and Mrs. and the Misses Pauline, with Mr. George Pauline, Mrs. Branch and the other ladies and gentlemen are to be congratulated on the arrangements. The room was beautifully decorated with flags, masses of flowers and Chinese lanterns, and a table loaded with delicacies, was in a shed out of the school-room. Messrs. Haines, Goodwin, Rev. A. Beauland and the Misses Pauline and Goodwin were among the performers. A dance closed the enjoyable entertainment. The Colleague Was Correct. A special dispatch from Ottawa to the Vancouver World says: "Careful inquiry in the most reliable quarters shows that the figures for the population of the population of Vancouver and Victoria are approximately correct. Vancouver's population is 11,800; Victoria's 16,800. George Johnson, the Dominion Statistician, says the figures are correct to the extent of the totals. It is obvious that the figures are given solely as approximate. From the highest source it is learned that when the official bulletin is issued neither total as now published will vary by 100. Death of Mr. Michael Jamieson. Yesterday evening, Mr. Michael Jamieson, who has been ill for several months, passed away, mourned by a loving wife and daughter and two sons. Death came rather suddenly for Mr. Jamieson was much better yesterday morning, but he took a sudden turn for the worse and sank rapidly. He was a native of Scotland and was aged 72 years. He was an old resident of Victoria, and for several years past was employed as city carpenter by the corporation of Victoria. The funeral takes place to-morrow morning, at 9.30 o'clock, from the residence, Pandora street, and at 10 o'clock from the R. C. pro-cathedral, View street. Neah Bay Indians Capture a Whale. David H. Hume, president of the Tacoma Fishing Company, returned to Victoria on Tuesday night, and says that he reports that the Neah Bay Indian seal with 130 seal skins, having been returned away from Behring's Sea by a revenue cutter. The Neah Bay did not go further north than Sand Point, and the crew report not seeing any other sealing schooners in the sealing grounds. Hume also reports that twenty-one Neah Bay Indians, in three canoes, harpooned and killed, within ten miles of Neah Bay, a monster whale, which he and his party, on Monday night. Later, he would, the only persons he would advise to migrate were those with a little money.

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.

Opening of the Eighteenth Annual Prize Meeting of the R. C. Rifle Association. McLean, the Challenger of Hanlan and O'Connor, Looking for Payne. THE RIFLE. In the attendance of spectators and competitors, the eighteenth prize meeting of the R. C. Rifle Association, which opened at Goldstream yesterday, is a decided improvement upon the meeting of last year. Yesterday's weather was all that the riflemen could desire, although the wind was a little too puffy for first-class scores. Before the formal opening of the meeting, extra sets of C and D were taken up, the firing at 500 yards continuing until the arrival of the Lieutenant-Governor, with Mrs. Nelson and party, at the range. In the extras, one man put on 24 out of a possible 30 points. At 11 o'clock, Mrs. Nelson fired the opening shot, Lieut. Col. Holmes, D.A.G., acting as her mark bearer. Then Lieut. Col. Wolfenden extended the formal welcome of the Association to the Governor and his consort, and the former replied but thoroughly suitable speech. Col. Holmes also spoke briefly, and the real work of the meeting commenced. Capt. Peel, the range officer, has everything in good condition, though the range is just a little too dusty to be pleasant. The two competitions decided during the day resulted as below: NO. 1—OPENING MATCH. Open to members of the Association. Range, 300 yards. Seven shots. Any position, head to target. Points. Am't. Capt. Thompson, R.L. 41 5.00 A.R. Langley 30 3.00 A.J. Shearer 30 3.00 G. J. Cannon 29 2.90 Gr. Turnbull, B.C.R.C.A. 29 2.90 Gr. Turner, B.C.R.C.A. 29 2.90 Dr. Bell, Irving 28 2.80 Sgt. J. C. Newbury 28 2.80 Gr. A. E. Pittendrigh 28 2.80 Five 25s counted out. NO. 2—RIFLE CORPUS CORPORATION PRIZE. Open as in No. 1. Range, 300 and 400 yards. Five shots at each range. Points. Am't. Sergeant J. C. Newbury 41 5.00 Capt. Thompson, R.L. 41 5.00 Lieut. Col. Wolfenden 40 4.00 Gr. Langley 40 4.00 Gr. Turnbull, B.C.R.C.A. 40 4.00 Gr. Turner, B.C.R.C.A. 40 4.00 Dr. Bell, Irving 39 3.90 Sgt. J. C. Newbury 38 3.80 Gr. A. E. Pittendrigh 38 3.80 Gr. J. Mortimer 38 3.80 THE FIRING FOR THE Lt. Governor's Cup, the third competition, was not concluded when the train left for the city in the evening. Firing in the morning commences at 9 a.m. to-day. CRICKET. As far as can be ascertained, the engagements of the California cricketers in British Columbia will be limited