BRITISH COLUMBIA

Vancouver Business Review

July 16, 1894.

The wholesale firms report money considerably easier and trade quite brisk since the floods. And prospects for the fall are good. For the past week railroad traffic over the Canadian Pacific Railroad has been unusually brisk, and the city is full of tourists from the United States, being obliged to take the Canadian route to the eastern states owing to the Pullman strike. The lumber business is still active, both the large mills running on full time. Hydraulic mining is in full swing, and if one could believe half the reports of the big finds that come in from the interior, he would be convinced that the immediate future prospects of British Columbia were very bright, particularly as we are to have a Canadian smelter at Pilot Bay at an early date, and the Canadian, Nakusp and Slocan railway for the accommodation has been handed over to the engineers by the construction company. Our fruit crop is a complete failure, owing to insect pests, and we will have to import most of our garden stuff owing to the flood devastations. The shipping trade is exceptionally good. The Warrimoo and Empress of China both sailed to-day; every inch of freight space was occupied, the Warrimoo carrying away 2,200 tons. So that the Australian Canadian line may be said to be beyond the experimental stage and pronounced a great success. On the last two trips they have been obliged to refuse freight.

The canneries are all ready to begin the sockeye pack, and on the first appearance of the run over 1,200 boats will be sent out. If the fish are plentiful the pack should be the largest on record, though very few of the canners expect to see as many cases put up as last year. The number of licenses issued so far by Inspector of Fisheries McNab is between 1,250 and 1,300. This is over 200 more than last year and double the number of four or five years ago. Twenty-eight canneries have taken out between them 560 licenses, which is somewhat in excess of last year. The greatest increase, however, is in the number of free fishermen.

The monthly freight and shipping report of R. P. Rithet & Co., Ltd., for June says:—"Business continues limited in volume and dull in tone. This has naturally been reflected in the freight market during the month just passed, and rates are in some instances decidedly weaker, notably to the United Kingdom. At the close there has been quite unusual activity in grain chartering and a number of vessels have been fixed at 25s nett to Cork for orders. In the lumber market a fairly satisfactory business has been done at previous rates. Suitable tonnage is scarce, which checks any downward tendency there may be. Several signs are apparent of a revival in Australia and it is to be hoped these will continue to be manifested."

Condition of the Dry Goods Trade.

The New York Evening Post in its review of the dry goods trade for the first six months of the year says:—

The first half of the year will have passed by Saturday, and in reviewing the trade since the first of the year it will be found that the manufacture of domestic cottons was curtailed over 25 per cent., and the production of woolen and worsted fabrics was from 50 to 60 per cent., according to the character of the goods, below the output of 1893. The importations of wool were a little less than one-third of the importations of wool during the same period last year. On all staple lines values have shrunk from 15 to 25 per cent., but specials and novelties of all descriptions have suffered especially. The distribution of goods was irregular and at times forced. The situation has one gleam of sunshine in the engagement of goods for autumn, through which some makes of heavy-weight goods have been entirely sold up or contracted for. It is said that the balance sheets of the various houses will vary, as the majority will compare favorably with the same time in 1893, because the manufacturer and not the jobber has had to sacrifice goods.

The furniture and undertaking business carried on by W. D. Lambert, at Boissevain, has been purchased by N. Vrooman, of Manitou.
