The Land we Live in

Is a very suggestive title for a journal; it recalls dear Canada, our own country, For an emblem it has a to our mind. For an emblem it has a frog smoking the pipe, sitting cross-leg on a little mushroom and shaded by a big one. The signification of which, we are at a loss to find out, unless it would be the ease and comfort which the biped appears to enjoy. It gives a very vivid description of some part of Canada which has never before been brought to the notice of the reader. In fact damsel Canada is so timid and which discount from the modorn to our mind.

of some part of Canada which has never before been brought to the notice of the reader. In fact damsel Canada is so timid and retired; different from the modern Greek bride who wears her whole dowry in pieces of money as a head dress, Canada has always kept her beauties and her treasures hidden under a bushel; but The Land We Lave In is boring holes through the Caisson and sparkling lights come out and spread around, and not only within the radius of the boodle kingdom, but also on this side of the line. That line which divides lands which by their geographical position ought to have never been separated, and which should be united; should join lands, heart and all.

Mr. D. Thomas & Co., publishers of the above, are a very enterprising firm. They marry people, or at least they draw tho contract that binds them together, (they are notaries) with the same ability as they cure piles. They'll self you The Land They Live In, or any part thereof together with a bottle of ink to sign your name to the doed with, in a twinkle of an eye. They are agents for Hill's Goldon Oil, but how unch gold there is in the oil we can't tell. They are possessors of formulas for mixing any kind of ingredients and making compounds out of substances which, before were thought to bear no affinity to each other. The same science applied to the social system would prove a honanza in this century of divorces. The secret of this is that the syndicate is composed of professional, scientific and literabilities. We beg to call attention to our latestructure Fuel, and Fire Kindlers, advortised in another column. They are made in bricks from infusorial earth, and have the appearance of Bath Bricks. There are five different sizes put up in sets of three in the cases, and cost from 50 conts to $2.50 per set. Nothing can equal them for summer fuel, as by touching a lighted match to one, you have at once as good a fire as you can get from wood in ten or fifteen minutes. The larger sizes absorb coal oil enough to burn 40 to 60 minutes, cost fers than half of wood, and are far a head of Coal Stoves, and at a sixth of the cost. They last for ever, and can be used in any stove. With over, and can be used in any stove. With a set of three, a continuous fire can be kept up. No dust, dirt, or smell. Trya sot. They will be sent by Express C.O.D.,

We have a few first proof steel engrav gs for sale at a mere fraction of the mgs for sale at published price.

Angler's Retrent, Middle Dam, Me, May 31, 1889.

The trout fishing season opened here this year a month earlier than usual, consequently there has not been the usual rush of fishermen, but the influx has been steady since the ice went out. Most of the parties who have been here and returned home had good luck, and fine large trout and land-locked salmon have already been captured. Mr. E. A. Smith, of Lowell, Mass., caught one trout of 4B., or: of 8lb., and plenty of smaller ones; Mr. L. A. Derby "froze on" to one eight pounder, and scooped in numerous others running from 1 to 3lbs; Mr. S. H. Jones took three handsome fish, whose weights were 44b., 44b., and 6b. This is not up to Henry's usual "ecord, and he intends to beat it on his Fall trip; E.W. Lovejoy captured one of 33b., and one of 44b., besides plenty of smaller ones; Mr. S. L. Sawtelle was the "King Fisherman" in this party; and removed from their native element three trout weighing 44b. 44b., and 84b., and and a land-locked salmon weighing 65b. Sid said "he did not come down here to catch minnows," so threw back into the water all the trout he caught weighing from one to two pounds, except a few he kept to eat. Mr. E. O. Thorndike and wife, of Boston, Mass., who have been here a few days, caught quite a number of small trout, and said they had a delightful time. They were much pleased with this country, it being their first trip to this noted chain of lakes. W. Coburn and F. Wellman, of Lowell, Mass, passed a few days here, and carried home a nice box of trout.

B. B. Mitchell, W. C. Rowley, and A. C. King, of Portland, Me., have arrived on their annual fishing trip, and are just getting down to business. They will give a good account of themselves later. D. B. Hempsted, the veteran fisherman, of New London, Conn., turned up here as smiling as ever three days ago, on his twenty-ninth annual pilgrimage to the "Home of the Large Trout." Mr. Hempsted has only missed one year out of thirty. He made his first period he has fished hundreds of waters in the United States and Canadas, but says none furnish such satisfactory fishing as these. Before he had been here two days, he had taken besides a number of smaller ones, a trout that weighed 6½ks., and his companion, Dr. Farnsworth, of New London, had taken a three andahalf pounder. J. Floming, A. Fleming, and George S. Clark, have lately arrived, and are having good luck. The trout in these waters are all pure spotted brook trout, Salmo-Fontinalis, there being no lakers or togue here. If any of your readers who are fond of fishing, wish to get some fishing "as is fishing," let them take the Grand Trunk Railway to Bethel, Me., stage to Lakeside, foot of Umbagog Lake, steamer across the Lake, then a short buckboard ride of five miles, and they are here on the best fishing waters in the world. I don't except any place. The shooting in the fall here is also excellent, ducks, partridges, marsh birds, deer, and bears being plenty. The scenery is as fine as any in New England, and the air and water pure. Invalids come here hardly able to walk, and go home as strong as a mule, and with an appetite like a shark. More anon.