to two matches with the Victoria club, on August 6th and 7th, a match with Vancouver on the 8th, and a match with Westminster on the 9th. The Victoria club has also to be mentioned in connection with the match, as a point of entertaining the visitors hospitably, and there is a probability of a British Columbia team paying the San Francisco men a return visit next summer. The Victoria cricketers expect to play Sir R. Arbuthnot and Mr. Standen, and other matches with the Californians. There will be no game next Saturday. THE GUN. The first shoot for classification, in the contest between the Victoria and Union Gun Clubs, for the Curtis and Harvey prizes, took place at the Driving Park, yesterday afternoon, with the appended results. The scores were obtained on a possible 25 birds: UNION. H. N. Short 19 3.80 C. W. Minor 19 3.80 W. H. Jones 19 3.80 B. E. Higgins 19 3.80 G. J. Cannon 19 3.80 J. C. Madure 19 3.80 H. Short 19 3.80 G. J. Cannon 19 3.80 F. G. White 19 3.80 F. Madure 19 3.80 VICTORIA. W. Henley 16 3.20 J. Shields 16 3.20 H. H. Jones 16 3.20 W. R. Allan 16 3.20 F. Smith 16 3.20 It is now stated that the Victoria club decline to continue the contest, owing to a misunderstanding in regard to who should frame the rules and regulations governing the matches. They say the Union have assumed the right to arrange everything. YACHTING. TORONTO, July 29.—It is reported that T. G. Blackstock, the English and Union Dragon, and that she will be delivered in Canada this fall. Last year the Dragon sailed in 40 races, winning 21 firsts and seven seconds. THE SEA. NEW WESTMINSTER, July 29.—The evening press following challenge this evening: "I hereby challenge William Payne, of Victoria, to row a three mile race, with turn, on Fraser river, in best and best boats, for $500 a side, race to take place on Saturday, August 29th, or any other date which may be arranged. Forfeits of $250 to be deposited with the Columbia not later than Thursday, August 6th." John McInnes returned from the mainland, last night. WRESTLING. A wrestling match took place, at Nanaimo, yesterday, between Pearson and Rickson, for $200 a side. Pearson won two straight falls. POLO. An enjoyable game of polo was played at Beacon Hill, yesterday afternoon, between the Victoria polo team and one from H. M. S. Waraspice. For Victoria there were Mr. Cecil Ward, Mr. H. E. Newton, Mr. H. A. Burton and Mr. B. Powell. The navy was represented by Lieut. Sir Robert Arbuthnot, Lieut. A. P. Eibohston, Dr. Pearson and Mr. C. S. A. Pearce. The opening of the game was so long deferred, that Eibohston did not play, he being called away by an engagement. The game was played with one man short on the naval side. The Waraspice team, scoring 7 goals to the Victoria's 5. A large number of spectators witnessed the game. Unfortunately many left before the last quarter, which was played with much spirit, Victoria making strenuous efforts to snatch a victory. For the Waraspice Dr. Pearson showed excellent play, and was the only player who was hit, what Sir Robert Arbuthnot; while for the home team Mr. Newton played with his usual judgment, which, however, could not stem

IS THIS FINAL?

Mr. A. L. Belyea Secures the City Police Magistracy by 7 to 2. Mount Tolmie Park Cannot Be Accepted Owing to Lack of Funds. At the last meeting of the municipal council, the split over the appointment of a police magistrate produced a deadlock, which looked as though it would be broken, several ballots being spread with the same result, the council divided evenly for Hon. A. N. Richards and Mr. A. L. Belyea. The balloting was accordingly laid on the table, to be the most interesting business of last night's session. When the deferred matters were reached, a disposition was shown to keep the matter pending still longer, but the majority of the board forced the question to the issue, and it was found that during the week Mr. Belyea had gained and Mr. Richards lost three votes, thus settling the contest in the former's favor. Whether the two champions of the latter will now bow to the will of the majority, remains to be seen. The full board was present, last evening, and business was entered on sharp at eight, the first order being COMMUNICATIONS. H. Carmichael—reporting the result of his test of sewer-pipes. Sewerage committee. Dr. Jackson & Holmcken—in regard to the objectionable fence near Finlayson bridge. Streets committee. H. J. Patterson—applying for an extension of sidewalk at Ribbet street. Streets committee. E. C. Johnson—asking for the position of caretaker of the public market, and urging that, as an old pioneer, he was entitled to more consideration than any new man. Tabled. A. B. Mills—also requesting appointment as market clerk or caretaker. Walker, Pemberton & Dumbleton—re the claim of