

"THE BOOKS THAT ALL ARE PRAISING."

o writer has achieved a more enviable reputation than "Pansy" (Mrs. G. R. Alden). Her style is unique, and the strong, healthy, natural spirit breathed through her writings ennobles the mind—making the manly more strong, and the womanly more true. "Her stories move alternately to laughter and tears;" "Girl life and character portrayed with rare power;" "A wondrous freshness and vitality appearing on every page;" "Too much cannot be said of the insight given to the true way of studying and using the word of God." These are a few quotations from words of praise everywhere spoken.
