

as stated by the present Master of the Rolls, I see no ground for relaxing the statutory injunction, and allowing this shareholder to bring an action against the directors and officers for misfeasance and breach of trust—claims which are capable of being more satisfactorily disposed of by the Court here; and therefore so much of her present application must be refused. And as to any action she may bring for a personal wrong, no leave is necessary, for the assets of this insolvent company would not be benefited or affected by the financial results of such litigation.

---