Tai Fook, who offered to accept $75 in full of the damage done his stock by the firemen. The account was ordered returned. R. Erskine, secretary of the school Board—enclosing copy of resolution of the Board and letter of Supt. Pope, in re. funds for school maintenance. Ordered to be taken up at a subsequent meeting. J. R. Robins—Submitting a claim for $50 damages, said to be occasioned by the bad condition of the public landing at the foot of Yates street. Streets committee. B. Vyrlys—Asking for a position on the police force. Police committee and superintendent. Peter Summerfield—Tendering his resignation of the office of water commissioner. AID. RICHARDS and ROBERTSON moved the acceptance of the resignation; AID. ROBERTSON wished that the matter be referred to the Water committee; and AID. ROBERTSON and MURPHY thought it advisable to table the matter for one week, to allow AID. McMillan a chance to express an opinion. Their amendment prevailed. H. M. Yates, secretary of the Jubilee hospital, complaining that the hospital water main had been tapped without permission. Water Committee. AID. HOLLAND moved, seconded by AID. REMOY, that the fire hydrants be placed at the service of the sanitary officer for the purpose of flushing the streets, and of the sanitary officer and water commissioner deem such action necessary. AID. HUNTER thought this was another step backwards. The control of the water works had already been taken from the commissioner and placed in the hands of the chief of the fire brigade; now it was proposed to give the reins of power to the sanitary officer, and drag in the water commissioner in some unexplainable fashion. The action was objected to in regard to the waterworks would produce nothing but confusion and confusion. He could find no fault with the water commissioner for handing in his resignation; it was the only step open to him after the control of the water department had been taken from him. AID. COUGHLAN was of the opinion that AID. HOLLAND's resolution was contrary to the water works act. AID. HOLLAND said that all the trouble in regard to the water works arose not through the fire department, but through the water commissioner. It was absolutely essential that the head of the fire department should know the condition of every hydrant in the city. AID. HOLLAND said that his reason for introducing the resolution was because the water commissioner had notified the sanitary officer of the city, that he could flush the streets only during certain hours of the day, and that the only way to get the water commissioner out of the way was to put the water commissioner in the control of the fire department, and he considered that the sanitary condition of the city was of paramount importance, and that the sanitary officer should be in charge of the hydrants. That was all the resolution intended. The sanitary officer would not use the water until the water commissioner had been consulted. THE WASHINGTON MAYOR GLAUX thought that the sanitary officer should certainly have the privilege of using the water for flushing purposes. The resolution passed at the Council, last week, had taken the control of the hydrants from the water commissioner, and placed them in charge of the fire department. His Worship thought that the streets could as well be flushed at night as in the day time, and that was all that the water commissioner had asked of the sanitary officer. AID. COUGHLAN said that the water commissioner could allow the sanitary officer to use the hydrants at such times, and under such conditions, as he deemed best, and the passing of the resolution was not necessary. The long discussion ensued as to whether the resolution was in order or not. The Mayor ruled that it was, but pointed out that it was in conflict with the resolution adopted by the Council last week. THE WASHINGTON MAYOR GLAUX thought that the sanitary officer should certainly have the privilege of using the water for flushing purposes. The resolution passed at the Council, last week, had taken the control of the hydrants from the water commissioner, and placed them in charge of the fire department. His Worship thought that the streets could as well be flushed at night as in the day time, and that was all that the water commissioner had asked of the sanitary officer. AID. COUGHLAN said that the water commissioner could allow the sanitary officer to use the hydrants at such times, and under such conditions, as he deemed best, and the passing of the resolution was not necessary. The long discussion ensued as to whether the resolution was in order or not. The Mayor ruled that it was, but pointed out that it was in conflict with the resolution adopted by the Council last week.

THE CROWN CALLS ITS FIRST WITNESS AGAINST THE INDIAN, CHIN HA MOT.

