GREEN EYES V. BIG EYES.

What appears at first sight to have been an ingenious advertising dodge was worked off on The Evening Telegram last night, and a large amount of attention was given to the enterprise of a real estate firm in the devotion of so much space by our careful contemporary was to call upon the mayor for an explanation of the use of his name in what is a less usual way in Toronto than elsewhere, and to couple Mr. W. F. Maclean's name in the enquiry. These gentlemen are mentioned in a prospectus which appeared in The Evening Standard in England as members of an advisory board of the real estate company. We cannot speak for the mayor, who is out of town, but Mr. Maclean's name was used without his authority or knowledge, and The Telegram states that the solicitor for the company, Mr. G. O. McCulloch, admitted that Mr. Maclean's name was used without consulting him. Mr. Maclean is not a joiner, nor a director, nor an adviser, nor even a member of a hospital board, and his attitude in this respect is well known. And the Telegram knew yesterday forenoon that Mr. Maclean's name had been used without authority or consent, there was no mention of that fact in its editorial attack of the afternoon. It will have an opportunity of explaining it today.

The Telegram further reflects on Controller McCarthy because a letter written by that gentleman last January repeating certain statements he had made about the shortage of houses in the city before the clay products convention, was reproduced in the prospectus. The Telegram is afraid lest anything might tempt capital into the city, and especially lest any person officially connected with the city should give authentic information on the subject.

There appears to be a distinction made, however, in this matter. Controller McCarthy was out in Hunnyr on Tuesday evening with Mr. Home Smith, advocating the annexation of that district and other large tracts of real estate in the Humber region, in the development of which Mr. Home Smith, and from its strange silence and acquiescence, everybody understands The Telegram also, is deeply concerned. There is no censure for Controller McCarthy for booming real estate in the west, but the mayor and all sundry are called upon to explain why there should be any efforts towards annexing real estate in the east.

The proposed annexation in the east end is of a tract of land the western boundary of which lies one mile from Yonge street. The western annexation about which The Telegram has so complacently lied from six to seven miles from Yonge street. The World has not opposed Mr. Home Smith and The Telegram in their project of developing the Humber Valley. The World is glad to see other people get along, and glad to see the city in general progress. But The Telegram has a settled policy of knocking everybody who does anything or prospers in any way outside its own little circle. It is fond of calling Big-Eyes at progressive people, but it only looks thru Green-Eyes itself, and the result rather interferes with its good humor.

All that is said against annexation in the east end applies tenfold to the proposed annexations in the west end, but The Telegram has never a word to say when its own friends and its own interests are concerned. We do not point this out as in any way to be used as an argument against the Humber annexations, but merely to show the inconsistency of our erratic contemporary. The Humber real estate men need not fear the competition of the east end. A different class of business will be appealed to in each case.

Why The Telegram should show nervousness for the prospects of the west end by its campaign against the east end is incomprehensible to outsiders, for nothing but the nervousness of a heavy investor would explain a hostility exhibited by The Telegram against all east end projects. The city is quite large enough, and there is ample room enough for all the development plans now before the city, and the fact that a real estate company advertised in England and got a large free advertisement out of The Telegram, is no reason why Toronto should not continue to grow.

PHASES OF IMMIGRATION POLICY

Since every question has at least two sides, it is not surprising that the movement of population from the old world to the new is variously regarded. Emigration from Germany has practically ceased because the remarkably rapid industrial development of that country has drawn so many from the field of agriculture as to require their places to be filled by foreign laborers. In Britain, again, the insistence of the dominions upon immigrants who will go in for the land has led to protests from those who are behind the movement for land reform. England has no surplus of agricultural labor and the demand of the overseas dominions has had the effect of stimulating the effort so to improve rural conditions that their lure will be lessened if not wholly removed.