Her Story a Clear and Connected One—The Investigation Adjournd. How much, or how little, there is in the Indian woman's story of the murder of Isaac Cloak, in North Saanich, fifteen years ago, remains to be seen. Certain it is that she tells her story well. The preliminary hearing of the interesting case was opened before Mr. Edwin Johnson, Q. C., S. M., in the Provincial Court, yesterday, Superintendent Hussey conducting the examination, and the accused being represented by Mr. P. E. Irving, of Bodwell & Irving. Chin Ha Mot appeared in a suit of light tweed, tailor made, and wore the neatly laundered white shirt, with handkerchiefs and studs. It appears to be an Indian of far more than ordinary intelligence, but disposed to treat the present serious proceedings as a huge joke. During the examination of the first and only witness, so far produced, he smiled frequently, and nodded approvingly to his friends who clustered about the doorway. After the information had been fully read, Fanny Battlemore, who speaks only her native Indian language and Chinook, took the stand. Her evidence was interpreted by Mrs. Marcol, to whom the police are indebted for the clues which started them on the case. Fanny's personal appearance is very different from that of the usual type of Coast Indian. She has the nose, eyes, and other prominent features of a white man, but is an Indian of far more than ordinary intelligence, but disposed to treat the present serious proceedings as a huge joke. During the examination of the first and only witness, so far produced, he smiled frequently, and nodded approvingly to his friends who clustered about the doorway. After the information had been fully read, Fanny Battlemore, who speaks only her native Indian language and Chinook, took the stand. Her evidence was interpreted by Mrs. Marcol, to whom the police are indebted for the clues which started them on the case. Fanny's personal appearance is very different from that of the usual type of Coast Indian. She has the nose, eyes, and other prominent features of a white man, but is an Indian of far more than ordinary intelligence, but disposed to treat the present serious proceedings as a huge joke. During the examination of the first and only witness, so far produced, he smiled frequently, and nodded approvingly to his friends who clustered about the doorway. After the information had been fully read, Fanny Battlemore, who speaks only her native Indian language and Chinook, took the stand. Her evidence was interpreted by Mrs. Marcol, to whom the police are indebted for the clues which started them on the case. Fanny's personal appearance is very different from that of the usual type of Coast Indian. She has the nose, eyes, and other prominent features of a white man, but is an Indian of far more than ordinary intelligence, but disposed to treat the present serious proceedings as a huge joke. During the examination of the first and only witness, so far produced, he smiled frequently, and nodded approvingly to his friends who clustered about the doorway. After the information had been fully read, Fanny Battlemore, who speaks only her native Indian language and Chinook, took the stand. Her evidence was interpreted by Mrs. Marcol, to whom the police are indebted for the clues which started them on the case. Fanny's personal appearance is very different from that of the usual type of Coast Indian. She has the nose, eyes, and other prominent features of a white man, but is an Indian of far more than ordinary intelligence, but disposed to treat the present serious proceedings as a huge joke. During the examination of the first and only witness, so far produced, he smiled frequently, and nodded approvingly to his friends who clustered about the doorway. After the information had been fully read, Fanny Battlemore, who speaks only her native Indian language and Chinook, took the stand. Her evidence was interpreted by Mrs. Marcol, to whom the police are indebted for the clues which started them on the case. Fanny's personal appearance is very different from that of the usual type of Coast Indian. She has the nose, eyes, and other prominent features of a white man, but is an Indian of far more than ordinary intelligence, but disposed to treat the present serious proceedings as a huge joke. During the examination of the first and only witness, so far produced, he smiled frequently, and nodded approvingly to his friends who clustered about the doorway. After the information had been fully read, Fanny Battlemore, who speaks only her native Indian language and Chinook, took the stand. Her evidence was interpreted by Mrs. Marcol, to whom the police are indebted for the clues which started them on the case. Fanny's personal appearance is very different from that of the usual type of Coast Indian. She has the nose, eyes, and other prominent features of a white man, but is an Indian of far more than ordinary intelligence, but disposed to treat the present serious proceedings as a huge joke. During the examination of the first and only witness, so far produced, he smiled frequently, and nodded approvingly to his friends who clustered about the doorway. After the information had been fully read, Fanny Battlemore, who speaks only her native Indian language and Chinook, took the stand. Her evidence was interpreted by Mrs. Marcol, to whom the police are indebted for the clues which started them on the case. Fanny's personal appearance is very different from that of the usual type of Coast Indian. She has the nose, eyes, and other prominent features of a white man, but is an Indian of far more than ordinary intelligence, but disposed to treat the present serious proceedings as a huge joke. During the examination of the first and only witness, so far produced, he smiled frequently, and nodded approvingly to his friends who clustered about the doorway. After the information had been fully read, Fanny Battlemore, who speaks only her native Indian language and Chinook, took the stand. Her evidence was interpreted by Mrs. Marcol, to whom the police are indebted for the clues which started them on the case. Fanny's personal appearance is very different from that of the usual type of Coast Indian. She has the nose, eyes, and other prominent features of a white man, but is an Indian of far more than ordinary intelligence, but disposed to treat the present serious proceedings as a huge joke. During the examination of the first and only witness, so far produced, he smiled frequently, and nodded approvingly to his friends who clustered about the doorway. After the information had been fully read, Fanny Battlemore, who speaks only her native Indian language and Chinook, took the stand. Her evidence was interpreted by Mrs. Marcol, to whom the police are indebted for the clues which started them on the case. Fanny's personal appearance is very different from that of the usual type of Coast Indian. She has the nose, eyes, and other prominent features of a white man, but is an Indian of far more than ordinary intelligence, but disposed to treat the present serious proceedings as a huge joke. During the examination of the first and only witness, so far produced, he smiled frequently, and nodded approvingly to his friends who clustered about the doorway. After the information had been fully read, Fanny Battlemore, who speaks only her native Indian language and Chinook, took the stand. Her evidence was interpreted by Mrs. Marcol, to whom the police are indebted for the clues which started them on the case. Fanny's personal appearance is very different from that of the usual type of Coast Indian. She has the nose, eyes, and other prominent features of a white man, but is an Indian of far more than ordinary intelligence, but disposed to treat the present serious proceedings as a huge joke. During the examination of the first and only witness, so far produced, he smiled frequently, and nodded approvingly to his friends who clustered about the doorway. After the information had been fully read, Fanny Battlemore, who speaks only her native Indian language and Chinook, took the stand. Her evidence was interpreted by Mrs. Marcol, to whom the police are indebted for the clues which started them on the case. Fanny's personal appearance is very different from that of the usual type of Coast Indian. She has the nose, eyes, and other prominent features of a white man, but is an Indian of far more than ordinary intelligence, but disposed to treat the present serious proceedings as a huge joke. During the examination of the first and only witness, so far produced, he smiled frequently, and nodded approvingly to his friends who clustered about the doorway. After the information had been fully read, Fanny Battlemore, who speaks only her native Indian language and Chinook, took the stand. Her evidence was interpreted by Mrs. Marcol, to whom the police are indebted for the clues which started them on the case. Fanny's personal appearance is very different from that of the usual type of Coast Indian. She has the nose, eyes, and other prominent features of a white man, but is an Indian of far more than ordinary intelligence, but disposed to treat the present serious proceedings as a huge joke. During the examination of the first and only witness, so far produced, he smiled frequently, and nodded approvingly to his friends who clustered about the doorway. After the information had been fully read, Fanny Battlemore, who speaks only her native Indian language and Chinook, took the stand. Her evidence was interpreted by Mrs. Marcol, to whom the police are indebted for the clues which started them on the case. Fanny's personal appearance is very different from that of the usual type of Coast Indian. She has the nose, eyes, and other prominent features of a white man, but is an Indian of far more than ordinary intelligence, but disposed to treat the present serious proceedings as a huge joke. During the examination of the first and only witness, so far produced, he smiled frequently, and nodded approvingly to his friends who clustered about the doorway. After the information had been fully read, Fanny Battlemore, who speaks only her native Indian language and Chinook, took the stand. Her evidence was interpreted by Mrs. Marcol, to whom the police are indebted for the clues which started them on the case. Fanny's personal appearance is very different from that of the usual type of Coast Indian. She has the nose, eyes, and other prominent features of a white man, but is an Indian of far more than ordinary intelligence, but disposed to treat the present serious proceedings as a huge joke. During the examination of the first and only witness, so far produced, he smiled frequently, and nodded approvingly to his friends who clustered about the doorway. After the information had been fully read, Fanny Battlemore, who speaks only her native Indian language and Chinook, took the stand. Her evidence was interpreted by Mrs. Marcol, to whom the police are indebted for the clues which started them on the case. Fanny's personal appearance is very different from that of the usual type of Coast Indian. She has the nose, eyes, and other prominent features of a white man, but is an Indian of far more than ordinary intelligence, but disposed to treat the present serious proceedings as a huge joke. During the examination of the first and only witness, so far produced, he smiled frequently, and nodded approvingly to his friends who clustered about the doorway. After the information had been fully read, Fanny Battlemore, who speaks only her native Indian language and Chinook, took the stand. Her evidence was interpreted by Mrs. Marcol, to whom the police are indebted for the clues which started them on the case. Fanny's personal appearance is very different from that of the usual type of Coast Indian. She has the nose, eyes, and other prominent features of a white man, but is an Indian of far more than ordinary intelligence, but disposed to treat the present serious proceedings as a huge joke. During the examination of the first and only witness, so far produced, he smiled frequently, and nodded approvingly to his friends who clustered about the doorway. After the information had been fully read, Fanny Battlemore, who speaks only her native Indian language and Chinook, took the stand. Her evidence was interpreted by Mrs. Marcol, to whom the police are indebted for the clues which started them on the case. Fanny's personal appearance is very different from that of the usual type of Coast Indian. She has the nose, eyes, and other prominent features of a white man, but is an Indian of far more than