The continental nations of Europe discourage emigration because it diminishes their available strength in time of war. Austria's dread in that regard led to the recent drastic action against the activities of the steamship companies' agents. This and the growing disposition, shown by the new countries that invite settlement, to restrict entrance to those that measure up to their requirements, is leading to the conviction that the problem is international and should be adjusted by international arrangement. This is no less true of emigration from one part of the British Empire to another. Regulation before embarkation and a system by which reliable information regarding requirements can be exchanged and rendered available, appear to be necessary and can only be secured by international co-operation.

In the opinion of Mr. Walter W. Husband of Vermont, who, as representative of the United States Labor Department, has been investigating conditions in Russia and Southeastern Europe, the time has come when the activities of railroad and steamship companies in the way of the artificial promotion of emigration should be checked. They are encouraged by employers "who demand an exhaustive supply of cheap labor." This is good neither for the immigrant nor the nation, since it directly tends to reduce standard of living and displaces home labor. But Mr. Husband sees more hopeful results in the peasantry of Russia, now "the most important source of immigration in all Europe." They must live by agriculture and the land available in Russia will not support the rapidly increasing population, especially under existing methods of agriculture. Migration to Siberia has resulted, and he thinks it will not be many years before they will take a leading place in United States immigration. Moreover, he believes that if taken in time the Russian peasant can be directed to the land he loves.

HOW MANY TO THE CENTURY?

A sum of $200 has been offered by Mr. Casper L. Redfield, Chicago, to be paid to the American Genetic Association, if it can be shown that any superior individual ever was produced by breeding human beings as rapidly as one of the 2000 or 3000 intellectually eminent men known to history, who come in the four-generations-to-the-century class, says Mr. Redfield, will draw the prize. The other $100 is for the discovery of a single man of the exceptional class of Aristotle, Augustus, Newton, Bacon, Faraday, Franklin, Humboldt, Cuvier, Darwin, of whom there are two or three hundred, who can be found in the three-generations-to-the-century class. The offer is in the interest of eugenics.

UNIVERSITY FINANCE.

One of the toughest problems the provincial treasurer has to tackle is the income of the provincial university. The provision made for it some years ago, which was dependent on the amount of the succession duties, has been inadequate, owing to the longevity of the millionaires or their scarcity, or for other reasons. At any rate, it has not increased in the ratio anticipated. Of course, the expenditure at the university has grown during the last ten years. We have, in fact, one of the largest universities in the world, and it is impossible to keep up the standard expected from such an institution without very large outlays. A deficit of $128,514 for the approaching term, and large requirements for new buildings and equipment, running up to $1,500,000, makes it necessary that action be taken of a definite and effective nature. The board of governors laid the case before the government this week, and no doubt the problem will be solved somehow.

Facing the university authorities, should funds fail, there are several courses. Fees may be increased until only well-to-do people can have their sons go to the university. The number of students may be arbitrarily limited either by excluding all but provincial residents or by raising the examination standards. These are already very high. The authorities might also take an opposite course and let the standards of instruction and efficiency generally fall below par. If the deficits are not met and the needed funds provided for the new buildings required, this will be a compulsory measure. It is not credible that the government would shrink its obligations to this extent, and some

OPEN-AIR MEETING AT TODMORDEN

Opponents of Annexation Gave Reasons for Their Stand.

SPEECHES INTERRUPTED

Discussion Was Discouraged

—All Were Not Given Fair Hearing.

The residents of Todmorden were present at the open air meeting held last night on Mark Maynard's lawn at the corner of Pape and Woodville avenues. The topic under discussion was annexation, and was brought forward by the city council by the by-law which they put thru last Friday. Practically all the opinions which were expressed were adverse to the proposed annexation, and it was quite evident after a few speeches had been heard that there would be little chance to discuss both sides of the question as those who rose to speak in favor of annexation were not granted a fair hearing.

The meeting was opened by Mark Maynard, who moved that J. A. Macdonald take the chair. It was debated as to whether a time limit should be fixed upon the speakers, but it was finally decided that the duration of the speakers' times should be left to the discretion of the chairman.