ordinary intelligence, but disposed to treat the present serious proceedings as a huge joke. During the examination of the first and only witness, so far produced, he smiled frequently, and nodded approvingly to his friends who clustered about the doorway. After the information had been fully read, Fanny Battlemore, who speaks only her native Indian language and Chinook, took the stand. Her evidence was interpreted by Mrs. Marcol, to whom the police are indebted for the clues which started them on the case. Fanny's personal appearance is very different from that of the usual type of Coast Indian. She has the nose, eyes, and other prominent features of a white man, but is an Indian of far more than ordinary intelligence, but disposed to treat the present serious proceedings as a huge joke. During the examination of the first and only witness, so far produced, he smiled frequently, and nodded approvingly to his friends who clustered about the doorway. After the information had been fully read, Fanny Battlemore, who speaks only her native Indian language and Chinook, took the stand. Her evidence was interpreted by Mrs. Marcol, to whom the police are indebted for the clues which started them on the case. Fanny's personal appearance is very different from that of the usual type of Coast Indian. She has the nose, eyes, and other prominent features of a white man, but is an Indian of far more than ordinary intelligence, but disposed to treat the present serious proceedings as a huge joke. During the examination of the first and only witness, so far produced, he smiled frequently, and nodded approvingly to his friends who clustered about the doorway. After the information had been fully read, Fanny Battlemore, who speaks only her native Indian language and Chinook, took the stand. Her evidence was interpreted by Mrs. Marcol, to whom the police are indebted for the clues which started them on the case. Fanny's personal appearance is very different from that of the usual type of Coast Indian. She has the nose, eyes, and other prominent features of a white man, but is an Indian of far more than ordinary intelligence, but disposed to treat the present serious proceedings as a huge joke. During the examination of the first and only witness, so far produced, he smiled frequently, and nodded approvingly to his friends who clustered about the doorway. After the information had been fully read, Fanny Battlemore, who speaks only her native Indian language and Chinook, took the stand. Her evidence was interpreted by Mrs. Marcol, to whom the police are indebted for the clues which started them on the case. Fanny's personal appearance is very different from that of the usual type of Coast Indian. She has the nose, eyes, and other prominent features of a white man, but is an Indian of far more than ordinary intelligence, but disposed to treat the present serious proceedings as a huge joke. During the examination of the first and only witness, so far produced, he smiled frequently, and nodded approvingly to his friends who clustered about the doorway. After the information had been fully read, Fanny Battlemore, who speaks only her native Indian language and Chinook, took the stand. Her evidence was interpreted by Mrs. Marcol, to whom the police are indebted for the clues which started them on the case. Fanny's personal appearance is very different from that of the usual type of Coast Indian. She has the nose, eyes, and other prominent features of a white man, but is an Indian of far more than ordinary intelligence, but disposed to treat the present serious proceedings as a huge joke. During the examination of the first and only witness, so far produced, he smiled frequently, and nodded approvingly to his friends who clustered about the doorway. After the information had been fully read, Fanny Battlemore, who speaks only her native Indian language and Chinook, took the stand. Her evidence was interpreted by Mrs. Marcol, to whom the police are indebted for the clues which started them on the case. Fanny's personal appearance is very different from that of the usual type of Coast Indian. She has the nose, eyes, and other prominent features of a white man, but is an Indian of far more than ordinary intelligence, but disposed to treat the present serious proceedings as a huge joke. During the examination of the first and only witness, so far produced, he smiled frequently, and nodded approvingly to his friends who clustered about the doorway. After the information had been fully read, Fanny Battlemore, who speaks only her native Indian language and Chinook, took the stand. Her evidence was interpreted by Mrs. Marcol, to whom the police are indebted for the clues which started them on the case. Fanny's personal appearance is very different from that of the usual type of Coast Indian. She has the nose, eyes, and other prominent features of a white man, but is an Indian of far more than ordinary intelligence, but disposed to treat the present serious proceedings as a huge joke. During the examination of the first and only witness, so far produced, he smiled frequently, and nodded approvingly to his friends who clustered about the doorway. After the information had been fully read, Fanny Battlemore, who speaks only her native Indian language and Chinook, took the stand. Her evidence was interpreted by Mrs. Marcol, to whom the police are indebted for the clues which started them on the case. Fanny's personal appearance is very different from that of the usual type of Coast Indian. She has the nose, eyes, and other prominent features of a white man, but is an Indian of far more than ordinary intelligence, but disposed to treat the present serious proceedings as a huge joke. During the examination of the first and only witness, so far produced, he smiled frequently, and nodded approvingly to his friends who clustered about the doorway. After the information had been fully read, Fanny Battlemore, who speaks only her native Indian language and Chinook, took the stand. Her evidence was interpreted by Mrs. Marcol, to whom the police are indebted for the clues which started them on the case. Fanny's personal appearance is very different from that of the usual type of Coast Indian. She has the nose, eyes, and other prominent features of a white man, but is an Indian of far more than ordinary intelligence, but disposed to treat the present serious proceedings as a huge joke. During the examination of the first and only witness, so far produced, he smiled frequently, and nodded approvingly to his friends who clustered about the doorway. After the information had been fully read, Fanny Battlemore, who speaks only her native Indian language and Chinook, took the stand. Her evidence was interpreted by Mrs. Marcol, to whom the police are indebted for the clues which started them on the case. Fanny's personal appearance is very different from that of the usual type of Coast Indian. She has the nose, eyes, and other prominent features of a white man, but is an Indian of far more than ordinary intelligence, but disposed to treat the present serious proceedings as a huge joke. During the examination of the first and only witness, so far produced, he smiled frequently, and nodded approvingly to his friends who clustered about the doorway. After the information had been fully read, Fanny Battlemore, who speaks only her native Indian language and Chinook, took the stand. Her evidence was interpreted by Mrs. Marcol, to whom the police are indebted for the clues which started them on the case. Fanny's personal appearance is very different from that of the usual type of Coast Indian. She has the nose, eyes, and other prominent features of a white man, but is an Indian of far more than ordinary intelligence, but disposed to treat the present serious proceedings as a huge joke. During the examination of the first and only witness, so far produced, he smiled frequently, and nodded approvingly to his friends who clustered about the doorway. After the information had been fully read, Fanny Battlemore, who speaks only her native Indian language and Chinook, took the stand. Her evidence was interpreted by Mrs. Marcol, to whom the police are indebted for the clues which started them on the case. Fanny's personal appearance is very different from that of the usual type of Coast Indian. She has the nose, eyes, and other prominent features of a white man, but is an Indian of far more than ordinary intelligence, but disposed to treat the present serious proceedings as a huge joke. During the examination of the first and only witness, so far produced, he smiled frequently, and nodded approvingly to his friends who clustered about the doorway. After the information had been fully read, Fanny Battlemore, who speaks only her native Indian language and Chinook, took the stand. Her evidence was interpreted by Mrs. Marcol, to whom the police are indebted for the clues which started them on the case. Fanny's personal appearance is very different from that of the usual type of Coast Indian. She has the nose, eyes, and other prominent features of a white man, but is an Indian of far more than ordinary intelligence, but disposed to treat the present serious proceedings as a huge joke. During the examination of the first and only witness, so far produced, he smiled frequently, and nodded approvingly to his friends who clustered about the doorway. After the information had been fully read, Fanny Battlemore, who speaks only her native Indian language and Chinook, took the stand. Her evidence was interpreted by Mrs. Marcol, to whom the police are indebted for the clues which started them on the case. Fanny's personal appearance is very different from that of the usual type of Coast Indian. She has the nose, eyes, and other prominent features of a white man, but is an Indian of far more than ordinary intelligence, but disposed to treat the present serious proceedings as a huge joke. During the examination of the first and only witness, so far produced, he smiled frequently, and nodded approvingly to his friends who clustered about the doorway. After the information had been fully read, Fanny Battlemore, who speaks only her native Indian language and Chinook, took the stand. Her evidence was interpreted by Mrs. Marcol, to whom the police are indebted for the clues which started them on the case. Fanny's personal appearance is very different from that of the usual type of Coast Indian. She has the nose, eyes, and other prominent features of a white man, but is an Indian of far more than ordinary intelligence, but disposed to treat the present serious proceedings as a huge joke. During the examination of the first and only witness, so far produced, he smiled frequently, and nodded approvingly to his friends who clustered about the doorway. After the information had been fully read, Fanny Battlemore, who speaks only her native Indian language and Chinook, took the stand. Her evidence was interpreted by Mrs. Marcol, to whom the police are indebted for the clues which started them on the case. Fanny's personal appearance is very different from that of the usual type of Coast Indian. She has the nose, eyes, and other prominent features of a white man, but is an Indian of far more than ordinary intelligence, but disposed to treat the present serious proceedings as a huge joke. During the examination of the first and only witness, so far produced, he smiled frequently, and nodded approvingly to his friends who clustered about the doorway. After the information had been fully read, Fanny Battlemore, who speaks only her native Indian language and Chinook, took the stand. Her evidence was interpreted by Mrs. Marcol, to whom the police are indebted for the clues which started them on the case. Fanny's personal appearance is very different from that of the usual type of Coast Indian. She has the nose, eyes, and other prominent features of a white man, but is an Indian of far more than ordinary intelligence, but disposed to treat the present serious proceedings as a huge joke. During the examination of the first and only witness, so far produced, he smiled frequently, and nodded approvingly to his friends who clustered about the doorway. After the information had been fully read, Fanny Battlemore, who speaks only her native Indian language and Chinook, took the stand. Her evidence was interpreted by Mrs. Marcol, to whom the police are indebted for the clues which started them on the case. Fanny's personal appearance is very different from that of the usual type of Coast Indian. She has the nose, eyes, and other prominent features of a white man, but is an Indian of far