George Leggett, the vice-president of the Todmorden Ratepayers' Association, was the first speaker to address the meeting. He declared that the ratepayers of Todmorden were present to defend a cause which lay dear to their hearts; that they were there to prevent their birthright being sold, and that they had to prevent the machinations of a gang of land sharks. It was a real estate boom from start to finish, he declared. The latest home, lost thru the higher taxation which he had to pay when the district was annexed, and to get the remainder of the district shunted into the city. Also there had been a number of people who had been in favor of annexation under certain circumstances, but they had changed their minds when they were acquainted with the provisions under which they were asked to join the municipality of Toronto.

The main balk which could not be surmounted by the ratepayers of Todmorden was that they should have to pay 100 per cent. of the cost of all local improvements, and that they should also have to shoulder a share of the civic debt of the city, part of which was incurred in paying for local improvements in other districts which were annexed to the city under circumstances far more favorable than those which were being offered to Todmorden. The advantages of the viaduct and the railway were minimized by the speaker.

Speaking of the increased taxation which the district would have to face, Mr. Leggett stated that, instead of water they were asked to accept a letter of credit of milk as a substitute. Mr. Leggett was the only member of the city council who was present at the meeting, and he was not able to attend, and announced that he would do all in his power against annexation. Mr. Leggett explained that before the city council for the reason that he did not think it fair that Mr. Davies should be exempt as was the case which he agreed to contribute to be used for a boulevard. This was an exchange for the permanent time limit to his being placed on the same footing as the rest of the ratepayers of the district. He personally considered that no time limit to come into the city of the district, he explained that if the territory surrounding him should be annexed, Mr. Leggett explained that if the people of Todmorden wished to come into the city they had to give a majority vote in favor of doing so. The action of the council in passing the by-law did not annex Todmorden, he declared.

Fears City Taxes. Mr. Jerry Nelson said: "I do not think it wise to come into the city on the terms that the city council has offered. It will take it to have to pay the entire cost of sewers, sidewalks and other local improvements. You need better light, city sewage, and a chance to express his views, but the crowd wouldn't grant it. Mr. Busell asked that a motion be passed that the city could not reopen the question for at least five years. He was in favor of annexation on property not on those offered, especially when they were free from debt. A committee consisting of Mr. Maynard, G. Moore, J. Westwood, M. Leggett, J.

WARD FOUR PICNIC WAS GRAND AFFAIR

Party Stalwarts Assembled in Force at Queenston Heights.

Under the most propitious circumstances since 2000 of Toronto Conservatives thoroughly enjoyed the ward four association's annual excursion and picnic to Queenston Heights yesterday. Arrived at the grounds the visitors partook of a picnic repast, and the district ran off a splendid program of sports. With the conclusion of the sports, the gathering was addressed by several prominent Conservatives. Hon. Thomas Crawford, greeted by cries of "Is That You, Daddy?" led off by voicing his appreciation of the valuable assistance rendered by the ward four association in maintaining the present government. The Liberal policy, he declared, had narrowed itself to one issue, which had not proved sufficient to carry them thru. The Liberals wandered in the wilderness for the last ten years and their time of passage had not yet come, simply because they lacked the necessary moose. Edmund Bristol eulogized the work of the ward four association in the past election. He declared the result of the recent contest to be a vindication of the common sense of the people of Ontario. Mr. W. J. Owens in the course of a spirited defence of the government of Sir James Whitney said that the opposition were appropriating the credit of having forced the government to pass the Workmen's Compensation Act. This, he declared, was a misappropriation, the Workmen's Compensation Act was originated by the present government, and the idea was conceived by Hon. Thomas Crawford, who first introduced it, moreover the government had taken it up, gone on with it and has now given the people the best act of recent years. Dr. Musgrave, the new M.L.A. for Niagara Falls, received a warm welcome from the gathering. He closed the program of speakers for the afternoon.