more than ordinary intelligence, but disposed to treat the present serious proceedings as a huge joke. During the examination of the first and only witness, so far produced, he smiled frequently, and nodded approvingly to his friends who clustered about the doorway. After the information had been fully read, Fanny Battlemore, who speaks only her native Indian language and Chinook, took the stand. Her evidence was interpreted by Mrs. Marcol, to whom the police are indebted for the clues which started them on the case. Fanny's personal appearance is very different from that of the usual type of Coast Indian. She has the nose, eyes, and other prominent features of a white man, but is an Indian of far more than ordinary intelligence, but disposed to treat the present serious proceedings as a huge joke. During the examination of the first and only witness, so far produced, he smiled frequently, and nodded approvingly to his friends who clustered about the doorway. After the information had been fully read, Fanny Battlemore, who speaks only her native Indian language and Chinook, took the stand. Her evidence was interpreted by Mrs. Marcol, to whom the police are indebted for the clues which started them on the case. Fanny's personal appearance is very different from that of the usual type of Coast Indian. She has the nose, eyes, and other prominent features of a white man, but is an Indian of far more than ordinary intelligence, but disposed to treat the present serious proceedings as a huge joke. During the examination of the first and only witness, so far produced, he smiled frequently, and nodded approvingly to his friends who clustered about the doorway. After the information had been fully read, Fanny Battlemore, who speaks only her native Indian language and Chinook, took the stand. Her evidence was interpreted by Mrs. Marcol, to whom the police are indebted for the clues which started them on the case. Fanny's personal appearance is very different from that of the usual type of Coast Indian. She has the nose, eyes, and other prominent features of a white man, but is an Indian of far more than ordinary intelligence, but disposed to treat the present serious proceedings as a huge joke. During the examination of the first and only witness, so far produced, he smiled frequently, and nodded approvingly to his friends who clustered about the doorway. After the information had been fully read, Fanny Battlemore, who speaks only her native Indian language and Chinook, took the stand. Her evidence was interpreted by Mrs. Marcol, to whom the police are indebted for the clues which started them on the case. Fanny's personal appearance is very different from that of the usual type of Coast Indian. She has the nose, eyes, and other prominent features of a white man, but is an Indian of far more than ordinary intelligence, but disposed to treat the present serious proceedings as a huge joke. During the examination of the first and only witness, so far produced, he smiled frequently, and nodded approvingly to his friends who clustered about the doorway. After the information had been fully read, Fanny Battlemore, who speaks only her native Indian language and Chinook, took the stand. Her evidence was interpreted by Mrs. Marcol, to whom the police are indebted for the clues which started them on the case. Fanny's personal appearance is very different from that of the usual type of Coast Indian. She has the nose, eyes, and other prominent features of a white man, but is an Indian of far more than ordinary intelligence, but disposed to treat the present serious proceedings as a huge joke. During the examination of the first and only witness, so far produced, he smiled frequently, and nodded approvingly to his friends who clustered about the doorway. After the information had been fully read, Fanny Battlemore, who speaks only her native Indian language and Chinook, took the stand. Her evidence was interpreted by Mrs. Marcol, to whom the police are indebted for the clues which started them on the case. Fanny's personal appearance is very different from that of the usual type of Coast Indian. She has the nose, eyes, and other prominent features of a white man, but is an Indian of far more than ordinary intelligence, but disposed to treat the present serious proceedings as a huge joke. During the examination of the first and only witness, so far produced, he smiled frequently, and nodded approvingly to his friends who clustered about the doorway. After the information had been fully read, Fanny Battlemore, who speaks only her native Indian language and Chinook, took the stand. Her evidence was interpreted by Mrs. Marcol, to whom the police are indebted for the clues which started them on the case. Fanny's personal appearance is very different from that of the usual type of Coast Indian. She has the nose, eyes, and other prominent features of a white man, but is an Indian of far more than ordinary intelligence, but disposed to treat the present serious proceedings as a huge joke. During the examination of the first and only witness, so far produced, he smiled frequently, and nodded approvingly to his friends who clustered about the doorway. After the information had been fully read, Fanny Battlemore, who speaks only her native Indian language and Chinook, took the stand. Her evidence was interpreted by Mrs. Marcol, to whom the police are indebted for the clues which started them on the case. Fanny's personal appearance is very different from that of the usual type of Coast Indian. She has the nose, eyes, and other prominent features of a white man, but is an Indian of far more than ordinary intelligence, but disposed to treat the present serious proceedings as a huge joke. During the examination of the first and only witness, so far produced, he smiled frequently, and nodded approvingly to his friends who clustered about the doorway. After the information had been fully read, Fanny Battlemore, who speaks only her native Indian language and Chinook, took the stand. Her evidence was interpreted by Mrs. Marcol, to whom the police are indebted for the clues which started them on the case. Fanny's personal appearance is very different from that of the usual type of Coast Indian. She has the nose, eyes, and other prominent features of a white man, but is an Indian of